LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE SENIOR CLASS OF ASHEBORO HIGH SCHOOL

The following last will and testament of the Asheboro high school senior class was read by Miss Thyra Wright: North Carolina, Randolph County. We, the members of the Senior Class of the Asheboro High School of the county and state aforesaid, being of sound mind, but considering the uncertainty of our high school existence, do hereby make and declare this to be our last will and testament. 1. Our executor, hereinafter named, is ordered to carry out all the provisions of this will. 2. We, the class as a whole, give and bequeath to the faculty our gratitude for all they have done for us, and our continued good wishes for the future. 3. We give and bequeath the following to individual members of the faculty. To Mr. MacMahan, our superintendent, we give and bequeath the right to make good citizens of all the other high school students. To Miss Sparger, our geometry teacher, we give and bequeath the right to prohibit originals in geometry next year. To Miss Lambert, our English teacher, we give and bequeath the right to check the department of the Senior class of 1925. To Miss Frazier, our French teacher, we give and bequeath the right to a trip to France. To Miss Lassiter, our Latin teacher, we give and bequeath the right to ask the construction of every word in Virgil. To Miss Bullock, our civics and physics teacher, we give and bequeath the right to prohibit the use of False and True tests. 4. We give and bequeath to the class of '25 our dignity, our place in school, all our Senior Privileges that we did not use, and the flowers with which we have decorated our stage for tonight to be used at their Class Day Exercise next year, with our best wishes for a happy senior year. 5. We give and bequeath to the class of '26, a box of dreams marked, "When I am a Senior" with the hope that they may find as much joy, in realization as anticipation. 6. We give and bequeath to the class of '27, the Sophomore class of next year, all the pride that goes with being a sophomore. 7. We give and bequeath to the class of '28, the rising freshman class, a place in high school, and all the wasted time that has slipped through our fingers. 8. Individual members of the Senior Class of 1924 give and bequeath the following to individual members of the class of 1925: Nannie Adkins gives and bequeaths to Grace Burrows a part of her extra weight. Grace Cooper gives and bequeaths to Henrietta Underwood her ability to play the piano. Virginia Barker gives and bequeaths to Mabel Ingram her musical voice. Margaret Moffitt gives and bequeaths to Bon Phillips her straight hair. Callie Way gives and bequeaths to Fannie Tyson her love for French. Gladys Phillips gives and bequeaths to Leta Presnell any powder, rouge, or lipstick that she might have left in the senior room. Lela Bulla gives and bequeaths her curly hair to Elizabeth Bulla. Merle Callicutt gives and bequeaths to Ada Shaw her noisy manner. Nan Lowdermilk gives and bequeaths to Mattie Burkhead her flirtatious ways. Nannie Adkins gives and bequeaths to Carrie Cranford her way of taking things hard. Grace Ashworth gives and bequeaths to Annie Leslie Ferree any mirrors or compacts that she might have left in the senior room. Virginia Barker gives and bequeaths to Francis DeMarcus her way of taking things quietly. Margaret Moffitt gives and bequeaths to Nell Moore her prominence in class discussion. Thyra Wright gives and bequeaths to Lois Smith her quiet manner. Frank McCrary gives and bequeaths to Hardy Moore a part of his height. Hal Johnson gives and bequeaths to Eugene Lewallen his bass voice. William Armfield gives and bequeaths to Troy Gaddis his bashful nature. John Redding gives and bequeaths to Joe Parrish his individual dignity. Harris Coffin gives and bequeaths to James Cox his love for Latin. Alph Hamlet gives and bequeaths to Walter Hammond his love for basket ball. Jack Cranford gives and bequeaths to Worth Parks his skill in base ball. James McCain gives and bequeaths to John T. Humble his popularity with the ladies. Stanton Ferree gives and bequeaths to Glenn Phillips his extra weight. John Redding gives and bequeaths to Wallace Moore his popularity as a class officer. Harris Coffin gives and bequeaths to Early Hughs his joyful laugh. 9. We, the class as a whole, hereby constitute and appoint June Frazier our lawful executor to all intents and purposes, to execute this our last will and testament, according to the true intent and meaning of the same, and every part and clause thereof, hereby revoking and declaring utterly void all other wills and testaments by us heretofore made. In witness whereof, we the said senior class, do hereunto set our hand and seal this the 2nd day of June, 1924. (Seal) SENIOR CLASS OF 24. Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the said Senior Class to be their last will and testament in the presence of us, who, at the request of the said class and in their presence, do subscribe our names as witnesses thereto. I. A. FERREE, H. M. ROBBINS.

Helen in the Gift Shop—buys prizes and gifts

HELEN glanced at her shopping list and remembered that she wanted to get a few little things for the house—some neckties for Tom, a wedding gift for Winifred and prizes for her card party. While Helen went off to the housewares department in the down-stairs store, Louise went to the information desk on the main floor to mail a letter and incidentally to look up the trains for Helen.

Helen was having a perfectly glorious time shopping. She marveled at the broad, roomy aisles, and the absence of crowding. She was intensely happy in this great, big beautiful store. There was something new, something to please and fascinate her on every side. The salespeople were pleasant, willing and helpful, and, after all her shopping, she didn't feel a bit tired.

In the housewares department she found just the things for Winifred's wedding present—a set of water glasses beautifully hand-decorated, of very thin glass and blue stems. Winifred would be pleased beyond word, she knew, because these were the very latest in table appointments. Louise met her again at the Gift Shop near the Sixth and Grace Streets entrance.

In the Gift Shop there was every imaginable sort of thing suitable for gifts and prizes. There were charming costume beads, pretty and inexpensive, from Czecho-Slovakia; leather novelties from England; beaded bags from France—an almost endless variety of articles, nearly all of them done by hand. Helen selected a small flower-holder for the ladies' prize and a leather match-box for the men's prize, and her shopping was done.

It was five o'clock. The last train home was to leave at five-thirty—but Louise and Helen hadn't half finished their visit. Louise wouldn't listen to Helen's going away like that. She insisted that Helen stay over at her house and return home the next morning. Helen agreed and decided to send a telegram home. This was attended to without leaving the store. It was a convenience appreciated by both Helen and Louise to be able to send a telegram directly from the information desk on the main floor.

So Helen ended a day of adventures in shopping. Helen is just one of the thousands of women, some of them in your own community, who do their shopping at Miller & Rhoads while in Richmond.
