Premonition Led to Boy's Deathbed

Elderly Woman Did Not Even Know That Her Grandson Had Been Taken Ill.

A Case of Weird Telepathy.

Nashville, Ill.—An intuition which she describes as mental telepathy, took Mrs. Louise Thies, sixty-four years old, from her home in St. Louis to the bedside of her dying grandson, Henry Hollman, at Cordes Station, a hamlet eight miles south of Nashville, Ill. To reach his bedside just before he died, Mrs. Thies, having missed a train at Coulterville, walked the remaining twelve miles of her journey along the railroad tracks.

"I was at the house of my daughter, Mrs. Gus Tubbsing, No. 4313 North Fourteenth street in St. Louis, when this inspiration or telepathic feeling first struck me," she said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent. "I was seated in one of the rooms by myself, with nothing specially occupying my attention, when my mind wandered off into a reminiscent mood. All of a sudden it transferred itself to thoughts of my son, Henry, and family. It was then that the remarkable part came.

"We had received no word of my grandson's illness, in fact his own parents had no idea that he was ill. Dr. J. J. ... of Nashville, who was called to treat him shortly before he died, stated that he was one of the most healthy looking child of several of the family. He was afflicted with diabetes, but it developed so fast that he was only seriously ill a short time before his death.

"It suddenly occurred to me that I was needed at the Hollman home. Every attempt to shake this thought proved fruitless. The idea clung to me. Finally it became so strong I decided that I must go there. So I advised the members of my daughters family and on the next morning started on my journey.

"I boarded an Illinois Central train at Union Station, which was to take me to Coulterville, Ill., where I was to change cars and board the Illinois Southern train for Cordes Station. Upon reaching Coulterville I found the train I desired had left and there would be no other train until late at night. My desire to reach the home of my son became still stronger. I decided to make the rest of the way afoot.

"I was weighed down with two valises, weighing about fifty pounds, and these added to the burden of my journey. I had been to Cordes Station several times before, and had a general knowledge of where it was, but really had no conception of what twelve miles of travel over a gravel railroad bed meant.

The Road to Success.

has many obstructions, but none so desperate as poor health. Success today demands health, but Electric Bitters is the greatest health builder the world has ever known. It compels perfect action of the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, purifies and enriches the blood, and tones and invigorates the whole system. Vigorous body and keen brain follow their use. You can't afford to slight Electric Bitters if you are weak, run-down or sickly. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Asheboro Drug Co.

WHY EDITORS MAKE MISTAKES.

The editor of a local paper is often unjustly censured for his mistakes. The wonder of it is that he does not make more of them. On the average paper he must deal with all kinds of subjects, give names, dates, etc. One hour he may be engaged in reporting a religious meeting and the next drawing the picture of a fight. He must condense and fill his items several columns, whether events are transpiring to throw up material for his use or not. Count the local items in a paper and imagine how many steps they have required, how much mental anxiety worry and work they have cost and some idea of the editor's work can be gathered. The smallest may have cost him a long walk and much effort to reach the facts. There is no end to his work. When one paper goes to press he turns his attention to the next one. He makes the rounds in search of news and may not get a line. From some he must get news without their knowing it, drawing them into conversation and obtaining what he wants in sections. He may labor for hours in chasing down a rumor only to find that here is nothing in it. His local columns stare him in the face and demand to be filled not with skim milk but with cream of the news events and matters of interest. His bounds are limited yet he must find each day and all through the week, month and year something of interest to the public. No more perfect treadmill could be devised. With such a constant strain, producing weariness of the body and mind and an almost endless variety of subjects to be touched upon, is it surprising that he should occasionally make a mistake? Other people do why shouldn't an editor?—Aurora.

Better Farming Methods.

"I wish I could live to enjoy the development that modern scientific methods of farming will bring to this country within the next decade, but I am too old to enjoy much of it," said an aged farmer of Anson county the other day. "Why," he continued there is a young man in my neighborhood who will make this year as much corn on one acre of ground as his father made on a two horse farm, and he is doing it on sandy soil—the kind that was formerly considered as not being adapted to corn." It is said that it is hard to teach an old dog new tricks. It is also hard to teach an old farmer the new way of farming. This saying is verified in the fact that it is the younger farmers who are taking the lead out of the old beaten paths into the new way. There are exceptions, however, now and then. I saw an aged farmer the other day who accepted the teachings of modern agriculture and had reduced his corn acreage to three acres from which he gets a yield of 75 bushels per acre, or 225 bushels on the three acres. He used to have to cultivate 15 acres to get 225 bushels.

Go With a Rush.

The demand for that wonderful Stomach, Liver and Kidney cure, Dr. King's New Life Pills, is astounding Asheboro Drug Co. say they never saw the like. Its because they never fail to cure Sour Stomach, Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Jaundice, Sick Headache, Chills and Malaria. Only 25c.

The Mothers of Men.

[By Newman Weeks in Philadelphia Press.]

