

Farmers Bring In Chickens To Fill a Car and Forty Coops Extra

Co-operative Marketing of Poultry Is a Decided Success in Randolph County.

CHICKENS BRING $4,423.21
Chickens Total 17,656 Pounds for Which Farmers are Paid At The Car Door.

The first carload shipment of live poultry to be made from Randolph county under the co-operative plan was made Thursday from Asheboro, when, under the direction of the North Carolina Division of Markets and the county farm agent, a total of 17,656 pounds of live poultry were sold to the E. V. Eller Company, of North Wilkesboro, for $4,423.21. Not satisfied with having filled a car the farmers of the county brought in enough poultry to fill forty coops in addition. Numbers of farmers, not having time to wait on account of the rush, sold their poultry to local merchants or took it home. It is safe to say that at least enough chickens to fill two cars were brought to Asheboro Thursday.

The larger part of the poultry sold consisted of hens, although there were several hundred pounds of roosters and broilers. In the shipment were 14,854 pounds of hens which brought $3,839.23; 1,251 pounds of roosters bringing $187.61; 1,260 pounds of broilers, $567.00; 22 pounds of turkeys, $75.32; and 3 guineas which sold for 25 cents each, or a total of 75 cents. The difference in price brought by the poultry over that which it would bring on the local markets or to hucksters was approximately $1,103.84, not counting that paid for turkeys, ducks and guineas for which there is practically no market.

All day long the farmers came, from 7 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon, keeping the men at the car working until late in the night. Chickens and more chickens in all sorts of crates, sacks, baskets, and tied by the feet came in cars, wagons, buggies, trucks, and every conceivable mode of conveyance. They were brought by twos and threes and by hundreds, by farmers, housewife, country merchant, and buyers and sellers of chickens and eggs.

So great was the rush that each seller was given a number and his chickens were weighed and put in the car when his turn came. The weighing at the car was under the direction of Mr. V. M. Lewis of the agricultural extension service, E. S. Millsaps, the county agent, and Mr. Warlick, agent for the buyer. Each farmer was given a check at the car door for the price of his poultry and these checks were paid by the Bank of Randolph, which consented to handle the financial end of the transaction without charge. All day the bankers cashed checks for the farmers, some of whom deposited their money while others took the cash and made purchases from the stores in town, paid taxes, or put the money to some other good use. Many of them carried it home.

Mr. V. M. Lewis, livestock marketing specialist, of the North Carolina Division of Markets, O. P. McCrary, district farm extension agent, and county agent, E. S. Millsaps, Jr., county farm agent, put over the co-operative sale. For many weeks the county agent had been working up the sale, creating sentiment in its favor. It was an experiment in this county. Sales of this nature had been made in many other counties of the state and both buyers and sellers were pleased. Just how successful it would be in Randolph was problematical. It was decided not to wait until enough farmers had pledged chickens enough to fill a car, but to bring a car to Asheboro and try it out. Just how successful it was is shown by the large number of farmers who responded with chickens enough to fill two cars instead of the one. All were well pleased. Everything went off smoothly in a most business-like manner. Buyers and sellers were both patient and considerate in what was a trying job for all concerned.

This is only the beginning of the co-operative marketing of poultry in Randolph county. The county demonstrator says that if the farmers want it a car of broilers will be loaded under this plan in Asheboro about the second week in June. There is no doubt that the farmers of the county will be ready to co-operate in the next sale. Such a sale will enable them to sell their surplus broilers at good prices and at the same time relieve the congestion on the local market, which at best could not begin to handle the surplus poultry in the county.

Mrs. Blair, Former Randolph County Woman, Is Dead

Mrs. A. B. Blair, aged 62, died in an Asheboro hospital following an illness of several months, May 18th. Mrs. Blair was the daughter of the late Rev. D. Barrentine, who preached for a number of years in this county. Mrs. Blair was a consistent Christian woman and a member of a M. E. church in Asheville.

The deceased is survived by her husband, Alford Blair, who was on the Southern railroad run from Asheboro to High Point for a number of years, and he is also a brother of Mrs. John Ingrid and Mrs. C. E. Allen, of New York, and three daughters and two sons, all of Asheville. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Blair.

Some Sidelights On Co-Op Chicken Sale

The highest amount received for chickens brought to the co-operative sale last Thursday was $168.75. This went to A. R. Moore, of Liberty, Route 2. The smallest sum paid was 98c. Numbers brought chickens which brought from $10 to $20 and some more.

The average paid to each of the 275 who sold chickens at the sale was approximately $16.00. Mr. V. M. Lewis, livestock specialist of the bureau of farm extension, says that there is no reason why Randolph should not ship at least six carloads of poultry each year. Suppose the county did this. It would mean about $25,000 a year revenue from chickens. That would be $2,000 a month.

Think what $25,000 a year extra would mean to the farmers and business men of the county. And it must be remembered that if more chickens are raised the revenue would mount and there would be the money derived also from the sale of eggs.

There remains yet to be heard any complaint of the sale here Thursday. Everybody seems to have been well pleased.

