

THE COURIER

ISSUED WEEKLY

PRINCIPLES, NOT MEN

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

VOL. 39

Asheboro, N. C., Thursday, September, 10, 1914

No. 36

SUPERIOR COURT

LARGE CROWDS IN ATTENDANCE—CASES BEING RAPIDLY DISPOSED OF—SESSION NOT LIKELY TO BE VERY LONG

The regular September term of Randolph Superior Court convened Monday morning, the 7th, with Judge W. J. Adams presiding. At this season of the year the farmers are not very busy and big crowds have been attending every day.

The following men compose the grand jury: T. J. Arnold, J. E. Frazier, Charles Callicott, H. D. Smith, I. H. Foust, H. L. Johnson, A. P. Davis, C. Y. Welch, Cyrus Royals, W. H. Hardin, T. P. Lassiter, J. T. Wood, E. M. Gattlin, D. D. Chisaco, Daniel Bulla. The petit jury is as follows: G. R. Sumner, Geo. Lamb, A. C. Lowdermilk, Ed McGee, G. E. Carter, John A. Davis, W. T. Ledwell, Irvin Arnold, T. A. Slack.

Solicitor Hayden Clement, of Salisbury, is present. Mr. C. T. Luck was made officer of the grand jury and Mr. J. T. Wood was selected as foreman. As usual Judge Adams' charge to the jury was full of good sound advice and should have been heard, especially, by every voter in the county.

Many cases for retailing, betting at cards, etc., have been continued, while a number have been disposed of as follows: State vs Gilmer Hoskins, judgment suspended on payment of one-half costs; Victor Barnes and Shube Causey, affray. The jury returned the verdict that the defendant Causey was guilty of an assault with a deadly weapon and that the defendant Barnes was guilty of a simple assault. Causey was fined $25 and Barnes $10.00; Lum Lamb and Sam Hooker, affray, suspended upon payment of one-half costs and full solicitor's fees; Shelly Coble, Dennis Fields, Walter York and Peb York, nuisance, defendants not guilty as charged in bill of indictment; Ki Previo and Gurney McDendall, larceny and receiving, the jury returned a verdict of guilty; Benny Pierce, carrying concealed weapon, guilty; Earl Osborne gambling, defendant plead guilty and gave $100 bond for his appearance at the December, 1915, term of court; Zeb Ruah, gambling, defendant plead guilty and gave bond for his appearance at the December, 1915, term of court; Gurney Tysinger, assault on a woman, defendant plead guilty and was given eight months on the public roads of Randolph county; Gurney Tysinger, immoral conduct, sixty days on Randolph road, to begin at end of first sentence; John Way, assault with deadly weapon, defendant plead guilty, and was sentenced to eight months on the roads of Randolph county; Ellie Ingram, carrying concealed weapon, defendant plead guilty and was given five months on the roads of Randolph county.

Court convened at nine o'clock Tuesday morning and the following cases were disposed of: Alec Isley, affray, judgment suspended upon payment of cost; Thos. Jones, carrying concealed weapon, defendant plead guilty and was fined $10 and costs; Henry Brown and Mary Mack, f and n, Brown plead guilty and was sentenced to ninety days on the Randolph public roads; Jim Fox, retailing, not guilty; Carl Mack, George Hayes and Cicero Spencer, affray, during the progress of the trial a juror was withdrawn and a mistrial ordered; George Franklin, larceny and receiving, the jury returned a verdict of guilty and a sentence of twelve months on the roads was given; Bennie Pierce, larceny and receiving, the jury returned a verdict of guilty; Jim Fox, carrying concealed weapon, defendant plead guilty; Claud Siler and Oliver Siler, larceny and receiving, guilty; John Jordan, larceny and receiving, guilty; Will Spencer, Oscar Williams and Will Balfour, assault with deadly weapon, the jury returned a verdict of guilty; Will Spencer, nuisance, defendant plead guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs; Lindsay Frazier, larceny and receiving, guilty.

The Randolph murder case, in which Isaac Randolph was charged with killing Paul Byars, came up at 2:30. The defendant entered a plea of murder in the second degree which was accepted by the court. A sentence of thirty years at hard labor in the State prison was given. The case drew a large crowd to town and at the time set for the trial the court house was packed.

HEDRICK-PAGE

Their many friends were much surprised Monday morning when it was learned that Mr. Edward L. Hedrick and Miss Gladys Page had been married at the home of the bride on Sunset Avenue at 6 o'clock by Rev. J. E. Thompson and immediately following the ceremony the couple had departed to High Point in an automobile to take the train for Western North Carolina. A few intimate friends were present.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. P. P. Page. She is a popular and accomplished young lady and has many friends throughout this section of the state. The groom is the son of T. H. Hedrick, of Lexington, and has resided here for more than four years and holds a position with the Lexington Grocery Company. Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick will make their home in Asheboro.

HEARD ON THE STREETS

WHAT OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENT HEARS AND THINKS—MATTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST DISCUSSED.

Democratic stock advanced 100 per cent last Saturday.

America! A land of peace and plenty.

Hold your husband by holding your tongue.

When a young man gets fresh it is time to tickle him with a shingle.

Mr. W. T. Morton, of Uwharrie, spent last Friday night in town.

Mr. J. M. Whitehead, of Rameur, was in town Saturday evening.

You can bet the Republicans wish Madam Rumor could get Mr. Caveness out of the race, but may boys.

Fodder pulling is in full force among our farmers, although all the agricultural lecturers advise against pulling fodder.

The Democratic party is the young man's party because it is the party of opportunity and opportunity is what the young man wants.

A movement is on foot for Montgomery county to have a fair next year.

Messrs. Chas. Dorsett and H. C. Royals, of Trinity, were here one day last week.

