DEATH TAKES THE GREAT COMMONER

W. J. Bryan Passes Away Quietly in Dayton, Tenn.—Had Long Been Prominent.

William Jennings Bryan, three times Democratic candidate for President, writer and lecturer, famed the world over for his eloquence, died Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock at the home of a friend at Dayton, Tenn., at the age of 65 years. Death resulted from apoplexy after he had eaten a hearty dinner and had retired to his room to rest. He had been dead about 45 minutes before his death was known.

A short funeral service was held at Dayton Tuesday and the body taken to Washington yesterday where it will lie in state for a while, after which interment will be made in Arlington national cemetery Friday. Mr. Bryan was born in Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860. His father was a native of Virginia, a lawyer and a judge. The son graduated in law and practiced his profession in Illinois until 1887 when he moved to Lincoln, Nebraska.

He had long been active in political life. In the Presidential campaign of 1888 he spoke in behalf of the Democratic ticket. In 1889 he accepted the Democratic nomination for congress from his district, a Republican stronghold, was elected and served two terms in the House. Mr. Bryan was first nominated for the Presidency June 10, 1896, at the age of 36. He was the great champion of Free Silver. His "cross of gold" speech which electrified the convention has perhaps been quoted oftener than any of his other speeches and sayings. Mr. Bryan broke all records in the campaign which followed, making 600 speeches in 27 states and traveling 13,000 miles. He was defeated by William McKinley 176 votes in the electoral college to McKinley's 271.

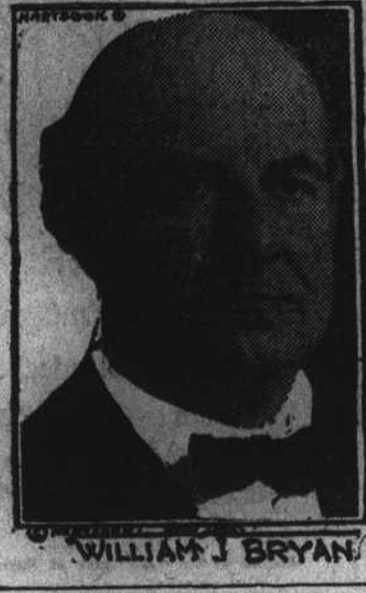

Again in 1900 he was the Democratic candidate for President. In this campaign his paramount issue was "anti-imperialism." Again he was defeated. Mr. Bryan returned to Lincoln, Nebraska, and began the publication of the Commoner, a weekly newspaper, and at the same time taking an active part in politics. In 1908 he was again called upon as a standard bearer of his party in the national campaign. This time he was defeated by Taft.

When Woodrow Wilson became President in 1913 he selected Mr. Bryan Secretary of State and the latter distinguished himself by negotiating a large number of peace treaties between the United States and other countries. He resigned June 9, 1915, because he disagreed with the President over a strong note dispatched to Germany.

For a long time Mr. Bryan had a home in Asheville, but had never become a citizen of this State. In recent years he had a home in Miami, Fla., and became a citizen of that State, and was a delegate to the last national convention from Florida, taking an active part in the deliberations of that body. When John T. Scopes, Tennessee school teacher, was indicted for teaching evolution in the schools of the State in violation of the law, Mr. Bryan volunteered his services to the prosecution. Following the conviction of Scopes he had been making speeches in Tennessee and had planned a tour of the country to combat modernism in religion.

Mr. Bryan was well known in North Carolina as in every other State of the Union. He had spoken many times in this State both in political campaigns and as a lecturer. At one time while he was Secretary of State he delivered a lecture on the Chautauque circuit in Asheville. Many of our citizens will remember having seen and heard the Great Commoner on that occasion. Although thrice defeated for the highest office in the land, Mr. Bryan had possibly the largest individual following of any man in American public life. However men may have differed with him on his stand on various questions all have given him credit for sincerity. He was a fundamentalist in religious matters. The country in his death has lost one of its greatest public leaders.

