The said election will be held under the law governing general election, except as is otherwise provided by law. This election is called upon petition of reholders in the said district endorsed and approved by the Board of Education of Randolph county.

The meeting adjourned to meet again on Tuesday, April 5, 1921, at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of finishing any other business to come before the board at this meeting for the purpose of meeting with the board of appraisers of 1919-20 as provided by the act of 1921 for the consideration of any business to come before the equalization board.

Equalization Board Meeting

The equalization board for Randolph county as provided for by the Machinery act of 1921, composed of the board of county commissioners and the board of appraisers also met Monday, April 5.

G. L. Robbins, president of the Farmers' Union of Randolph County, presented 15 petitions from the landowners of the various locals in the county asking for not less than 50% reduction of the valuation of land as fixed under the revaluation act.

A. B. Coltrane and others also came before the board asking for a reduction in the valuation of land.

E. C. Blair explained the authority vested in the board of equalization and commissioners and upon a motion made by him and seconded by the board, the board adjourned to meet again on Tuesday, April 12, 1921, at 10 o'clock a. m.

POE EXPLAINS MARKETING PLAN TO FARMERS IN PITT

Editor of Progressive Farmer Delivers Strong Address at Greenville—More Definite and Systematic Plan of Marketing Absolutely Necessary.

The absolute necessity for a definite and systematic way of marketing farm products instead of the old "dumping" process, which has existed among American farmers for years, was set forth in a comprehensive and forceful manner at the courthouse in Greenville, N. C. by Dr. Clarence Poe, of Raleigh editor of the Progressive Farmer, in opening the co-operative marketing campaign in this section of the State. It is absolutely imperative that immediate action be taken to eliminate further reckless dumping of tobacco and cotton on the market," the speaker declared, "or there is little hope that the future will witness any improvement over deplorable conditions of the past."

The address marked the beginning of an extensive campaign to be inaugurated in this country for furthering principles of the co-operative marketing plan, and was heard by a large delegation of farmers, bankers and business men representing every section of the county, who practically filled the court room to overflowing when the meeting was called to order this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Active interest prevailed throughout the entire program and the way co-operative marketing is being received in other parts of the nation as explained by Dr. Poe was listened to with close attention.

Dr. Poe was introduced by Dr. C. O. H. Laughinghouse, of this city, who spoke briefly of the great part which the principal speaker of the evening had played in improving farm conditions and advising the farmer of essential facts connected with the industry. He said the time has come for organized effort and unless every farmer did his part that there is little hope of recovering from present conditions. Dr. Poe was followed by O. F. McCrary, farm demonstrator of this district, who spoke along the same line, urging the acceptance of the marketing plan in order to save the future from bankruptcy and eventual ruin.

Substitute For Dumping

Dr. Poe said the principal object of the co-operative marketing plan is merely to substitute the old policy of "dumping" products on the market with the organized way employed by labor, manufacturing and business organizations. As illustrated, he pointed out the difference between every man offering his product to the market in a blind, reckless manner to that of a body, organized and selling as one. "If every individual man sold his labor or the product of his labor in this way," he declared "it would be exactly similar to the position which the American farmer is today. The merchant or large organization gets in the fields.

FEEDING FARM FLOCK RIGHT KIND OF FOOD IMPORTANT

Feeding the farm flock the right kind of food is important if it is to be a paying proposition. If hens do not get sufficient or proper feed they can not be expected to give satisfactory and profitable results. A complicated ration is not necessary. The aim in feeding the hens should be to use, so far as possible, the grains that are grown on the farm or that are available in the immediate neighborhood. One of the most successful methods of feeding is to give a light feed of grain or a mixture of grains in the morning and a feed of the same material at night, the night feed consisting of about as much as the hens will clean up.

In addition a dry man should be provided where the hens can have access to it continuously. When considerable quantities of waste food are available for the hens to pick up from the fields, the amount of grain feed may be cut down. Oftentimes judgment in this respect is faulty, and but for the dry mash there would be danger that the hens would not receive enough feed. With the dry mash at their disposal they are able to make up any deficiency of feed due to faulty judgment as to the quantity they

One of the most common mistakes made in feeding farm poultry is failure to provide animal food in some form. Of course during the spring and summer, when quantities of insects are available, they may supply the hens' wants in this regard, but during those parts of the year when insects are not available, or are scarce, it becomes necessary to provide animal food. Milk, usually fed either as skim milk or buttermilk, provides an excellent source of animal food, but when milk is not available the hens should have beef scrap or meat scrap. While this product is high in price it is economical, and should be included in the hens' ration because of the increased production that will result.

During the winter it is necessary to provide some form of green or succulent feed, such as mangels, cabbage, clover, alfalfa, or sprouted oats.

Mrs. Sarah Samey, aged 54 years, died suddenly at her home in White Oak April first. Mrs. Samey was eating supper when she suddenly fell back dead in her chair. She is survived by two daughters, Misses Artie and Dora Samey. Funeral services were conducted at Worthville.

CHANGED HIS MIND ABOUT GOING AWAY

Five years ago doctors told me I would have to move my wife to another climate, as she suffered so with stomach and liver trouble and bloating. Also that she would have to have an operation for gall stones. Our mail carrier told me of May's Wonderful Remedy and, on his advice, she has taken it and is now as well as ever in her life. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Mrs. William Sullivan was shot and killed by an unknown party recently. Mrs. Sullivan was returning from a visit to a neighbor and, when within 100 yards of her home, was shot-down. Her husband was assisting a neighbor in some farm work while the children were in school. The supposition is that the home had been ransacked in the absence of Mrs. Sullivan.
