MISS HADLEY ENTERTAINS FOR VISITORS Miss Ruth Hadley entertained about forty young people of the town last Friday evening, in honor of her guests, the Misses Hunt, of Pleasant Garden, and Miss Margaret Boglan, of Badin. Progressive conversation and an "age contest" furnished amusement for the evening. In the contest, Miss Lena Hilliard won the prize, a box of stationery. Fruits and candies were served as refreshments. The house was gay with Christmas decorations. MRS. J. N. BENNETT ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF GUEST Honoring her house guest, Mrs. J. L. Bolton, of Union, S. C., Mrs. J. N. Bennett entertained a group of friends Thursday afternoon. The parlors were appropriately and tastefully decorated with holly and Christmas greens making a lovely setting for the affair. After greeting the honoree, needlework was enjoyed for a while until the hostess announced an advertising contest. In this Mrs. W. H. Moring excelled and was given a dainty prize. The honoree was also given a prize, a pair of candlesticks. In the course of the afternoon the little daughter of the honoree, Annie, gave several readings in a most charming manner which added to the pleasure of the guests. Assisted by Mrs. Henry Ingram and Miss Brown, the hostess served a salad course, with wafers, sandwiches and coffee. MRS. JAMES G. CRUTCHFIELD GIVES CARD PARTY Saturday afternoon Mrs. James G. Crutchfield entertained three tables of bridge and one of rook at her home on Sunset Avenue. The rooms were decorated with Christmas colors and greens. When the cards were collected, Miss Lucy Lee Lovett held high score in bridge and Mrs. J. N. Bennett in Rook. The prizes were pottery candlesticks and a bowl. A delicious fruit salad course with saltines, sandwiches, cheese pies and coffee was served. RANDOLPH BOOK CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. J. D. ROSS The Christmas meeting of the Randolph Book Club was held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Ross Friday afternoon. The program for the afternoon was a delightful one. Mrs. J. O. Redding read a chapter from the book "Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page", while Mrs. T. J. Redding read an interesting article on "Henry Ford". These two readings were followed by current events. The hostess then invited the members to the back sitting room where small tables were arranged. Place cards suggestive of the Christmas season helped the ladies to find their seats. Here a luncheon was served by Misses Martha Evelyn, Lucile and Clarabelle Morris. The first course was grape fruit with red cherries. While the plates were being removed, Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, president of the club gave a short sketch of the club since its organization. This opened up an interesting discussion, and memories. The next course was pressed chicken, potato chips, celery, and pickles, followed by coffee and cheese biscuits. Another interesting feature of the afternoon was the electrically lighted Christmas tree of unusual beauty. On this tree were presents for everybody. Each club member made a gift and enclosed a wish, these the hostess numbered and allowed the members to draw corresponding numbers. This exchange of gifts has been a custom in the club for several years. The entire lower floor was attractively decorated with holly and Christmas flowers. MISS ADELAIDE ARMFIELD ENTERTAINS Miss Adelaide Armfield entertained very informally at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armfield, Jr., on New Year's Eve. The house was decorated with mistletoe and holly. The guests arrived at 10:30. Everyone was asked to write a New Year's Resolution. They were read aloud by Mr. Armfield. Neely Hunter won the boy's prize, a silk scarf; and Ethel Lovett won the girl's prize, a gold head band. Refreshments consisting of pink and white brick cream, fruit cake, and stuffed dates, were served by Mrs. Armfield, assisted by Mrs. John K. Wood, Miss Nettie Alice Wood and Miss Betsy Armfield. "Listening in" to the chimes of Trinity Church, New York, over the radio was a special feature of the entertainment.

MISSES PRESNELL AND RICH ENTERTAIN Thursday evening, Misses Mae Presnell and Cieta Rich entertained informally at the home of Miss Rich on Cox street, honoring the boys and girls who are at home from the different colleges for the holidays. Miss Presnell sang two solos, accompanied on the piano by Miss Nan Lewis. In a contest, Miss Maxine Redding excelled, receiving the prize. The hostess assisted by Miss Virginia Lowe, served assorted cakes, whipped cream and coffee. The following were present: Misses Lola and Nan Lowdermilk, Maxine Redding, Annie Leslie Ferree, Nan Lewis, Virginia Lowe, Ellen Presnell, Messrs. H. F. Fogleman, H. M. Rich, J. W. Burkhead, Jr., Wilmer C. Presnell, Hal Rich, Lester Rich, E. A. Murray, Jr., of Washington city and Carl Murray, of Philadelphia.