Back of all the great men of the world there have been noble and self-sacrificing mothers. The great Daniel Webster's mother was seldom ever heard outside the family home. Her chief desire was to be a home-maker. She was a tall, dark woman, slow of movement, sparing in speech. Just think of that flirting fairy, or that ball-room belle. Well she was a decided contrast, she went around her house in a dark woolen dress, with no ornaments or superfluities. She stirred her hasty-pudding or bean porridge with all the solemn majesty of Charlotte Cushman as "Meg Merrilies," and then with a mighty wooden spoon, she ladled it forth, and it was "Dan, take this!" and "Zeke, you can have that!"

When they had eaten enough the large pot was put away, and the knitting taken out, while the boys played at bringing the ants and woodchucks into court and putting them on trial for their lives. I think that, like Mary in the Scriptures, she must have pondered much in her heart.

Who can imagine a woman like that waltzing, or playing the piano, or putting on a fichu or pull-back dress? Yet she was the mother of America's greatest orator.

Nothing in life more crowns a woman with honor than the devotion of a son to a mother. I never knew a boy to turn out badly who began by falling in love with his mother. Such a boy will ever love a wife in the serene leaf of Autumn.

Improve the Highways.

Those counties which have no macadam roads and which are not joining in the general good roads movement will soon find themselves left far behind in the march of progress their neighbors are making. The good roads idea has come in this part of the country to stay. It is no sudden spurt of fancy, no fad of the day. The people who use the highways have learned the difference in results between good and bad ones and they have determined to have the former and are willing to tax themselves to secure them. Every county in the State which has not a system of macadam roads should at once form a good roads association to push the work of improving the highways. The people in those counties in which it is not done will, in time to come, regret their indifference in this matter.—Charlotte Observer.

Cost of Railroad Ties.

The railroads of this country are each year calling for more crossties, and they are rapidly shrinking in number and increasing in cost. The total number of ties purchased in 1907 was 153,699,920, an increase of 50,865,578 over 1906. The total cost of the crossties purchased in 1907 was $78,958,895, and average of 51 cents a tie. The increase in total cost was therefore, $30,139,571 or 61.7 per cent. For 1907 the highest average cost, 59 cents was reported for redwood ties. Many experiments have been made with metal ties, with a view of finding a substitute for wood, but nothing satisfactory has yet been produced. Several of the leading roads have large tracts of trees growing, and man in a dozen years or more may be able to supply their own wants. Growing trees on railroad land seems to be the most practical way to provide for the future.

THE PRESS, THE FARMERS BEST FRIEND.

In a public meeting in Alabama recently a member of the Farmer's Union, spoke right out and told his audience who he considered the farmers best friend, and gave some wholesome advice. Said he:

"As a rule the farmer has no firmer friend than the press. The home paper is distinctly the farmer's own paper, supported directly and indirectly by farmers, who compose the backbone of the subscription list of the printer and largely for what the enterprising merchant advertises. Now, brother let us not forget our friends. Let us see that our subscription is paid a year in advance. We can do it.

"The man or paper that fights my battles shall have my support. Another thing, the merchants advertising are the ones that make it possible for us to get a good local paper. The man or local firm that is too penurious to advertise and help support the local press has no right to the farmer's patronage.

"I promise hereafter to go to the live advertisers and the man who does his share in supporting the local press, thus contributing to my support, rather than buy of a man who proposes to take all and give nothing back. If farmers as a class would support their friends, the other would fellow soon go out of business."—The Times, (Florence, Ala.)

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God, in his inscrutable Providence has removed from our midst to the Heavenly temple, our brother, Rev. W. C. Hammer, in the seventy third year of his age, and for many years a faithful and consistent member of Balfour Lodge No. 183. A. F. & A. M.

Therefore, be it resolved that in the demise of Bro. Hammer, the State, this Brotherhood, the Church and community, loses a valued and highly respected citizen.

The life of deceased brother was replete with honest endeavor to leave his impress for good in the world. In this he was eminently successful. May his life prove an inspiration to the members of our order, and awaken a greater zeal for right living, and a closer walk with the Grand Master of the Temple Eternal, in the region of unending bliss.

Resolved further: that a copy of this record, be published in "Our Church Record," "The Ashboro Courier," "The Bulletin," and the "Orphans Friend," and that a copy of each be filed among the records of this Lodge.

Are Your Kidneys Sick?

If you want to get well and stay well you must make the Kidneys well. The Kidneys are the most important organs in the body: they do the most work and as a consequence get out of order quickest.

You cannot run a great piece of machinery without attention of some kind. Neither can you expect to have good health if you fail to look after your Kidney Machinery.

The blood passes through the Kidneys thousands of times a day, as often as through the heart, and this is going on every minute of our lives.

If the Kidneys are well they filter just so much blood, but if they are sick or weak from any cause they leave the poison in the blood, and this poison poisons the entire system.

When you consider their great work and the ease with which they become deranged, can you wonder at ill-health, and sickness?

Can you wonder at the alarming increase and prevalence of Kidney trouble?
Bloodine cures all Kidney, Liver, Bladder, and Blood Disorders.
