Highfill this week. claim that the well-fed American Mr. and Mrs. John Sellers, workman, although paid higher wages than European laborers, do not produce more manufacured goods than some into competition with the wheat and cotton of many countries, and the their products, minus the expense of

Most of the Canadian wheat that comes into our country is on its way

We are told by Mr. Fordney, representing the latest on the Fordney-McCumber bill that the agricultural the time these declarations were made the Democrats declared that the framers of the new tariff bill neither understood the theory nor the practice of its protective tariff. The Democrats said that they could see how wool growers could be benefited mestic needs but that the growers of benefited, because the country produces more than enough to supply the country's demand and the surplus

It was stated by the Democrats that the 30c tariff put on every bushel of wheat would have no effect to increase the price of wheat in London, which is the largest wheat market, and that it would have no effect on the domestic wheat market.

It is true that the Canadian wheat is cheaper than ours occasionally, but as there are large surpluses of both American and Canadian wheat can be bought, it is impossible for Canadian wheat to be lower than American wheat except occasionally and then only for a brief period due to some unusual condition. Heedlessly and blindly the Republicans enacted their protective tariff and made a provision in it so that the President could increase the tariff. After the tariff was enacted, for a year wheat has gone down gradually since the enactment of the law, the President put 12c additional tariff on the bushel, making 42c tariff on wheat. Wheat continued to get lower until it is less than a dollar a bushel. Now all hands prizes offered for the prettiest yards admit that the tariff does not effect agriculture products except in exceptionable cases of oranges and lemons and wool, the products of which So you see we are having just plenty . only supply in a small degree the to eat and looking pretty all the home markets.

The cotton that is imported is the Egyptian cotton, imported not because it is cheap, which it is not, but because its staple is very long, and, is especially valuable for hosiery. R competes with our Sea Island cotton, but it does not come in competition with the ordinary upland cotton, of which we export more than we consume, and the price of which is fixed in Liverpool in competition with the cotton of other countries.

So the tariff on couton could only result in raising the price on long staple cotton of which we use a very small amount in this country, but it has had no effect of very great importance to our cotton crop. It is true, the cotton is above the pre-war price which is due to the ravages of the boll weevil.

IDLE WATERS IN STATE

That North Carolina has more opportunity for the successful development of a system of waterways than any other state on the Atlantic seaboard is the opinion of General E. F. Glenn, U. S. Army, retired, who is doing research work at State College. North Carolina has 800 miles of ocean front with an enormous excanse of navigable sounds and rivers.

It is pointed out that the report of Governor Morrison's ship commission found that North Carolina's inland waters were used very little for trafic, and millions of tonage on ocean ships pass by North Carolina's front door every day. Much of this tonnage originates a North Carolina and is sent to ports outside of the State for shipment.

systems of transportation, according to Gen. Glenn, is to afford the cheapest and most efficient means in the transportation of transporta transportation of passengers and freight.

"In the past 20 years North Carolina has established a splendid school system," General Glenn said. "She has established manufacturing on a firm foundation ca-pable of future expansions. She has improved in agriculture until she is near the top and still advancing, she has done remarkably well in insurances and has laid the foundation for the development of the sea food industry and has developed a splendid highway system. However she has done little for her trade and commerce which are suffering from unjust and unfair freight discrimination. This discrimnation has been borne for many years at an annual cost of approximately $15,000,000. way to establish and safeguard our trade and commerce against this discrimination is to build up a co-ordinated system of land and water transportation connecting with shipping on the high seas from our own ports, equipped with modern terminal facil-

"North Carolina lies in the best part of the vast Piedmont area. There is no section in all the world more independent from outside support and yet it is not more than ten per cent developed. It has but 2,500,000 population and it should have 10,000,000 happy inhabi-

There is but one way to develop North Carolina to its fullest and that is by giving those who live within its bounds means of cheap transportation for their products and their needs so that they may compete on a fair level with the rest of the
