CAPITAL CASES ON DOCKET

J. A. SHORRIDGE, DEFENDANT

Court Will Try Joe Kemp for Murder Forty-two Years Ago.

Lumberton, N. C., Eight of the ninety-one cases appearing on the docket for trial at the two-week term of Robeson county court which opened Monday, January 29, are murder charges. The trial of Joe B. Kemp, charged with the murder of Daniel E. McNeill at Red Springs, Robeson county, nearly two years ago, is expected to be heard during this term. Kemp was arrested in the state of Florida some thirty-two years ago and brought to the county here. He was later released under bond and returned to his home in Lumberton. Kemp admits killing McNeill but will plead self-defense. The Robeson county time schedule for the trial was killed and the case was set for a later date. Kemp, charged with the murder of Daniel E. Three Tragedies Shock Granville. Oxford.—Following the fearfully necessary death of Reeds, in Granville county, in which J. B. Hursey of Durham killed his sweetheart, Miss Bessie B. Bessie, and then shot himself, the sheriff and coroner were summoned to Creedmoor, where Charlie Thompson was called from his house and taken to his yard. The coroner announced that he was killed by an unknown party.

Widow's Appeal. A widow of a man with two children and a wife, who were away from home when the tragedy was committed. No clue could be found to the perpetrator of the deed.

Seldom in the history of Granville have two more awful tragedies been committed. The remains of Hursey were carried to Durham for burial. He was an employe of the Durham Hospital and was well known there and well known in the community.

Mrs. Collins Held for Murder. Morganton.—At the preliminary hearing held here to investigate the death of Uray Smith, Mrs. Rosella Collins, an aunt of the young man, was bound over to court charged with his murder, the principal evidence against her being the testimony of her 15-year-old daughter, Mary Collins, W. Mule Block Door of Burning Barn. Monroe.—Penned in the stable of a burning barn, Harold Long, 13-year-old son of Mr. Zeb Long, of Goose Creek township, had a narrow escape from death recently. The young fellow was aiding his father in rescuing the stock from the blazing structure. Entering a stable which housed two mules, he succeeded in driving one of the animals out and had the other one almost out when its mate rushed back into its quarters. Both stuck in the door. The boy was cut off from the only avenue of escape by the flames rapidly enveloping that part of the barn, until one of the mules finally made a terrific lunge that carried it free of the stable. The mule was killed by the fire.

DOWN IN THE TAR HEEL STATE

NEWS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Wilmington.—The romance of J. T. Hancock, 83, Confederate veteran, and Mrs. Hancock, 64, who eloped a month ago, went on the rocks, when Mrs. Hancock filed an affidavit with the clerk of the superior court, asserting that her husband was insane. He was remanded to the county home.

Raleigh.—Governor Cameron Morrison accepted an invitation extended to him by the legislature of South Carolina to address that body on the night of February 14.

Durham.—Herbert Croel, 15, of Chapel Hill, died in a local hospital as a result of injuries sustained Friday when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into another car between Chapel Hill and Durham.

Why Farmers are Turning to CHEVROLET

In 1922 Chevrolet jumped from seventh to second place in sales of all cars, and to first place in sales of fully equipped modern cars.

Purchases by farmers were the chief factor in this remarkable development.

Farmers want automobiles not only of low first price, but also of low later cost for operation and maintenance.

They want room, comfort, and the ability to stand up under hard conditions.

They find that Chevrolet fully equipped as sold, is the best value per dollar in the low priced field, and neighbors tell them it costs less per mile to operate.

CALLS FOR NEW DICTIONARY

New York Newspaper Condemns the Present One as Cumbersome and Disconcerting.

Like many books called classics, which we speak of reverently and never look at, the dictionary of our language seems to be falling into disuse; we seldom consult it. If a strange word "swims into our ken" we regard it as an impertinence or we use it as a kind of game; we argue about it, discuss it, and perhaps write to the newspapers for a definition, but we don't consult the dictionary.

Perhaps the reason for our neglect is that the unabridged dictionary is too cumbersome and it gives too many meanings, though the papers on the ordinary bulk. Simple words therein are found to be both noun and verb (spelled alike), and sometimes they have more than a dozen distinct meanings. This is disconcerting. There may be room for a dictionary with the obsolete and archaic words left out, a true Twentieth-century dictionary that shall be fool proof.—New York Herald.

Would Do Her Best.

Charles M. Schwab says that his neighbors are forever trying to sell him things. Not long ago one man tried to sell him a cow. When Mr. Schwab inquired about the breed and age of the animal he did not receive very satisfactory answers. Finally he asked, "How much milk does she give?"

"Mr. Schwab, I don't know," was the reply, "but she's a first good natured cow and she'll give all she can." Boston Transcript.
