

Golf with Phil

Many golfers end up shifting most of their body weight onto the left foot as the club is swung back, and reverse their weight onto the right foot as an attempt is made to make a forward swing.

This action is called a "reverse pivot" and is very detrimental to a good golf swing.

Among many problems that are caused by this action are no follow-through, an outside-to-in swing path, falling backwards, hitting behind the ball and no lower body turn. The following two drills are recommended to cure a reverse pivot.

1. Hit balls on an upslope. (This drill helps you transfer your weight onto your right foot on the backswing.)

Find an upslope. Hit balls, maintaining a smooth rhythm at all times. Note that, on the backswing, gravity tends to make you shift the majority of your weight onto your right foot. This is what the weight shift should feel like when you are playing off level lies.

2. Walk through the shot to cure a reverse pivot. (This makes it impossible to finish with your weight on your right side.)

Tee a ball to increase your chances of making solid contact. Using an iron, assume your normal address position and make a conventional backswing. Just after impact on the downswing, step down the fairway with your right foot. A number of fine professionals, including Chi Chi Rodriguez and Gary Player, make the move as part of their normal swing. It not only prevents a reverse pivot but helps you obtain a full release with your body as well as with your arms and hands.

If you've felt yourself falling back as you swing forward, try these drills to get yourself shifting and turning toward the target.

At Oak Island Sports Center: On Mondays at 7 p.m. and Saturdays at 9 a.m. a general clinic is given by Phil Buzzelli to help all categories of golfers. Women can get help at 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and seniors can get help at 9 a.m. on Thursdays. Persons may call 457-5105 to sign-up.
