

COOLIDGE UNFIT FOR PRESIDENT

Lynn Haines Finds That He Knows Little and Thinks Little.

"Calvin Coolidge is too much politician and too little statesman to be at the head of the greatest Anglo-Saxon nation. He is woefully lacking in character and equipment."

This is what Lynn Haines, editor of The Searchlight Magazine, of Washington, says about him. Haines is one of the best informed men, and most consulted men in the National Capital—one of the men who keeps himself so closely behind the scenes that no one ever hears of him unless he is on "the issue" of Washington affairs, Haines continues.

With no prejudice and without preconceived conclusions, representatives of The Searchlight, devoted weeks, in Massachusetts and Washington, to a patient, thorough investigation of the public life of Coolidge. The result of that searching into his methods and motives take up all of this issue. Their presentation is a duty I owe to my country, a token of my high regard for the Presidency.

So here you get a portrayal of the real Coolidge, not as the prejudicialists have pictured him, but as his own acts reveal the truth.

Indecision is his outstanding characteristic.

He says little because he thinks little and knows little.

Misfortune—to others—has never stirred him to two-fisted fighting, and never will.

Misfortune—to other—has been largely the foundation of the Coolidge career. Each of his greatest advancements came directly from the womb of tragedy.

A predecessor's defeat gave him his chance to become President of the Massachusetts Senate, with the inevitable, machine-controlled sequence of Lieutenant Governor and Governor.

Next came the Boston police strike, which left easily avoidable death and devastation in its wake—that gave him the Vice-Presidency.

Then Harding died, and he thus became President.

The Boston calamity was his political chariot. The Harding hearse carried him into the White House.

These are harsh facts, you may say. They are. But remember, always, that the victims of tragedy are more to be considered than its accidental beneficiaries. The American people today are most in need of sympathy and succor. The welfare of the American nation is paramount to any personal or political objective.

As boy and man, no American ever had a more reverential attitude toward the Presidency of the United States than I. That respect for this high office is stronger today than ever before.

It is a position far too vital and sacred to be prostituted by politics, or occupied by anyone unworthy and unqualified.

The great calamity, in a Republic, is for the voters not to have their judgment.

WEAVER AND HAMMER SHOULD HAVE LABOR'S ENTIRE SUPPORT

There are two members of congress from North Carolina who should have the enthusiastic and unqualified support of all wage-earners in their campaigns for reelection. In fact, the American Federation of Labor has given its endorsement to eight members from this state, an account of which will be found in another column of this paper. But there are two of them who stand out pre-eminently as champions of the masses.

One is Hon. W. C. Hammer, representing the Seventh district. Mr. Hammer's record not only in congress, but before he went to congress, is A 1 on all matters of public interest embracing questions affecting the masses.

The other is that old friend of long standing, Zebulon Weaver, of the Tenth district. Congressman Weaver has as near one hundred per cent record in Washington as any other man from any other state. Then in the North Carolina legislature, long before Mr. Weaver was first elected to congress in 1916, he always championed the cause of the masses, many times taking positions that threatened his political life. It ought to be considered a pleasure by all wage-earners to vote for such men as Hammer and Weaver.

North Carolina labor should feel proud of the fact that eight out of her ten congressmen have such records that the American Federation

Mr. Frazier Able To Be Out

Deputy sheriff Sam Frazier, of Handleman, was in Asheboro Saturday. Mr. Frazier is recovering nicely from the effects of an assault made on him about ten days ago by two unidentified negroes. Frazier does not know the names of the negroes who attacked him, but says he will be able to identify them in case he gets a chance. The officers have some clues as to the identity of the negroes and are hoping to be able to make the arrests sometime soon.

YOUR DUTY TO VOTE

The average man will spend many times as much effort standing around and "bussing" the administration in power whether it be in the town, county, state, or nation, as he will to walk a few blocks or drive a few miles to vote. It is human nature to stand on the side lines while somebody is performing a task.

In commenting on the lack of interest a number of people take in voting, the Greensboro Record truthfully says:

"The old argument that one vote does not count is not to be considered at all. What one man does is extremely important, because his neighbor is likely to be affected by much the same motives and moved by much the same impulses."

"In the coming election there is need of a heavy intelligent vote, as never before in the history of the country. The very foundations upon which this republic was founded are threatened, by the rising tide of corruption and the greed of the scheming politicians is challenging the manhood of America to come out and vote for honesty in government, efficiency in government, Democracy in government."

Never has there been a year like the present that it is important to vote. Millions of good people are looking forward to November 4th as the day on which the despoilers, those who have debauched the country's resources, and laid waste its reserves, will be driven out of power. It is necessary that all who are qualified to vote and have the right to cast a ballot should vote this year.

"In the old days," says the Record, "the Roman prized his citizenship above everything. It brought him many favors and much honor. It was a mark of distinction, a badge that signified a great privilege."

"American citizenship carries with it even greater attributes. We cannot appreciate them, because we seldom have occasion to call upon it in need. Once leave the boundaries of this country and the prestige and standing of American citizenship is readily recognized.

"Therefore, it seems that every citizen of the United States should take it upon himself to see that he discharges this duty of citizenship, this small responsibility, that falls upon his shoulders for the splendid privilege of living in this country, of participating in its natural wealth and enjoying its bounty. In return for all that he should shoulder this duty, if he must call it that, we prefer to look upon it as a sort of sacred privilege. Here a man has the right to cast a vote that none may change nor alter; no one will attempt to persuade, cajole, intimidate or influence him. It is his talisman of freedom, his symbol of citizenship, his pledge to keep the faith of his forefathers."

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

Paying Our Share

North Carolina is spending large sums for schools, highways and other public improvements.

When taxes are fairly levied, and the public moneys are wisely expended for things that raise the general standards of living, good citizens must cheerfully shoulder their share of the burden of taxes.

Southern Railway Company takes pride in being a good citizen of North Carolina and giving a full measure of citizenship. Its properties along 1,200 miles of lines in 47 counties of the State are now assessed for taxation at $94,000,000, compared with $44,000,000 ten years ago, and $24,000,000 twenty years ago.

In the State of North Carolina our tax payments last year amounted to $1,600,000, an average of $4,400 a day.

We take satisfaction in thus contributing our share to the general welfare of a State whose prosperity is inseparably linked with our own.