INDIANA PEOPLE VISIT THE COUNTY

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Newsom, of Carthage, Ind., Here Tuesday—Motor Through County.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Newsom, of Carthage, Ind., were in the county Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. George White, of Guilford College, this State, looking up family records and visiting old family homesteads of their ancestors, who left the county early in the 18th century.

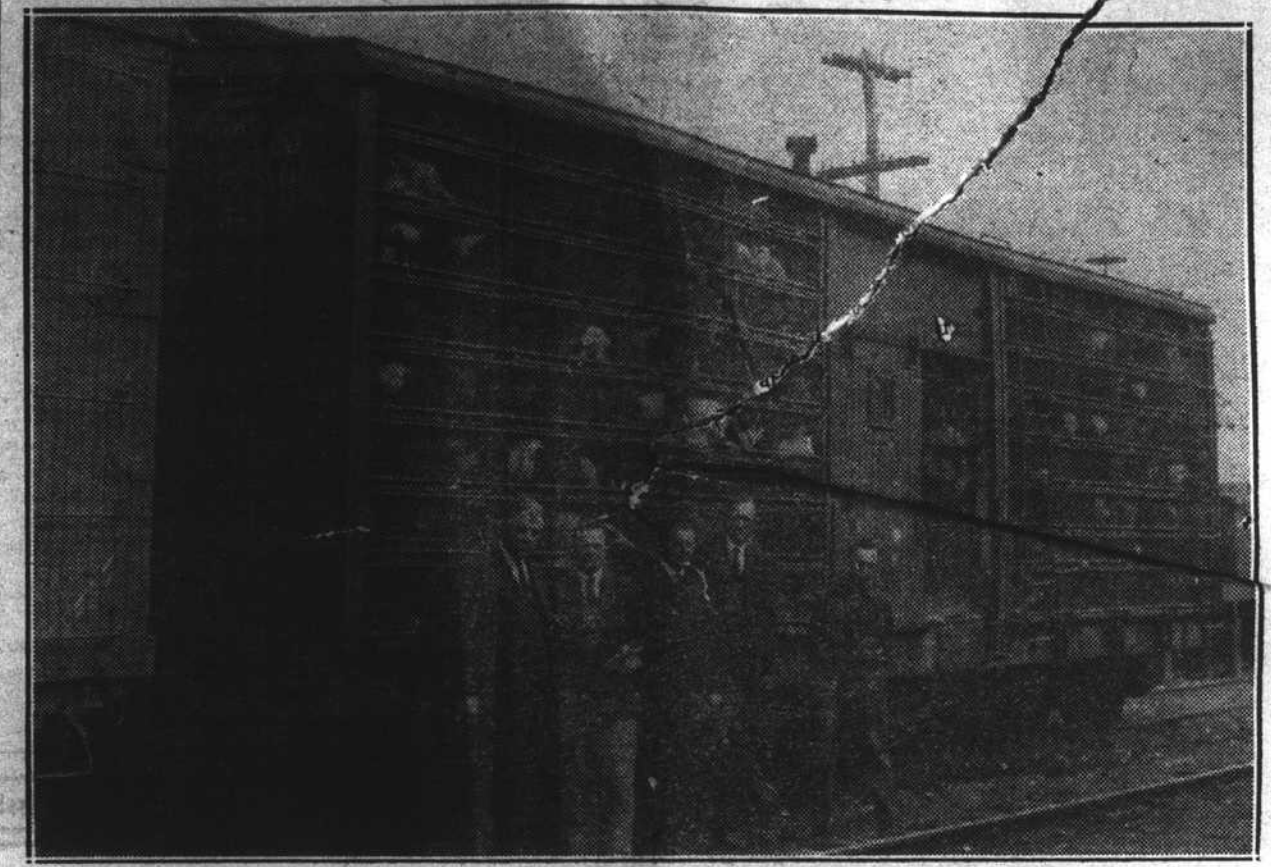

Mr. Newsom, now about 50 years of age, is the grandson of the late Luke Newsom, who lived with Nathan B. Hill, on the Uwharrie river. Luke Newsom left North Carolina in 1829 and settled in Rush county, Indiana. The grandmother of Sam Newsom, the wife of Luke Newsom, was, before her marriage, Cynthia Bulla, daughter of John and Peggy Rollins Bulla, who at one time lived in Asheboro. Mr. Newsom's father, who is now about 80 years old, lives with Mr. Newsom in Carthage, Ind.

Mrs. Newsom's grandfather was Elias Henley, who lived near Hill's Store, on Uwharrie. Thomas Henley, her father, left the State in the 19th century and settled on a farm in Indiana.

While here, the Newsoms and Mrs. White, accompanied by T. Fletcher Bulla, visited the old Thomas Bulla homestead on Back Creek. Thomas Bulla was Mr. Newsom's great great grandfather. The Nathan B. Hill homestead, now the home of Numa Thomsburg, on the Uwharrie, was also visited; and the Elias Henley homestead, now owned by the Walker boys.

Another place of interest visited was the old Uwharrie Friends church burying ground in New Hope township, the burying ground of the Hammond, Hill and Dunbar families. This burying ground has not been used for years. All tombstones, and there are about 150 of them, are of rock, except four. Some date as far back as 1794, and the inscriptions are still legible. Mr. and Mrs. Newsom left yesterday and will motor home by way of Salisbury and Greensboro.

