Progress in Campaign Against Hookworm.

The number of cases of hookworm disease reported as treated by physicians has grown during the past twelve months from 3,250 to 21,000; the number of doctors treating the disease from 183 to 597; and the number of people microscopically examined for it in the State Laboratory of Hygiene from 500 to 23,312. Seven thousand two hundred and seventy-six of the latter number were found to have hookworm infection, and 2543 showed others of the eight intestinal parasites. Thirty-one per cent of the 23,312 examined showed hookworm infection. Of the number examined, 1,000 were State troops, 1,000 were orphans, 1,000 children in the State schools for the blind, deaf and dumb, and the reformatory. Nearly 1,000 insanes have been examined. The other 19,000 are largely made up of public school children taken at random.

News of The Sand Hills,

Southern Pines, June.—The succession of severe storms has broken down so many Postal Telegraph wires that the construction of the new line into Southern Pines has been delayed and the Postal is not yet ready for business here. It is expected that the wires will be working in a few days, if no more accidents occur.

The man who owns a dog in this section of the sandhills will contribute a dollar to the tax man, but that does not prevent the slaughter of sheep by dogs. In the past few weeks almost a hundred sheep have been killed down in the James creek country, and if they can be caught some dogs will not be on hand when the tax man comes around this year. The farmers complain that the sheep-killing dogs are worrying the cattle, especially the calves and young stock.

The continued showers have assured an excellent corn crop. Corn is vigorous, tall and of an excellent color. The dry weather permitted the farmer to work his crop frequently, and the fields are in fine shape. Cotton is coming nicely, too, and promises to be the biggest crop ever made in this neighborhood.

The drouth has been severe on the rabbits, cutting off their supply of early vegetables, and the way they are ravaging the field crops and the little garden stuff that escaped the drouth is scandalous. They clean up cabbages, beans, melon vines, sweet potato plants and everything eatable. Such a scourge of rabbits was never known here before.

The cow-pea crop is coming up in the most satisfactory shape. More peas planted this year than usual, and earlier. The drouth, by allowing farmers to work their crops, enabled them to keep up with their work better than usual.—Charlotte Observer.

How to Beautify the Plainest Complexion.

"The growing popularity of face lotions is in keeping with our natural progress," says a well-known beauty writer, "and before long they will have supplanted powders and cosmetics."

"A very fine lotion can be prepared at little cost by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch-hazel. This, applied to the skin daily, frees it of pimples, blackheads or other blemishes, and will give to the 'muddy' or lifeless complexion a rich embellishment and natural health-tint impossible with powder or rouge."

"This mayatone lotion is greaseless and prevents the growth of hairs. Many women use it to prevent tan and it is employed to protect the skin from harsh winds and changing weather."

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Civic Loss Through School Sickness.

By DR. LEONARD P. AYRES

Figures from Germany, England, Sweden and seven American cities indicate that in the average city school system the children who are in need of such treatment as that afforded by the open air schools constitute from 3 to 5 per cent of the entire school membership. This means that Albany, for example, should have open air schools in sufficient numbers to care for 300 children, while New York city needs accommodations for 20,000.

When such figures as these are mentioned the objection of expense looms high at once, but it must not be forgotten when we are considering expense that a thousand children of school age die each year of tuberculosis in New York city. On the average they have each had about six years of schooling, for which the city has paid about $250. This means a quarter of a million dollars loss each year in the great city in money expended on educating children who die of tuberculosis before growing up. A quarter of a million dollars a year spent in open air schools designed to prevent this frightful waste would go far toward meeting the entire expense.

AVOID LAWSUITS.

People Who Waste Dollars Gain a Few Cents.

