Covington, Ky.—"Some years ago I was awfully run-down and nervous from feminine trouble and my physician recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—told me that it was the best medicine on the market for women. Whether it is the best or not, it is the best I have found, for a few bottles helped me wonderfully and by continuing its use I was cured entirely."—Mrs. Edith Ford, 1320 Banklick St.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. A great many women in the South owe their good health of today to this famous Prescription. "HALLOWEEN"

(Written for the Observer.)

Mammy, what's done on halloween? Asked a little pickaninny black and lean.

Lordy child, now youse talking, says Mammy Lou. You set right down and I'll tell you what they do.

Halloween is when all the spooks get out. An' oh Lor, how they can shout. There is goblins, witches, hants and ghosts, That tap on the window and set on the gate post.

Listen to your mammy child, and never get out. On halloween night when de spooks is about. Why you'll be that scared your blood 'll turn blue. And oodles of other things will happen to you.

As soon as the night gets black and dark; Out comes de spooks their halloween mart. Black cats go running all around, And witches on broom sticks fly high 'bove de ground.

And de ghost get together for a conference, you know, And talk 'bout de things that happen below. And little red debbles go running along, Singing some of the most blood curdling songs.

But de goblins beat dem all, Wid dere red heads round as a ball, And dere clammy hand stretched way out, To grab youse tight if youse bes out.

Child, I must not talk no more 'bout spooks an' sech, Or else your mammy dey will come and fetch, But listen to your mammy, child, and nebber go out, On halloween night when dem spooks is about.

A FINE OLD HOME PAPER

(Tune—A Fine Old English Gentleman.)

These magazines with gravures and all these works of art, Are very well for city folks who live by dint of mart;

But give me first and foremost, I hold 't is the prime— That fine old home towny paper—one of the good old time.

The printin' isn't perfect, the ink's not uniform, The type is set by hand perhaps,—considerably overworn,

The dear old press—I know it well— It's covered o'er with grime— But it prints that old home paper—one of the good old time.

I look for it each week as regularly it comes, And when the postman brings it in, I drop all other chums,

I drink it in, from start to fin, ridiculous and sublime, That fine old home towny paper, one of the good old time.

Smith's cat may have some kittens; Jones is putting in new pumps, My girl chum has got married and the kids have got the mumps,

Jack Wiltsey's built a lean-to, Johnson's roses upward climb, Oh! I love the old home paper, boys, one of the good old time.

—GEO. E. WRAY.

Back to Town Crier

How many residents of any small community have ever considered what might happen if there were no newspapers? Just previous to "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week," which is to be observed the country over November 7-12, is a good time to recall the plight of Macon, Mo., not long ago, when fire put the Chronicle-Herald out of business for two weeks.

According to The Publishers' Auxiliary, the old town crier, relic of many years back, was yanked from his hiding place, dusted off, and put back on his job, with a jangling bell, a megaphone, and a fog-horn voice only a little worse for long disuse.

It may have been a novelty for two weeks. But think of a community without printers' ink, compelled to get its announcements of auctions, sales, court sessions, births, marriages, deaths, epidemics of sickness, dog ordinances, board meetings, commencement of help and situations wanted, accidents, and the rest, through a shouted word like that of the ordinary train announcer in a city depot. The town crier was a romantic figure in his day, but few towns would like to return to his ministrations now.

When one thinks of the temporary plight of Macon, and that it might become the permanent handicap of many towns, it is well to think of supporting the local paper.

He Knows His Folks. Here are some random observations of a man who has visited and studied a good many small communities: If you read your local paper you will not miss much that is happening around home. There is no use saying that you wish your town had a paper like one in the other town, for the other fellow there is saying the same thing. The man who reads his local paper thoroughly is usually a pretty good citizen and has it all over the fellow who does not. Local papers, when all is said and done, do more to uphold the institutions of this state and country than any other known contributing force in the world's work.

Random Observations. This isn't a country publisher talking, but the editor of a farm paper: The metropolitan daily will bring to one's doorstep the news of the world seen through the spectacles of the city editor, but it is the editor who lives in the heart of the community who is able to reflect the sentiment of the local group. He alone is the true interpreter of events as they affect the small town and the farming community that immediately surrounds the town.
