PRESIDENTIAL SPOKESMAN (By Richard Linthicum.)

SECRETARY SLEMP AS

It would appear that C. Slemp, secretary to the President, and co-author of the "Dear Den" letters, is also to be spokesman for the President, as evidenced by a statement recently given out by Mr. Slemp means that North Carolina is fortifybefore actually assuming the duties ing herself against the ravages of the of the secretaryship Mr. Slemp, boll-weevil and against the evils of among other things, undertook to ex-plain that while it was President that the campaign of education on Coolidge's policy to carry out the crop-diversification, undertaken by plans of the late President Harding the farmers themselves, and aided by differences form of World Court plan, he said, in all probability be promoted. The farm problem and the coal strike and feed are in larger number being were the President's immediate problems, according to Mr. Slemp, but he felt certain that an extra session of ment of Secretary Slemp not so much for the purpose of pointing out what he said as to point out his role of spokesman ofr the President. It is logical to infer therefrom that Mr. Slemp is to be an assistant to the President, or assistant President, according as one may look at it-a sort of connecting link between the President and the public, in dealing with policies, issues and propaganda rather than routine. That Secretary Slemp is not an ideal person for such an important place is apparent from the "Dear Ben' lettters written by himself and spent Sunday morning at Mr. H. A., his Congressional secretary in the expose made of trafficking in offices in Virginia, which is typical of the Republcan practice in other southern seur where they have been attending states. The public will not soon forget the letters of Mr. Slemp's secretary urging that applicants and prospective applicants be told to "send in a little contribution, say $25 or $35, nor the letter of Mr. Slemp himself in which he tells "Dear Ben" that he "After having been in bed half the "has letters in regard to collection of money for post offices", and adds "one must be very careful about this. It will bring the party into ill repute." the doctors seemed unable to reach He did not tell "Dear Ben" that the with medicine, and advised operation practice of extorting money from apas the only remedy, my nurse ad-plicants for office was reprehensible and in violation of the civil service Remedy, and its results have truly law, but only that he must be careful.

The scandals attending trafficking in office by Republicans in southern states and the methods southern Republicans have followed in obtaining aration that removes the catarrhal national delegates from the South are not such as to qualify southern Republican leaders as the most acceptable spokesmen of Presidents, and Secretary Slemp has the reputation of being the most important and influential of the southern Republican leaders.

"REPUBLICAN HYPOCRISY"

(By Richard Linthicum.)

We had it in mind to reply to an ditorial entitled "Political Issues" in the Washington Post of August 24, but an observant contributor to that paper under the initials J. A. T. has replied so well to the point as to make further comment unnecessary.

In a letter to the editor he said: 'In your editorial of August 24, entitled 'Political Issues', you state that the Republican party car. unite en one issue, and that issue is 'the creation of prosperity in the United States through the adoption of Republican policies' and further on you mention these policies as 'high tariff, reduction of taxation, government economies, avoidance of foreign complications, etc. It is too buil the writer of the editorial dil not read the rest of your paper before he mentionel these wonderful Republican police: and the prosperity that has resulted thereby, for 1 notice one article, entitled 'United States to Send Delegates to League Assembly (avoidance of foreign complications) another entitled 'Building Program Urged by Mellon', and 'Roosevelt Insists on Navy Estimates' (govern-ment economies), and 'Mellon Will Renew Plea for Reduction in Income Surtaxes', for the benefit of the wealthy and not those who merely pay taxes (reduction of taxation). 'In comparing your editorial and the news articles mentioned any one can see that it is not a question of Republican prosperity versus Democratic adversity, but Republican hyp-ocrisy varsus Democratic sincerity. "J. A. T." The dilemma in which the editor of the Post finds himself as a result of the discrepancy between his views and the news facts is no different from that of the average Republican reactionary leader, who has been telling the public one thing while the columns of the newspapers have been filled with facts that controvert early everything he says. The moral of J. A. T.'s letter is that Republican editorial writers should read the news columns of their publications before writing their opinions, but the meral will be lost upon the reactionary Republican editors and leaders who care nothings for facts that do not coincide with their theories.

Such a resolution in farm methods has not been started by individual effort; the farmers are organizing in co-operation associations and bankers and other business men are aiding them. In Scotland Neck, for instance the Chamber of Commerce has secured credit for farmers with corn. hay and meat ascollateral. In many counties the farmers have credit unions and marketing organizations. Lambs, wool, potatoes, fruits, are be-ing sold through marketing agencies conducted by the farmers. This problem of credit and markets s the fundamental difficulty confronting all farmers in all countries where today the farmer is justly dissatisfied with his conditions. In England, says The London Times, there was never a time, within the last 20 years, "when the farming industry was more in need of appreciative markets than now. * * If the grower could only be assured of a the wheat crop would be satisfactory.

WHO ARE THE TAXPAYERS?

(By Richard Linthicum.)

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, t is announced, will renew his recommendation for a reduction of the surtaxes to 25 per cent, despite the in the last Congress through the combined efforts of Democrats and progressive Republicans.

In this connection the fellowing judge for himself whether the taxpayers of very large incomes stand in need of reduction or whether the smaller taxpayers made up of the average citizens should have their axes reduced:

Statistics for 1921 show that taxable incomes amounted to nearly $20,000,000,000. Of this amount only $463,003,357, were reported by persons with net incomes of $100,000 or