HARRIS PRESNELL, NATIVE OF RANDOLPH, DIES IN GUILFORD Harris Branson Presnell, aged 36, native of this county, died in a High Point hospital Monday evening following an illness of two weeks. The body was taken to the home of his sister at Seagrove and funeral services held yesterday at New Hope M. P. church with Rev. J. W. Hulin officiating. The Junior Order had charge of the services at the grave. Mr. Presnell was born in this county October 9, 1889, a son of G. H. and Clara Spencer Presnell. He had been employed at High Point for some time at the Tomlinson Chair Company plant. He was unmarried. Surviving are one brother, B. C. EDGAR GREEN IS KILLED IN RAID

Shot at Still in Robeson County—Was Native of Seagrove, This County.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at Maple Springs church for Edgar Green, 20-year-old white youth of the Seagrove community, who was killed in a gun fight between Robeson county officers and an unidentified man who was at a still with Green at the time of a raid late Thursday afternoon of last week. The still was located in a swamp about 22 miles south of Lumberton. When officers approached the still Green's companion, according to the testimony at the coroner's inquest, started shooting at the officers and ran. The officers returned the fire and when the smoke had cleared Green was found sitting against a tree mortally wounded. He was unable to tell his name or that of his companion. There was nothing on the body to identify the dead man except a watch with the letter "G" engraved on it. It is questionable, according to the testimony at the inquest, whether the officers killed Green or whether he was shot accidentally by his companion. He was killed by a single shot piercing the spine near the heart. The examining physician testified that the hole made by the shot was much larger than the hole that would be made by a buckshot with which the guns of the officers were loaded. The body was taken to an undertaking establishment at Lumberton where it lay until Sunday morning when Spurgeon Green, of Thomasville, identified the dead man as being his brother, Edgar Green. Relatives did not know his whereabouts, except that he had been in Robeson county for the past six weeks working for somebody.

The body, after being identified, was brought to the home of young Green's mother at Seagrove. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Fanny Green, and a sister, Miss Rosa Green, both of Seagrove; and by two brothers, Spurgeon Green, of Thomasville, and Raleigh Green, of Danville, Va.

SEAGROVE NEWS

Mr. Elias Asheworth, of Denver, Colo., is visiting relatives and friends in this community. Mr. Asheworth has been in this county since 1892. He is 83 years old. He says that North Carolina has made rapid progress since he left here. The unidentified moonshiner that was killed in an officer's raid in Robeson county last week was finally identified as Edgar Green, son of Mrs. Eli Greene who lives near here. His body was brought home Sunday and interred in the cemetery at Maple Springs church Monday.

SUPERIOR COURT NOW IN ITS SECOND WEEK

Number of Cases Have Been Tried—Will Close The Last of This Week.

Randolph county Superior court is in its second week. A number of civil actions on the docket have been disposed since court convened Monday, 20th. Cases that have been tried since last issue of The Courier and their disposition are as follows: Nathaniel Macon vs John Macon, compromised, plaintiff allowed $400, and defendant to have possession of the land mentioned in complaint free from rent and plaintiff to have home with defendant without cost if he so desires. J. A. Spence, commissioner, was allowed $58.56 from Minnie L. Edmondson, same being balance of purchase price on tract of land. Franklinville Store company in its action against W. J. Lowe recovered for breach of contract $465 with interest from April 21, 1921. J. A. Holder recovered $150 from the Cecil Manufacturing Company in his suit against this firm. Joe C. Swain, suing C. T. Headen, recovered $100 with interest from January 26, 1925, and the costs of the action. J. C. Holmes Lumber Company against Roy Ingram resulted in plaintiff recovering $85.06 and costs of the action in the form of a lien on Ingram's property until paid.

In the action, Jim Cunningham vs Jesse Foster, the defendants recovered from the plaintiff costs of the suit.

Nettie White vs Junior Order United American Mechanics in which $500 was involved was nonsuited and plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court.

The Southeastern Express Company gave notice of appeal to the Supreme Court from verdict rendered last week in which the judgment of the court was that the plaintiff, Deep River Duroc Farm, recover $150 from the defendant.

Case against C. C. Cheek brought by M. R. Walden over a lumber account was in the hands of the jury yesterday afternoon.

Court will probably continue today and tomorrow.

