LAUGHING IN HIS SLEEVE

"I was told nothing but an operation would help my stomach trouble, and was getting ready for the operation when a friend advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose helped me. I am now as well as ever in my life and am laughing up my sleeve at the doctors." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. E. F. HARRIS

On Tuesday, December 25, 1923, at break of day the death angel came to the home of Mr. E. F. Harris and claimed as his victim his beloved wife, Mrs. Sallie Harris who had been sick only a few weeks.

Mrs. Harris had only lived in this community for about twelve months, but it had been the privilege of the writer to visit her several times, and was always greeted with a welcome smile, and to know her was to love her.

Her children rise up and call her blessed, and her husband praiseth her. Mrs. Harris loved her church and was not ashamed of the gospel of Christ.

She is gone from our sight, but we shall not forget her.

Her body sleeps in the cemetery at Salem church to await the resurrection of the just.

She leaves behind to mourn her loss, a husband, three sons, and one daughter, and four step-sons and several grand-children.

Her presence will be missed in this community and we know not why God took her, and question not His goodness, but wait and say:

"Not now, but in the coming years, it may be in the better land, We'll read the meaning of our tears; But then, up there, we'll understand."

A FRIEND.

NEWSPAPERS CLASSED AS LETTER MAIL

Of interest to all newspaper subscribers and readers in the new ruling of the postoffice department which effective Friday, February 1st. This is considered one of the most important and far reaching steps in the postoffice history.

Under the new system, newspapers will be made up in separate sacks plainly labeled with the word "newspapers." If there are only a few copies of newspapers at the point of dispatch, they will be placed in pouches with first class mail or in separate sacks even though the sacks are only partly filled. The order stipulates that newspapers shall not be mixed with parcels post at any point in their dispatch from the publishers office until their delivery to the addressees.

Postmasters are required by the order to notify publishers in each instance when deliveries do not catch the dispatch which they are advertised to catch; also to notify publishers when they are sending their publications to wrong addresses and to addresses of deceased persons. Publishers will be notified by postmasters when they are putting up their mail in an incorrect manner.

The order applies alike to daily and weekly newspapers. It stipulates that all sacks of newspapers when received in postoffices must be segregated promptly and the contents distributed and dispatched to the proper stations for delivery by carriers on the earliest possible trips.

Carefully worded and minute instructions have been issued to all postal employes so that there will be no possibility of misunderstanding the importance of getting newspapers to the readers with a minimum of delay.

Miller & Rhoads

The service of this store is a public trust

"We will continue to grow as long as we continue to serve the public"

—W. S. Rhoads to the employees of Miller & Rhoads

SOME thirty-five years ago, when Miller & Rhoads Store occupied but one small store-room, and served but a very small part of the community, it was easy for its youthful owners to look upon it as their own business, to do with it as they pleased. In those days there were not more than a few hundred who might be called regular customers of the store, and only a handful of clerks to wait on them. But times have changed. The handful of clerks has grown to hundreds, and the customers have grown to thousands. And we number among our customers not only the people of Richmond, but thousands of loyal friends throughout the Virginias and Carolinas.

To-day the business of Miller & Rhoads has grown to such proportions that it seems more like a great public service than a private business. Like a great railroad system, a street railway or an electric light plant, it serves the public.

We are dependent upon the good-will and confidence of our thousands of friends just as they are dependent upon us for continuous and faithful service to their wants. It seems to us now like a public duty to maintain a plentiful stock of merchandise at a wide range of prices.

We have recognized our obligation, too, of making it just as easy and convenient for our customers to shop as possible. We have built a spacious, well-lighted and well-ventilated store. We have laid it out in wide, roomy aisles so that you can shop without the discomforts of crowding. We have installed rapid, frequent service to the upper floors in centrally located, easily accessible elevators. We have provided comfortable rest-rooms where you can stop and refresh yourself, and on the top floor there are luxuriously furnished tea-rooms where you can have wholesome, appetizing food at reasonable prices.

We have built not only the greatest department store building in the South, but we have made it splendidly beautiful, so that your shopping is a real pleasure. We have done all these things because we realize that we will continue to grow just so long as we continue to serve our friends.

If you can't get what you want in your own locality, try
