LANE ELDER RE-ELECTED MAYOR, HOPEWELL A copy of the Hopewell Star published at Hopewell, Va., Friday, August 8, 1924, tells of the election of Dr. D. Lane Elder again as mayor of Hopewell. Under the new form of government at the organization meeting of the Council Dr. D. Lane Elder was unanimously elected and will serve for two years. Dr. Elder has been mayor of Hopewell for four years, having served under the old form of government. He is the first mayor to be elected by the people. The preceding mayors having been appointed by the Governor before Hopewell was incorporated as a city. Arrangements are being made under the new form of government to employ a city manager with engineering and business experience, with a salary not to exceed $6,000 a year. The leading editorial in the Star on "Our Mayor" is as follows: "Hopewell has changed its form of municipal government; but not its mayor. Dr. D. Lane Elder, first elected mayor of the city is again made official head of Hopewell. The citizens of Hopewell may adopt more modern and progressive methods of government, but they do not forget to recognize those who have worked and struggled for the benefit of the city. The re-election of Dr. Lane came as no surprise, as his election to the new council was expected and accepted that such would be the case. "Dr. Elder cast his lot in with Hopewell in the early days; he saw the rise and fall of the great boom town, and ever believing in the ultimate triumph of Hopewell, he stayed by when many fled. Not only watching the city grow, but helping it as mayor and as citizen, he built the Hopewell Hospital and erected two drug store buildings, one in DuPont City and the handsome building on Broadway, showing beyond a doubt, that he was a firm believer in the future of the "Wonder City." "We congratulate you, Dr. Elder, and assure you of the cooperation and backing of the Hopewell Star in every undertaking for the betterment and improvement of the City of Hopewell, and believe the citizens of Hopewell will offer you no less." Dr. Elder is a son of Mr. W. N. Elder one of Randolph's prominent citizens of Trinity who now makes his home in Hopewell, Va. Playhouse Theatre RANDLEMAN, N. C.
