Quite an interesting item in the medical profession is chronicled in Akron, Ohio when one of the twin babies belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Nick Manders swallowed a safety pin. The mother then discovered that the wrong twin had been examined and quickly brought the other. The pin was removed in a satisfactory manner.

After strenuous work on the part of Thomas W. Sprinkle, superintendent of the Duke Graded and High Schools, he has succeeded in placing a course of band instruction in the school as a part of the course. Credit is given in this course equal to that counted as laboratory work. A regular concert band director is in charge of this work. This is probably the first high school in the state to put such a course in as a part of the accredited work.

RANDLEMAN NEWS

Mr. Sheffield, of Randleman, Route 2, has installed a radio receiving station which has proven a great novelty as well as an entertainer to the community. It is very enjoyable to sit around a good country fire and listen in on the various broadcasting stations of the world these cold nights as the writer has experienced this, and knows what he is talking about. The farthest broadcasting station heard so far is Havana Cuba, which station can be heard as plain as any of the stations in the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kirkman, of Mount Airy, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Moser, of Randleman, Route 2.

GOVERNOR AND MR. PAGE SPEAK IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Governor Morrison and State highway commissioner, Frank Page, addressed the first session of the South Carolina general assembly Tuesday.

Mr. Page talked about roads, road building, maintenance and the financing. Mr. Morrison talked largely about the tax system of the state and South Carolina found both of them interesting and entertaining. South Carolina lawmakers a short time back were forced into a special session when a Sandlapper citizen was, under the law in force down there, compelled to pay the government approximately $990,000 out of a million dollars of profits. They knocked that particular law out and now they are proposing to remodel the whole tax structure.

IN MEMORIAM

Margaret Davis Overman, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Overman of this place, was born Dec. 11, 1919 and died November 10, 1923. She had been suffering from an attack of diphtheria, but was thought to be much better, when an attack of heart trouble, in a short time proved to be fatal.

Margaret was an unusually sweet and attractive child and was the favorite of all who knew her.

It was hard for us to give up this dear little child who had so brightened our lives with her sunny presence, her gentle, lovable disposition and her sweet innocence but we shall not question God's will, because we know that He knoweth best.

Surely, He knew, when He said, "A little child shall lead them."

PIPE ORGAN DEDICATED AT MT. GILEAD

Sunday was a proud day for the members of the Methodist Episcopal church at Mt. Gilead. The handsome new pipe organ which was donated by Mr. J. A. McAuley, of that place, in memory of his parents, sister and daughter, was formally dedicated. Mr. J. G. Steed made the presentation address, in a fitting manner. The response was made by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Martin, who also made the dedicatory prayer. A sacred concert was then given with Mrs. J. W. Lambeth, of Thomasville, at the organ. Mrs. Lambeth is the daughter of Mr. McAuley.

FOR SENATOR

In common with many citizens, regardless of party affiliations, I was much gratified to see in last week's Courier the announcement of Mr. I. C. Moser of his candidacy for the State Senate.

Mr. Moser's record in the last legislature was highly creditable, to himself and his party alike, and proved him to be an unusually strong man—one of the strongest in that body. His experience, poise, ability, and rock-ribbed character qualify him in an eminent degree for public service. His nomination and subsequent election seem assured.

A BIRTHDAY DINNER

On Tuesday, January 28, 1924, about thirty of the relatives and friends of Mrs. Nancy Williams Cole, Kemp Mills, Star Route, met to celebrate her fifty-fourth birthday. It was planned for a surprise dinner but as she was planning to visit some relatives that day, it was necessary to inform her of the occasion. Tables were arranged in the dining room and loaded with many good things to eat. Rev. Mr. Vjerman of Seagrove, offered thanks for these blessings. After enjoying an hour or two, social, together, the people separated, wishing Mrs. Cole many more happy birthdays.

Dr. Mayo Believes Youth Will Be Renewed By Easy Process

An interesting statement was made last week by Dr. Charles Mayo, noted surgeon of Rochester, Minnesota, while attending a meeting of the American college of physicians and surgeons in St. Louis. Dr. Mayo said that aging persons, wishing to be young again might find the rejuvenated youth they crave in a bottle on the bath room shelf. Dr. Mayo's theory or thought is, that people will be able to keep young until death by artificial chemicals rather than by transplanting of glands.

Discoveries recently made, the surgeon said, and experiments not completed entirely show that thyroid substances may be developed within the human being by internal chemical process. Certain elements taken into the system will form new thyroid glands.

"The time is coming when science will enable all to remain 'young' in the sense of physical condition of their bodies, despite ages now considered enough to warrant the use of the word 'old'."

NATIONAL MUSIC WEEK

It is of interest to music lovers all over the State to know that Music Week will be observed in April. It is the purpose of those in charge of this movement to make this a truly musical week, and they are encouraging music departments in Women's Clubs, schools, churches, orchestras, choruses, and in fact every musical organization to plan programs of some kind to be given during the week. It is also urged that this be observed in the various homes. Let us do our part in Asheboro by cooperating with this movement in every way possible.

Teague, of High Point, a graduate of the University Law school, and practices his profession in High Point.
