When first discovered the hiere apic first drew a pistol on Mr. Staley, but was unable to use it. He then drew a knife cutting Mr. Staley about the neck and face, making a deep gash about three inches long on one side of his neck and barely missing the jugular vein.

The negro fled to the home of another negro not far from the Staley home and later into the woods. A posse of about fifty citizens, who had gathered after the alarm was given and the nature of the assault learned, pursued the negro and caught him in the woods.
