

Southport's Christmas

By Joanne Wesson
Executive Director
Southport 2000, Inc.

A great big "thank you" to the city electrical crew and to the Southport Board of Aldermen for the wonderful display of lights downtown. The Whittler's Bench tree is magnificent, with hundreds of white lights twinkling.

When you drive down Howe Street toward the water it's like traveling in a magical fantasyland with white, twinkling lights on either side of the street guiding you along toward the display at the foot of Howe Street.

This week the 200th Christmas celebration kicks in with activities beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday with a holiday market. Shop and pick up tantalizing homebaked goodies on the spot. Bring the kids with you so they can enjoy Christmas stories told by Felecia Hardy. At 2 p.m. "The Sons of Southport" entertain with various musical selections, followed by the Southport Seacoast Cloggers at 4 p.m. Then at 5 p.m. the waterfront will be lighted by luminaries from Riverwatch subdivision down to Southport Marina. Also, the candlelight house tour runs from 5 to 9 p.m.

Come out and enjoy the luminaries and visit some of Southport's beautiful homes as the owners graciously invite you in to share the Christmas spirit. Two very special stops along the tour are the Driftwood Shell Shop and the Southport Maritime Museum. The shell shop's Christmas decorations of a nautical flair and the maritime museum with the traditional was-sail bowl invite you to stop and linger and enjoy the sights and sounds of Christmas.

Rounding out Saturday's entertainment is the Christmas concert at 7 p.m. by the Sea Notes Choral Society.

At 1 p.m. on Sunday Santa arrives to visit with the children and learn of their "wish lists". After visiting Santa, the little folks can stop by the gift-making workshop conducted by Susan Hutson and create a treasure for someone special on their Christmas list.

What is Christmas without a children's choir? The St. James Children's Choir will present a concert at 3 p.m. followed by a sing-along at 4 p.m.

Thelma Harris (center) received a television set from Pilot ad staffers Kim Adams and Cindy Leverett last week as winner of the newspaper's football contest drawing.

Winners are named for parade, flotilla

It was a tough job choosing the most beautiful and unique floats in this year's Oak Island Christmas-By-the-Sea parade since "all 80 of them were so well-done," said Southport-Oak Island Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president Karen Hope.

"It was good to see the community get behind the parade, and the kids really enjoyed it," Hope said. "I think the cold weather followed Santa down here, but it got everyone in the Christmas spirit."

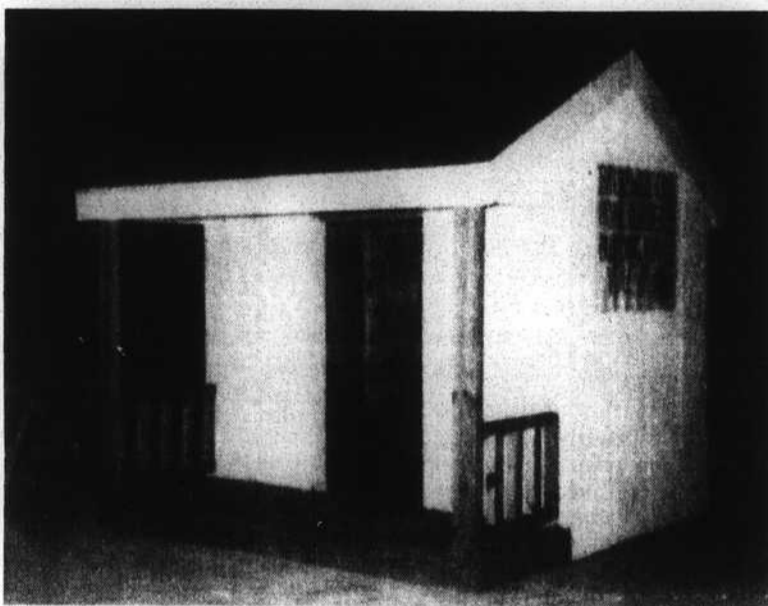

A panel of judges selected the following floats as this year's winners: First place, Coldwell Banker Southport-Oak Island Realty's "Visiting Sesame Street"; second place, Oak Island Beautification Club's "Learning is Holiday Fun"; third place, Hope Harbor Home's "Christmas Around the World"; judges award, St. Philip's Episcopal Church's "Nativity Scene with Angel Choir".

Winners will all receive trophies. The panel of judges included county manager/attorney David Clegg, South Brunswick Islands Chamber of Commerce executive director Bill Dearman, Southeastern Welcome Center director Sabrina Hodges and Long Beach mayor Joan Altman.

The flotilla winners in the sailboat category were: first, George Moore's Miss Good Night; second, Charles and Miffy Williams' Why Don't We?; third, Rick Johnstone's Voltaire.

Winners in the powerboat category were: first, Jimmy and Kaye Lamb's Entropy; second, Robert Creech's S.C.s.

Flotilla judges included Lynne Repscha of Lynne's Hallmark and Treasure Room and Miss Brunswick County, Crystal Williams.

The Brunswick County Home Builders Association donated this miniature house to the Experimental Aircraft Association and the Brunswick County Airport to auction on December 20. All of the money generated by the auction will benefit local children in need during the holidays.

Miniature house may build funds for needy

As a fund-raising project to benefit needy children in this area, the Brunswick County Home Builders Association has donated a miniature house to Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 939 and the Brunswick County Airport to auction. All proceeds will be donated to local children who need food, clothes and toys for the holidays.

The auction is being held in conjunction with the "See What Santa Sees" flights. For a fee of $15, a pilot will take a child aloft to see what Santa will see as he flies over the child's house. All of the proceeds from these flights will be donated to needy children.

The miniature house will be auctioned at 2 p.m. Sunday, December 20, at the Brunswick County Airport. Airport commissioners say they hope to generate bids of up to $300. The playhouse will be delivered to the highest bidder by December 25.

Members of the public are invited to stop by the airport and see the miniature house. Some may have already seen it in the Oak Island Christmas-By-the-Sea parade.

The house was built by Ted S. Wood, Jr., William Rainwater and Jay Astoske. Materials were donated by Southport Pelican Building Center.

Tutor instruction

Brunswick County Literacy Council will sponsor a free tutor training workshop in Leland in January.

The workshop will be held on Saturday, January 9, and Saturday, January 16, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day. Trainer Rich Dixon will lead the workshop, which will be at Goshen Baptist Church.

Upon completion of the workshop participants will be certified tutors in the one-on-one, phonics-based Laubach Way to Reading. Tutors will be matched with students who have contacted the literacy council. The Brunswick County Literacy Council provides free one-on-one lessons to adults and teens who want to improve their reading and writing skills.

Persons should call 754-7323 to pre-register for the workshop or for more information about Brunswick County Literacy Council.