The Progressive Farmer last week printed a sensible article on the folly of lawsuits. It advises its readers that whatever they do they should not get into a lawsuit over some trifling disagreement with a neighbor. The Progressive Farmer but states the truth when it says the courts are full of suits which could have been settled by mutual concession or by arbitration to the great advantage of all parties except the lawyers in the case. Just the other day a suit was decided after two or three years of expense and worry on the part of two families. It was over a disputed line, as so many suits are, and the land in dispute was probably not worth $50. The suit cost the winner $225, and the loser being taxed with the costs, necessarily had more to pay. It is probable that each party spent at least $100 worth of time monkeying with the case. Another case recently noticed is where a farmer had a right to get water from a spring on a neighbor's land. He wanted to build a spring-house, the owner objected. The first man had got along without a spring-house for years, it would not have damaged the land-owner a penny, yet an injunction has been issued and a lawsuit is on. Each party will probably spend several hundred dollars and be no better off, and the old friendliness of the neighborhood will be a thing of the past. The Progressive Farmer concludes that to begin a suit in court over such trivial matters which could easily be adjusted by a little give and take, is not only the poorest sort of business policy—a case of wasting certain dollars to gain possible cents—but also a crime against the community and a foolish waste of the best part of life. For what shall it profit a man to gain a needless lawsuit only to lose the good will of his neighbors and his own friendliness toward them?—Charlotte Chronicle.

A Letter to the People of North Carolina.

There are many thousands of your people now in the West and Northwest. The address of everyone of them is known to some of you. We are making a strong effort to induce them to come "back home" where they can aid in the development of their own country, thus helping you and benefitting themselves. There are millions of acres of idle land in your state which will remain idle until you get more people. The best people you can get are those your state has sent to the West. The "Back Home" movement has already induced many Southerners to come back to the South, and it will surely bring them back to your state if you will but do your share by sending us their names. This newspaper is already doing its part, so it's up to you not somebody else, but you personally. Sit down right now and send me the names of all you can remember, then hand this paper to someone else to do likewise. Thousands of names are coming in, but we want to reach everyone of the millions who have gone from the South in the past twenty years. Will you not help?

W. D. Roberts,
 Johnson City, Tenn.,
 Sec. "Back Home" Association.

Mrs. J. Harper Johnson died at her home in High Point June 18, aged 79 years. She is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. Dr. W. G. Bradshaw, and Mrs. O. E. Kearns, of High Point, and Mrs. Cranford Wilson, of Florida. The funeral services were held Tuesday by Rev. J. H. Barnhart and Rev. S. H. Hilliard and the interment made in the city cemetery.

Waiting for the Other Fellow.

"The gods help those who help themselves."

The Wilmington Star writes sensibly about Wilmington people putting their shoulder to the wheel and pushing and tells the fable of the ancient whose cart got stuck in the rut. It was not the Appian way, which is a paved good road that was built 312 B. C., and was famed throughout Rome and is famous today. This ancient teamster doubtless was trudging along on just such execrable roads as run through some North Carolina counties that have not been poked by the hornet of progress. Says the Star:

"In great distress over loss of time because he was stuck fast on an execrable road and couldn't get to market with his load or could not get to some great feast or the Olympic games, as might have been the case, the ancient did not fall to swearing or cursing, but began loudly appealing to the gods. Raising his hands over his head and crying out, alternately beating his breast in his great perturbation, he shouted aloud to the gods to get his vehicle out of trouble and put it in commission so he could go on down the pike."

While this foolish fellow was bewailing his fate waiting for the gods to help him, a practical stranger came along and said: "Put your shoulder to the wheel and push! The gods help those who help themselves!" By putting his shoulder to the wheel and giving his aid the wagon moved on. Quoting farther from the Star:

"He accomplished something because he quit depending on others. He quit waiting for the other fellow. He got a move on himself and he owed a vote of thanks to the original booster who, we claim, emphasized the potentiality of 'push.'"

"The probability is that the old mossback who had to wait to be told to put his shoulder to the wheel was opposed to voting good roads bonds and the time he lost, or its equivalent in cash, would have paid his road tax for two or three years. Be that as it may, he belonged to the class who wait for the other fellow. He wanted the gods to do for him what he could and should have done for himself. He had no initiative. He fell down on his opportunity to put his shoulder to the wheel and push. The gods may have answered back to his imprecations and told him to get a move on him, but in paraphrasing the fable, we have the right to give our own version of it in order to introduce the booster who illustrated the power behind the 'push.'"