Messrs. A. N. Bulla and T. A. Compton, of Randleman, were here a short while last week.

Shopping made easy. This might be the slogan of the merchants of Asheboro, for surely no town of this size can boast of so many splendid stores with such magnificent stocks of goods. Shopping made easy is an appropriate slogan for Asheboro merchants.

The Republican leaders of Randolph county are talking to the people like they expect to carry the county, when there is not a ghost of a chance unless the people forget the record of that party which has never given us good government.

The five banks of Randolph county are full of money and are taking care of all who need help in their usual way, and besides, all the cotton mills on Deep River are running full time. The mercantile business is unusually active and the man who is pessimistic about Randolph county should be taken down to Pee Dee River and fed to the catfish.

John M. Caviness, candidate for Clerk of the Court, is among the visitors in Asheboro this week. Mr. Caviness makes friends wherever he goes, especially among the farmers. Some of his enemies have tried to place him in disfavor with the farmers, but Mr. Caviness says the farmers are his best friends and he has every reason to believe they will give him loyal support, and that from now until the election he expects to visit every community in the county. In other words, Mr. Caviness is a born fighter, and never undertakes any thing except with a determination to win, and he is now in the race and will be there to a finish.

Randolph county is fortunate in many ways at the present time. Prices on some of the necessities of life have gone up but our people are generally prosperous and the farming class of the county is in better shape now than at any time since the Civil War. There are larger and better farms, new and better homes, better churches, better school houses and improved roads. The county is developing in a way that means permanent growth. More people own their own homes and farms, more free from the yoke of bondage, unaffected by burdensome debt; more are becoming independent each year by making a comfortable living for their families, more are waking up to the necessity of giving their children better educational advantages and with prosperity and contentment seem to prevail throughout the county. Let progress still be our watchword.

The Republicans of the county met in the court house Saturday to nominate candidates for the various county offices. The crowd in attendance was unusually large and much enthusiasm was manifested. The convention was called to order by Seth W. Laughlin. Mr. Wiley Tally was elected chairman, and Clyde Ellison and Ed Mendenhall secretaries. The following ticket was nominated: For House of Representatives, W. C. Hinshaw; for clerk of the court, F. M. Wright; for register of deeds, C. L. Amick; for sheriff, J. F. Hughes; for treasurer, J. M. Burrow; for coroner, Dr. D. J. Johnson; for surveyor, A. J. Thurber; for commissioners, W. L. Ward, A. B. Coltrane and N. S. Allen. The Republicans and Progressives worked together nicely and everything went as merry as could be expected and in accordance with carefully prepared plans. Mr. C. J. Cox was elected chairman of the county executive committee. Resolutions were adopted calling for a new county home, for increasing the circulation of the Bulletin, for a clean office and the abolition of the treasurer's office and placing county officers on a salary.

Charles G. Dawes, a Chicago banker, and staunch Republican in politics, is reported in a speech made at a banquet recently to have referred to President Wilson in these words: "There is no reason to doubt that the United States will begin a great era of prosperity provided that quiet, anxious, studious, great man, President Wilson, can hold this nation upon the even keel of right in this coming emergency as he has in regard to Mexico." It is almost marvelous, when one thinks of it, what a wonderful hold this "old school teacher" has acquired on the people of this country and the world. God has always raised up a man for the crisis in our national affairs as history recorded. There was Washington and Lincoln and there is a modest cultured student of history and government now in the White House at Washington. It was a time when a man was needed, not a politician, and he was provided in the person of Woodrow Wilson.

DR. STOCKARD DEAD

PROMINENT EDUCATOR, AUTHOR AND POET PASSES AWAY AT RALEIGH—DID MUCH WORK IN ALAMANCE COUNTY

Dr. Henry Jerome Stockard, educator, author and poet, died at his home in Raleigh Saturday at the age of 56 years. The end came quietly after an illness of exactly two weeks, and the funeral was held from the First Presbyterian church.

Dr. Stockard's last public appearance was June 10, when he read a poem at the unveiling of the Herne monument to the women of the Confederacy. A few days before that date Wake Forest College conferred the degree of doctor of literature on him. Dr. Stockard was intensely patriotic and his poems reflect his character. His sonnets have given him lasting fame, it being declared by competent critics that he was without a superior in that field in the whole of America.

Dr. Stockard was a native of Chatham county. He was born there in 1858, on September 15. He was a son of James Gibbs and Mary Johnson Stockard and came from an old Revolutionary stock. His father's family was of German descent and his mother's of Scotch-Irish. His father was a well known farmer and lumber dealer. He took his academic work at the Graham high school and special courses at Chapel Hill. There, encouraged by Dr. Huma, he developed a pronounced talent for poetry. He obtained the degree of A. M. from Elon College and began his work as a teacher.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard was a native of Chatham county. He was born there in 1858, on September 15. He was a son of James Gibbs and Mary Johnson Stockard and came from an old Revolutionary stock. His father's family was of German descent and his mother's of Scotch-Irish. His father was a well known farmer and lumber dealer. He took his academic work at the Graham high school and special courses at Chapel Hill. There, encouraged by Dr. Huma, he developed a pronounced talent for poetry. He obtained the degree of A. M. from Elon College and began his work as a teacher.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

Dr. Stockard had at first some experience teaching in the Alamance schools. He was later made principal of the Graham high school and then county superintendent. Later he was assistant professor of English in the University of North Carolina and then went as professor in the Fredericksburg, Va., college. Later on he was professor of Latin in Peace Institute, thus beginning his career here. He was twice married. The first time in 1878, to Miss Sallie J. Hallieman, and later, in 1890, to Miss Margaret Lula Tate, who survives him.

THE CIRCUS COMING

HOW TO GET THE FULL MEASURE OF ENJOYMENT AFFORDED BY