Profit in Apple Growing.

Charlotte Observer.

North Carolina as an apple State is the subject of an interesting article in the last issue of The Lenoir News. It says "the few experiments which have been tried in the sensible and scientific culture of apple in western North Carolina prove this section of country to be especially well adapted to the growing of fine fruits." We know that as a rule the farmers and owners of orchards in the mountain section of the State do not pay proper attention to their orchard or observe the necessary care in harvesting the fruit and preparing it for market; but we are surprised that The News should class as a "few experiments" what is being done in the way of advancing this branch of horticulture. We were under the impression that many owners of orchards had learned "sensible and scientific culture" and proper handling of this fruit to be necessary in making this industry remunerative. We are fully convinced, however, that the knowledge of such facts is rapidly spreading among western North Carolinians. They are learning it from self-experience and observation of results obtained by those who do observe the rules. Progress is shown by the fact, recalled by The News, that "North Carolina took no less than 25 prizes and medals at the recent apple show at Council Bluffs, Ia., and these prizes all came to western North Carolina."

The News says that "one Caldwell man recently told us that his crop, which yielded $400 or over, the past year, was gathered from the trees that could be planted on an acre of land." It asks: "What other crop of such value could be grown on a single acre with as little work?" The man who did this, of course, takes care of his trees, and gathers and markets his fruit with care. He does not shake the apples down and scoop them up from the ground and ship them in bulk, but sorts them and packs them carefully, so that when they reach their destination they will make an inviting appearance. There is much in this.

Of an orchard properly planted and carefully tended The News says "an acre will accommodate two hundred trees and if these are good thrifty trees and given proper attention and culture, they will begin bearing at five years of age, and at seven years they should yield from two to five bushels each." Making his own calculation at minimum prices, the reader will see that such an orchard becomes profitable from the year of first bearing. It shows that an orchard of a few acres from the time of bearing would become an ever-increasingly remunerative piece of property.

These are plain facts which can be demonstrated by any man in western North Carolina, who will take the trouble to experiment with them. Why, then, should not apple growing be made a profitable industry with the people of this section? It most assuredly can be if they will undertake it.

Where Wire Must Remain Silent.
Greensboro Telegram.

The Korean woman who speaks or even nods on her wedding day immediately loses caste. Nei her threats nor prayers must move her, for the whole household is ever on the alert to catch a single muttered syllable. Her period of silence often lasts for a week or more, and then complete silence is broken she only uses her tongue for most necessary purposes.

Some sixty years ago a native of Pennsylvania undertook for a wager of $50 to remain mute for the first month of her marriage. Her husband, not being in the secret, left her only to return later when apprised of the reason of her silence.

A Brussels couple named Dupont quarreled so bitterly on their wedding day that the wife vowed that her husband should never hear her voice again. His entreaties went for nothing, and to her dying day she kept the letter of her oath.

A Brun woman whose husband was in hiding from the authorities, inadvertently betrayed his whereabouts to a police spy. As a result the man was taken and received a term of imprisonment. So much did she take to heart this misfortune brought about by her gossip, that she resolved to remain mute to the end of her life.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling in an muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all Druggists.

Bottling Bee Stings.

The honey bee is commencing to figure quite largely in the medical world. There is an increasing demand for bee stings among homeopaths. This is a new feature connected with bee culture and it is hoped it will develop into a profitable business. I have supplied several large New York druggists with this product.

The medicine is a combination of formic acid or bee poison and alcohol, and is called by the profession "tincture of virus." The pharmacist is generally a good mixer of medicines, but in this case prefers the bee culturist to be the chemist. The solution is made in the following way:

The bees are taken from the hive and put into a large bottle, which is filled about two-thirds full. The month of the bottle is then covered with a piece of cheesecloth to prevent the bees crawling out. It must be understood that the bees are alive and exceedingly vigorous.

The bottle is then severely shaken and the bees agitated in order to make them exert their stings, on the end of which are tiny drops of acid. The alcohol is immediately poured over them, the bees are killed almost instantly, and the poison is collected.

The bottle is then shipped to the druggist, who does the rest. After the solution is strained it is ready for use. It is administered for inflammatory rheumatism, Bright's disease and kindred maladies.

Why Salves Fail to Cure Eczema.

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. Judge E. B. Jones, of the Superior Court, is "agin" bull dogs and especially the people who own them and allow them to follow them around. There are some queer people in this world. There are households in this town that are bare of carpets, rugs and other comforts while in the back yard, if not on the street trying to bite someone, are two or three dogs. They are fed if the men, boys or the family go hungry.

THROW OUT THE LINE.

Give the Kidneys Help and Many Asheboro People Will Be Happier.

"Throw out the Line!"—The kidneys need help. They're overworked—can't get the poison filtered out of the blood. They're getting worse every minute.

Will you help them? Doan's Kidney Pills have brought thousands of kidney sufferers back from the verge of despair. Will cure any form of kidney trouble.

Mrs. Mary Brown, Main St., Randolphman, N. C., says: "For several years I suffered a great deal from kidney trouble and though I tried every remedy after remedy, I obtained no permanent relief. I finally heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and they were so highly recommended that I procured a box. I used them as directed and in a short time every symptom of my trouble was disposed of. I have not suffered since. I advise the use of Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint."

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wildshire of Greenville, S. C. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphia it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ill for which it is intended." For sale by all Druggists.

The Span of Life is Lengthening.

Baltimore Sun.

Now that Ibsenism has run its course and theosophy has ceased to delight the groping mind, the baiting of doctors has sprung to first place as a fashionable sport. A thousand or more revolutionary cults, antagonistic in most other respects, come to amiable agreement upon the thesis that the science of medicine is a barbarous and archaic fraud, without the slightest value to humanity or the slightest excuse for its existence in an enlightened age. One party selects surgery as its bugaboo-in-chief and another concentrates its paralogy upon vaccination, but all held to the central doctrine that medication kills more often than it cures.

Meanwhile, the doctors go along in their quiet way, conquering plague after plague, relieving human suffering and extending the span of human life. In ten years they have reduced the death rate in diphtheria, that most terrible of all children's diseases, from 50 to less than 5 per cent. In little more time they have conquered malaria and yellow fever, and prepared the way for a conquest of tuberculosis, pneumonia and cancer still evade them, but meningitis, typhoid and smallpox and cholera are fast disappearing. Every year the surgeons grow bolder and more skillful. Sometimes, true enough, they seem a bit too venturesome, but that seeming is often only seeming. For every useless operation they probably perform a thousand that save life or prolong it, or reduce its miseries.

According to Dr. W. S. Rankin, of the North Carolina Board of Health, the life of the average man has been extended no less than 10 years in the past century. A generation or two ago the average length of life in civilized communities was rather less than 30 years. Today it is well beyond 35. In some of the big European cities the very accurate birth and mortality returns prove it to be nearly 45. In another century it may advance to 60 or even 70, for each year's gain is larger than the gain of the year before.

For those gains the hard-working doctor must be thanked. In the face of indifference, ignorance and violent opposition they have gone on their way, doing service to humanity which no figure, however enormous, can ever fairly represent.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Swartout, of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all Druggists.
