Atlantic City, N. J., Special .- By natorial candidacy of Charles E. the wrecking of a three-coach electric train on the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad Sunday afternoon at in the submerged coaches.

The disaster, the worst that has happened since the terrible Meadow wreck of July 30, 1896, occurred at half-past 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The train, made up of three heavy coaches, which left Camden at 1 o'clock in the afternoon carried at least 88 passengers, as that number of tickets are held by the conductor. That official is uncertain, however, just how many passengers were on the train, and until all the bodies have been taken from the submerged cars, it will not be possible to give the true figures of the dead.

Recuers Could Do Little.

The accident was witnessed by was promptly sent from Atlantic City. Little could be done, however, towards saving the lives of those imprisoned in the submerged coaches. The water at the point where the train plunged in was not deep enough o cover the coaches at first, but as they quickly settled in the mud, and as the tide rose, they were soon hid den from sight except for the trolley poles. Divers were sent down to try to reach the dead bedies in the coachs, but as darkness set in and as the ide ran more swiftly, they were unable for a long time to reach them. Late in the evening a wrecking crew arrived on the scene and with their and and the use of a derrick, a dozen or more bodies were taken out and brought to the city. Of the 25 bodies, about 20 have been identified, and it is believed no difficulty will be experienced in establishing the identity of the others.

General Manager W. W. Atterbury of the Pernsylvania Railroad Comany, arrived on the scene and will make a thorough investigation into the cause of the accident. Until this statement.