BRINGS BIG LOT CHICKENS TO CO-OPERATIVE SALE

Mr. Moore, of Liberty, Route 2, Attracts Attention With His White Leghorns.

Among those who brought chickens to the sale here last Thursday was A. R. Moore, of Liberty, Route 2, who together with his father and brothers, conducts a large white leghorn poultry farm. Mr. Moore brought 280 white leghorn cockerels and about 25 old cocks for the sale. These were from a flock of approximately 2500 grown chickens and about 3,000 young chickens on their farm.

One of the Moore brothers makes a trip each week to the Greensboro market carrying chickens and eggs. During last winter their weekly average of eggs sold in Greensboro amounted to about three hundred dozen.

The night before he came to the sale, Mr. Moore was so unfortunate as to have one of his brooder houses catch fire from the brooder and burn to the ground. More than 300 young chickens were barred to death, only about ten or fifteen escaping.

The coops of white leghorns which Mr. Moore brought to the sale created quite a little interest and comment among the farmers and spectators at the sale.

The vessels were built hurriedly to be used during the war and were not well put together, according to Ford, and therefore not fit to use unless extensively repaired.

FINALS BEGIN AT GRADED SCHOOL

Exercises Given by Elementary Grades Last Tuesday Night—Ends June 3rd.

The commencement exercises of the Asheboro graded schools began Tuesday evening with a program in the auditorium by the departments of public school music and physical education. Three hundred children of the elementary grades took part in the program, together with 70 high school students. The program rendered demonstrated somewhat the work in these departments in the local school.

More than fifteen hundred people were present for the exercises. Every available seat in the auditorium was filled and standing room taken. A number of people went home on account of being unable to get seats, while a number of others stood on the outside and witnessed the exercises from the windows.

The children clearly demonstrated the splendid training they have been receiving in the way of physical education, art and music and civics. The program consisted of songs, rhythmic exercises, drills, and the like, and all were exceptionally well rendered. Many who were present have stated that the exercises were the best of the kind ever held in the auditorium.

Superintendent McManis stated at the beginning of the exercises that the school was trying to give the children the fundamentals in the platform system of reading, writing, and arithmetic in the home rooms and to enrich the course with public school music, physical education, art, civics, and history or citizenship, also nature study and geography.

The next part of the commencement exercises will be the senior play, "Seventeen," by Booth Tarkinton, Friday night, May 29th. All seats in the auditorium will be reserved and the admission fee charged adults will be 50 cents and 75 cents. Those desiring to see the play must purchase tickets calling for a particular seat.

Sunday morning, May 31st, at 11 o'clock, the baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the auditorium by Rev. B. E. Morris, pastor of the Asheboro Baptist church.

Class day exercises will be held Tuesday night, June 2nd, at 8 o'clock. One Wednesday morning, June 3rd, at 10:30 a. m. seventh grade certificates will be presented.

The exercises will close Wednesday night, June 3rd, with the literary address by Hon. E. D. Broadhurst, of Greensboro.

The teachers and students are working diligently on the program for the finals and this commencement promises to be one of the best ever held in the Asheboro schools. The people of the town are invited to come out for all of the exercises.

WILL BUILD LARGE DAM AT GARDNERS IN MOORE

To Make One of Largest Lakes In South—May Extend Moore Central Railroad.

Rock and material have been placed for the construction of a large concrete dam across Rocky river, near Gardners, in Moore county. The lake formed by the construction of the dam will be used, it is stated, for the development of hydro-electric power. This lake will be one of the largest in the South.

The dam will be 65 feet high and 806 feet long, creating a lake that will cover 2,200 acres of land and backing water within six miles of Bennet, located in the lower edge of Chatham county. In this section to be covered by the lake are high hills on either side and will create a depth of water from 40 to 60 feet. The dam will be constructed entirely of concrete, iron and rock.

Since the dam is located between the ends of the Moore Central and the Bonlee and Western, it has given rise to the rumor that the Moore Central will be extended to Bennet to connect with the B. and W., changing the original survey so as to use the dam as right of way for the road. No statement is forthcoming from the local offices of the two railroads in Asheboro as to the plans for the two lines. In Carthage and Bennet and that section generally it has been rumored for some time that the two roads would eventually be connected. In fact, it has become one of the cherished hopes of that progressive section of the state.

Considerable Speculation Over Site of New Duke Buildings

There is considerable speculation in Durham as to the site of the new proposed buildings for Duke University. It is understood that plans have been prepared which will call for the erection of the new buildings at some point not far distant from the present site and that the old college site will be connected with the new by an underpass and boulevard. Two thousand acres, it is said, have been purchased for the site. The old building, it is said, will become Southgate coordinate college for women. The material to be used in the new structures will be stone and quarried from a tract of land which Mr. Duke has purchased. It is estimated that an output of 150 tons of rock a day may be had from this tract of land.

Governor McLean has granted a reprieve of one week to Jim Collins, negro murderer of Adam county, to enable him to go to the state penitentiary to do his term under last year.
