THE LABOR TROUBLES

There is still a deadlock in the labor forces in High Point. Forty-eight factories are shut down and have been for two weeks. Manufacturers remain firm in refusing to deal with the labor unions through their representatives.

Both sides, it seems, are determined not to yield. This is a matter in which the state cannot, and probably will not attempt to interfere, but the Charlotte situation is quite different.

The Courier is not herein expressing an opinion as to who is wrong in these labor troubles in High Point or Charlotte, but this much is certain, that the employer who determines not to employ union labor is a back number, and should have no place in industrial affairs of the country.