Cut Coal Rates

Coal rates from the Clinchfield and Pocahontas districts into North Carolina will be reduced from 17 to 20 cents on the ton, effective August 20, due to the activities on the part of the North Carolina Corporation Commission putting the matter up to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The consumer is wondering if there will be a corresponding reduction in the price of coal this fall and winter.

NORTH CAROLINA GETS FEDERAL ROAD MONEY

According to figures given out by the federal bureau of public roads, North Carolina has 217.1 miles of new roads under construction through federal aid at a cost of $8,280,397.44 and 43.6 miles in new projects approved for construction at a cost of $1,392,882.10. Other federal funds available for new projects total $1,054,348.35.

Since the fiscal year of 1917 this makes a grand total of more than $30,000,000 expended and yet to be expended in this State as federal aid to highways.

RAILROAD COMPANY SUED FOR DEATH OF PREACHER

O. G. Allen, administrator on the estate of C. R. Sorrell, Baptist minister who was killed when his car was struck by a Sanford bound A. and Y. train at Macedonia church, near Liberty, September 5th, 1924, has started a suit for $30,000 in Guilford county Superior court against the railroad company and the receivers operating the line. A similar suit has been started by the heirs of Rev. Chisman, who was killed at the same time.

Revs. Sorrell and Crissman were conducting a revival at Macedonia church and on the day they were killed were returning to the church for afternoon services.

BOOK TRUCK IS A GREAT SUCCESS

Miss Petty Loans More than 300 Books In Three Days To 100 People.

Miss Annie F. Petty of the State Library Commission, at Raleigh, with her truck load of books came into the county last Thursday by way of the mountain road from High Point. She left early yesterday morning by way of the Seagrove road for Moore county. During her stay in Randolph she visited more than 100 homes and loaned more than 300 books. It was Miss Petty's intention to stay in the county all this week and follow the routes which were laid out for her and published in last week's issue of The Courier, but a last minute decision on the part of the library commission sent her to Moore and Montgomery counties also on her experimental trip. Miss Petty would have been glad to have stayed in Randolph the entire time such was the response she was getting from the people along the routes which she traveled. It is with regret on the part of this paper and the people of the county that she could not stay longer.

Besides visiting more than 100 homes on her tours in the county, Miss Petty with her book truck made several stops at community centers, one at Farmer being especially fruitful of results. The people she visited were glad to learn of the library service and were eager to borrow from the selection of books in the truck.

Monday was taken up in a visit to the summer school in session in Asheville. Here Miss Petty explained the work of the commission to the more than 100 teachers in attendance and left them better acquainted with the service the library commission is doing for the people of the State.

Miss Petty is enthusiastic over the results of the experiment of bringing the service of the State Library Commission to the people. Tours of this nature are not permanent parts of the service given, but are made only for the purpose of acquainting the people of the State of what the library commission can do for them. Any person in the State may write the State Library Commission, Raleigh, N. C., giving the title of the book that it is desired to borrow and if the book is on hand it will be mailed to the person who makes the request. The book may be kept three weeks and the only charge for the loan of the book is the postage required to mail the book, which is something like from 6 to 10 cents each way, depending on the weight of the book. It is expected that a large number of people of the county will avail themselves of this opportunity to obtain good books for reading.

MRS. NANCY E. HUNT DIES IN HIGH POINT

Funeral services were conducted Monday at Back Creek church, this county, for Mrs. Nancy Eldora Hunt, widow of the late V. L. Hunt, who died at her home, 406 Malloy Street, High Point, Saturday afternoon. Her death followed an illness of three weeks from typhoid fever.

REV. MORRIS WILL PREACH THE NEXT OUTDOOR SERVICE

The outdoor Sunday night services in Asheville have been very much enjoyed by the church-going people of our town. There is something cool and informal about a community meeting under the trees that all of us like. We are all pulling together in the sort of spirit that we believe our Master would have commended. The service next Sunday night will be conducted by Rev. B. E. Morris, pastor of the Baptist church. Special music will be furnished by a male quartette. Come a few minutes before 8 o'clock in order to get a comfortable seat.
