COUNTRY'S BEST HOPES

The following is a clipping from an address by Chas. S. Barrett, of the National Farmers' Union, at Greensboro last Tuesday:

"As a result of the perturbed condition of the country, the confidence of the people is reduced to a point of uncertainty which is causing a general feeling of gloom and pessimism. It is our duty to give it without fear."

LENOIR COUNTY DOSE WELL

Marked Reduction in Typhoid Fever
The effectiveness of the Lenoir County Health Department is shown in the fact that there have been only 27 cases and 2 deaths from typhoid fever during the present year; while during 1919 there were 39 cases of typhoid with 2 deaths. For four years before the organization of health department the average was 132 cases with 124 deaths per year. Work against typhoid fever is only one of the activities of the Lenoir Health Department, other units of work being treatment of school children, quarantines of contagious diseases, periodic examinations of adults, and infants welfare work. Dr. T. F. Wickoff, the health officer, has just estimated that the health department has saved the county $120,000.

Lenoir was one of the first counties to organize the Health Department, and is pushing forward; but Randolph County has made a great improvement during the past year. May the work be a blessing in this county.

A Lady in Chicago Telegraphs For Rat-Snap

Read Mrs. Phillips' wire: "You'll be glad to hear that I've just ordered a box of RAT-SNAP. It's the best rat poison I've ever used. It's safe for children and doesn't harm the household. I've used it in my kitchen and it's worked like a charm. I've got rid of all my rats. I'll be glad to send you a box if you like. Write me at once. Love, Mrs. Phillips."

Making Mistakes

When a plumber makes a mistake, he charges twice for it. When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again. When a carpenter makes a mistake, it is just what he expected. When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it. When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land. When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference. But when the Editor makes a mistake, good night!—Exchange.

Trust

The clouds hang heavy round my way, I cannot see. But thru the darkness I believe God leadeth me. 'Tis sweet to keep my hands in His. While all is dim, To close my weary, aching eyes And follow Him. Thru many a thorny path he leads my tired feet. Thru many a path of tears I go, But it is sweet To know that he is close to me, My guide, my guide; He leadeth me, and so I walk quietly satisfied. "MY VISIT TO TENNESSEE"

Following is an account of a little girl's visit to Tennessee. The piece was written in school as a composition by a member of the fifth grade, and was so interesting that I decided to send it for publication, after having made a few changes in the grammatical work. The child was only nine years old when she made the trip, to her good memory deserves praise.—Her Teacher.

My sister, Vestah, and her husband, Charlie, together with their little child, came to visit us. Vestah wanted to stay a month or so, so Charlie went back. Later Vestah and I were ready and started about one o'clock. We stayed on the train all that day and the next day. A woman on the train was very kind, and gave me some paper dolls.

While I was out there we went to Memphis and stayed two or three days at the Crisco Hotel. One evening about dark we went down to the Mississippi River. It was right in town. I was walking along the street looking at the river when Vestah said, "Look there!" I looked and saw that I was about to step on a drunk man lying by the street. He had his eyes closed. We would have gone to ride on the steamboat, but it was about dark.

While we were there we went to the zoo. There they had about every kind of animal anybody could think of. I saw a great big elephant. Then we went on down to a house, where I saw all kinds of snakes in cages. I saw lots of monkeys. They would eat peanuts and chew chewing gum. When we went back home I went to see a friend at Grand Junction. While I was there she gave me a little party I sure did have a nice time down there.

When I started home Charlie took me to Memphis early one morning. We went to the fair and stayed all day. I started home from there that night. I sure was tired so I went to bed right after I got on the train. I got up next morning about six o'clock, and about ten o'clock I had to change trains at Morristown. After changing a man came to me and said, "won't you have to change at Asheville?" I said, "No. He said, 'I believe you will.'" So the next time the conductor came in, I asked him he said, "Yes," so I didn't know what to do, as I didn't have to change there going on. But soon after that I got to talking to a girl. She said she was going to Salisbury, and would have to change trains at Asheville too, so I was all right then. She was real nice to me. When we got to Asheville we went over to the Maryland Hotel for lunch. Then we walked around over town we had to stay there four hours.

My sister was to meet me at Salisbury, and I was supposed to be there that evening at three o'clock, so I didn't get me a birth. But I was about six hours late and was afraid Jessie wouldn't be there, but she was. Then we had to wait for our train to Greensboro, so it was six o'clock a. m. when we got there, and nine o'clock when we got home. I had to sit up all the night before getting home, which was the first time I had ever sat up all night.

As I came home, I went thru seven tunnels, and crossed the Tennessee River and lots more. I went thru Knoxville, Morristown, Old Fort, Asheville, Salisbury and others places. Also passed thru the Black Mountains. I was nine years old when I went out there and never will forget about it. While I was there, my father died. I went in March and stayed until September. I sure did have a good time. Georgia Gray.

PRESIDENT VEToes I. C. C. RATE BILL

Government Would Lose all Powers Which are of Urgent Necessity
President Wilson has vetoed the Interstate Commerce Commission Rate Bill, upon its presentation to him and sent the following message in return to the senate:

"This bill deprives the government of the United States, while still charged with the exclusive responsibility for operating the railroads during federal control, of any power to make change in any intra-state rates, fare, charge classifications, regulation or practice without having first secured the approval of the proper state regulating tribunals, whereas under the federal control act, as originally enacted, the government of the United States has the same power to determine the intra state matters as it had to determine similar matters of an interstate character."

Chairman Cummins of the interstate commerce committee, author of the bill, said it was not likely that and attempt would be made to pass the measure over the President's veto and the rate-making powers of the commission would be restored when the roads were returned to private operation January 1.
