Great Compositions That Seem Have Been Awaiting the Moment

Charles Kingsley returned home one night rather dejected because a sermon he had preached that day in London had proved a little too "socialistic" for the incumbent. Instead of going to bed he paced back and forth in front of the fire, and his wife, knowing he was composing, left him, and retired. In the morning he recited to her that moving lyric:

Three fishers went sailing out into the west, Out into the west as the sun went down."

There is a tablet in the porch of Wrexham church to the memory of Bishop Heber, which records that the most popular of all missionary hymns was composed in the town. Reginald Heber, who was then vicar of Hodnet, happened to be staying at the vicarage with his father-in-law, Dr. Shipley, dean of St. Asaph's, who was to preach a missionary sermon on the Sunday.

Heber and other friends were assembled in the library on the Saturday, when the dean asked his son-inlaw if he could write something for the service next morning. Heber retired to the farther end of the room for the purpose and at the end of 15 minutes he read the first three of the four verses of which the famous hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," consists.

His hearers were delighted, but Heber said the sense was not complete, and devoted another five minutes to the fourth stanza,

INSPIRATION ON THE WING PRESHENING VELVET AT HOME BY STEAMING ON WRONG SIDE

G od velvet costs so much now days that it often pays to spend time in freshening them.

Most velvet may be freshened by steaming from the wrong side, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. One way is to draw the velvet through the steam from a tea kettle. Care must be taken that the tea kettle cotains only a little water, or the water may spatter our and spot the velvet. As a special precaution several thickness of cheese cloth may be tied over the spout. A cone of heavy paper placed around the spout will direct the steam and make it possible to hold the velvet father from the heat.

Another way to steam velvet is to place several thickness of damp cloth over a hot iron and pass the back of the velvet quickly over the cloth. Velvet so creased that it can be freshened by steaming may be "panned" by steaming and then ironing it in one
