BOMB INTENDED FOR

PLANTER OF BOMB HIT—VARI-OUS ATTEMPTS TO BLOW UP HOMES OF PROMINENT MEN IN ed as Memorial Day Throughout DIFFERENT PARTS OF COUN- France.

day night through the planting of a ence to make an address in the Amerof the Palmer residence in the fashionable northwest portion of Washington Mr. Palmer and all members of the family were on the second floor

One man, thought to be the planter of the bomb was blown to pieces by the force of the explosion.

Explosions in Other Parts of Country

The home of Just Roxbury Municipal C ton, was severely di plosion of unknown night. No one was the time of the explosion.

Several homes of prominent citizens in Pittsburgh were damaged by explosions the same night. An attempt was made to blow up the home of Mayor Davis, of Cleveland, Ohio, on Monday night. About the same time, a number of persons were injured when a bomb exploded at Lexington avenue and 67th street. One person was reported to have been killed. Attempts were also made to blow up buildings in Patterson, New Jersey; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Newtonville, Mass. on the same night.

Mother of Dead Soldier Seeks Information

The folling letter from the Charlotte Observer of recent date is pub-lished in The Courier with the hope that some member of Co. K or of Co. , the Thomasville company, may be able to give the mother of the dead soldier some desired information: "To the Charlotte Newspaper: Dear Sirs:

In a Charleston paper, the Sunday News, I read that the 120th Infantry, of the 30th Division was to parade in Charlotte. That was about one month ago. My son, Clan P. McKaskey, was Captain of Co. L, then later of Co. K, 120th Infantry, and was killed in action October 10, leading his men.

"If you have some of the papers on hand giving an account of the parade know of any of these boys belonging that place. to my son's company, if you would give them my name or send me theirs, I was a son of the late Calvin and Ma-who was with my son at the last.

"Very sincerly,
"MRS. A. S. McCASKEY "7337 Emerald Ave., Chicago, Ill." The Observer says:

"Surely the above should be sufficient to cause some one who secured more than one paper of April 17, the morning after the parade, to send this eart-broken mother a copy of The Observer of that date containing facts that mean more to her than they do to those who are simply keeping the papers for their scrap books. The supply The Observer, although dreds of extra papers were published, was soon exhausted, and sums all the way from 10 cents to a dollar were offered for papers of that date.

"And if the boys of the 120th would write to Mrs. McCaskey, the" would be doing just about as kindly an act as could be thought of .. Let the thought, "supose that was my mother," come, and act accordingly.

Colonel Minor's address is Durham, N. C., his full name, Sidney W. Minor. Lieutenant McKaskey, was formerly lieutenant in Co. L. of Thomasville, North Carolina. On September 30, 1918 the day folling the teath of Capt. B. F. Dixon in the battle of Cambria, Lieutenant McCaskey was transfered from Co. L. to Co. K. He commanded the latter company till Oct. 10, when he was killed in action leading the Asheboro company. He and his company went over the top on October 9, and again over the top on October 9, and again on October 10, when Lieut. McKaskey lost his life near Assigny, France.

The young soldier is said to have been very popular with his men, in fact one of the best liked of officers. If any member of Co. K or Co. L will write the sad-hearted mother, giving her any information as to the last days of her gallant son it will, no doubt, be much appreciated. Mrs. McKaskey's address is given above.

Recipe for Mad Dog Bite

Mrs. S. E. Rush, of this town, sends in the following recipe, which is said to be a sure cure for mad dog bite. Following is the remedy:

Take immediately warm vinegar or tepid water and wach the wean! clean therewith; then cry the wind and rour upon it a few drops of hydrocloric acid. Mineral poisons destroy the pois i of the salirs.

This remedy was given by a Saxon forester named Golstell, then (1866) aged 82, in a Leipsie journal. He claimed that for forty years he had used it successfully on human beings

The judge shall investigate the case in chambers, sit-ting anywhere in the county he may deem convenient, and after finding out all he can about the circumstances of the child's life, make such disposition as he deems best for the welfare, dis-cipline, and training of the child. In no case can a child of tender years be imprisoned with old criminals nor be put on a chain gang. He shall be committed to the care of a suitable institution, put under the supervision of a probation officer or private person, who shall from time to time make report to the court as to his charge. A child under sixteen can no longer be tried in a Recorder's court except in a city of over ten thousand population or in a town of five thousand population which is not a county seat town, in which cities and towns a real juvenile court is established in accordance with the full provisions of the law. All other cases come before the clerk of the su-

It will be seen at once that the activities of the juvenile court and the probation officer are not limited to children who actually violate some law, but extend to every child who is in need of care which should be, but is not, furnished by parents or guardians. This is the most progressive and humane step that has been taken in court procedure in this State in many, many years.