Yes, to use an expression from the Star, "Home investors give confidence to new comers and it gives an industry a local standing that is desirable."

The Star's article is so much to the point according to our judgment, that we quote further and commend the sensible views expressed to the citizens of Asheboro, and especially to our Chamber of Commerce:

"With local investors interested, an industry is not allowed to shift for itself, but it has home people directly interested in its welfare and success. The influence of home capital will be exerted in behalf of an industry in getting business for it, and in many respects it gives to the industry a hold in the State and other States that is altogether desirable and necessary."

"The reason why Wilmington may as well make up its mind to put home capital into industries is because it will have to do it in competition with other cities. Hundreds of cities are inviting industries, and inducing industries and reducing industries. They are out offering capital as an inducement and so some are actually invading manufacturing centers and offering established industries increased capital and even free gifts of large funds in order to induce them to move. Cities are making attractive offers and it is those offers that are being accepted. That is the reason why Wilmington will have to do the same—either induce, cooperate, or establish industries with its own capital."

"Very few industries are going to move without some great inducement or overwhelming superiority of location. Many cities are also in it with fine adaptabilities and inducements for manufacturers, so promoters have many locations from which to choose. Naturally they are going where inducements and opportunities combine in an appealing way."

"We can advertise all we want, but unless we have a definite plan for establishing industries it will simply be throwing money to the winds. Indefinite, entertaining publicity without a plan simply receives passing notice, but it is the definite plan and proposition that will bring results. It will bring them. We needn't advertise till we get our Plans and our Propositions ready, and can talk business in a burry when we have a meritorious proposition on the

Why Home Merchants Lose.

A great deal of money yearly goes out of every community to the large mail order houses for goods that could be bought of the home merchant as cheaply and of the same quality. It is easy enough to understand why. The mail order houses advertise everything they sell by pictures, description and price. That appeals to the customer and he purchases regardless of distance. If the home merchants would buy a given space and through that familiarize the people with what they have and make it attractive as the mail order houses do this condition would be changed. The mail order house could not at so great a distance compete with the merchant on the grounds. He knows that it is through advertising alone the mail order house exists.—Troy Montgomerian.

The Good Roads Spirit is General.

Permanent road improvement is the slogan of the south Georgia counties now. The movement is growing in strength every day and is backed by some of the most practical, successful business men in the wiregrass.

A network of good roads, extending all over south Georgia, constructed according to methods that have proved successful in other states, will be planned and will prove an immense aid in the development of this section.—Waycross Ga. Journal.

All over the country permanent road improvement is occupying much of the attention of the farmers and business men. The tide is growing rapidly and means more for this great nation than many will admit.—Troy Montgomerian.

Wonders of the Sun.

When bees swarm they are led by a queen. So the sun mid-heavens journeys through space followed by a family of worlds, but he is many times larger than all of them put together. His heat is so great as to be oppressive at a distance of 93,000,000 miles. What must it be close up? The temperature of his surface is 18,000 degrees Fahrenheit, while 100 degrees is almost unbearable to us. The burning at once of 11 quadrillions 600,000 millions of tons of coal would not produce the sun's heat given on every second. The light afforded by him every second is equal to 1, 575,000,000,000,000,000,000 millions of wax candles. From him this inconceivable mass of heat and light has been streaming every second without any perceptible change for thousands and thousands of years. The noise and roar in the sun, caused by oceans of flame rushing up to the surface and plunging down to the center would kill a man at a distance of 10,000 miles. In 1892 a hole opened on its surface 92,000 miles long and 62,000 miles wide. It remained open for months. Seventy worlds as big as the earth would not have plugged up its mouth. The sun does not rotate as a whole. Different parts have different periods. At the equator he turns over in twenty-five days. Half way thence to his pole he turns over in twenty-seven and one-half days, producing the wildest confusion and uproar amid the limitless oceans of fire on his surface. A clock ticks 86,400 times in a day. To tick as many times as the miles the sun is distant from us a clock would require to run three years. You can travel around the world in sixty days. At this rate on a journey to the sun you would be 605 years old on your arrival, if you started as an infant.
