Judge C. C. Lyon Is Presiding—Will Continue Two Weeks—Several Cases Tried.

The special term of Randolph county Superior Court for the trial of criminal cases convened in the court house in Asheboro Monday morning with Judge C. C. Lyon, of Elizabethtown, presiding.

The grand jury was chosen as follows: I. F. Craven, foreman, and Fletcher L. Stout, Peter Allred, B. F. Ridge, Matthew Cagle, A. V. Phillips, Chas. M. Fox, S. B. Stedman, L. E. Beason, C. E. Cranford, R. V. Toomes, D. F. Richardson, W. Earl Macon, J. O. Kearns, C. L. Scott, J. L. Haithcock, A. D. Wells and R. L. Richardson.

The following compose the petit jury: C. W. Varner, C. T. Hughes, M. C. Robbins, Thomas Farlow, O. R. Trogdon, E. C. Hinshaw, W. T. Barnes, C. S. Cox, T. T. Pierce, R. E. Macon, W. A. Beap, E. D. Skeen, J. B. Allen, W. L. Strider and L. P. Foust.

Those called and not found were C. R. Brown, M. E. Hopkins, R. R. Simmons, Fred Plummer and S. G. Phillips.

Judge Lyon's Charge

Judge Lyon was very brief in his charge to the grand jury, but very emphatic and concise in his remarks. He was cognizant of the criticism of the grand jury system in North Carolina as mirrored in the press of the State. He stated that there have been miscarriages of justice in North Carolina, although he did not go into details as to the instances. The fault, according to the judge, lies in the system of selecting the jury. He took the stand that men chosen for jury duty should be selected for their knowledge and outstanding character, that they should be intelligent enough to understand the law and its application to each case brought before it.

These men should be chosen and sworn for a term of one year and should be paid for their services. He impressed upon the grand jury that it was the certainty of punishment that acted as a deterrent of crime, not the severity of punishment. Every man who violates the law, said the judge, should be punished for his own benefit and that of society in general. He touched lightly on the four capital crimes, murder in the first degree, burglary, arson and rape.

The judge reminded the jury that he could not call attention to all (Continued on page 8)

DETAILS OF THE WATER SHORTAGE

Mayor McCrary Laid the Situation Before People of Town in Meeting Monday.

The citizens of Asheboro were Monday night given some information relative to the town's water supply. Mayor McCrary called a mass meeting of the citizens for the purpose of laying the facts about the water shortage before them.

The mayor described in detail the efforts made by the town authorities to get sufficient water to supply the needs of the people of Asheboro. He explained that when the authorities saw the water shortage imminent they began looking about for and additional supply to supplement that furnished by the ponds.

Through the kindness of Mr. McGrew of the McGrew mine the town was permitted to lay a pipe line to the mine and use the water available there in two abandoned shafts. This source furnishes from 30 to 40 gallons per minute of pure water. The old town well, furnishing about 12 to 15 gallons per minute, was put into use as was the well at the Acme Hosiery Mill, which furnished a like amount. The Cranford Industries tendered the use of their well, but since it furnished only about seven gallons a minute it was not found practicable to make use of this source.

The water at the old copper mine north of town was also investigated, but this source was condemned by the health authorities for the reason that it contained too much iron and other minerals.

The normal consumption of water by the citizens and manufacturing industries and business places in town is from 100 to 150 gallons per minute. The sources mentioned did not supply more than a third of the consumption, so efforts had to be made to get water elsewhere, the

DR. G. A. FOSTER DIES AT LIBERTY

Was Long a Prominent Citizen, Having Served His County in the Legislature.

Dr. G. A. Foster, 69 years of age, died at his home in Liberty Thursday of last week. He was one of the county's most prominent physicians. He was born and reared in Alamance county, near the Randolph county line. He received his education in the public schools, later attending J. W. Thompson's military school, at Oakdale, in those days a splendid school. Dr. Foster then went to Baltimore where he entered the Baltimore Medical College. During the vacations he practiced with the late Dr. John W. Page, near Burlington. After completing his medical education Dr. Foster returned to his home community and began the practice of his profession.

He was married to Miss Margaret Whitesell and to this union was one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Gregg, of Liberty. Dr. and Mrs. Foster moved to Liberty many years ago. Since his wife's death five years ago, Dr. Foster's niece had been living with him.

While the deceased underwent an operation a few weeks ago, he had recuperated and was in his usual state of health until on the day prior to his death when he began suffering with his head. He remarked to his son-in-law, Dr. Gregg, the evening before the end came that if any of his patients had similar symptoms he would pronounce the ailment a burst blood vessel, but regretted having to diagnose his own case that way knowing the result.

At bed time he urged Dr. and Mrs. Gregg to go home and rest, saying the telephone would be connected and they would be notified of any change. He apparently rested during the night and at six o'clock Thursday morning upon being asked by his niece as to his condition said, "I do not understand," and just here gasped and the end came, Dr. and Mrs. Gregg arriving just as he died.

In the passing of Dr. Foster the county has lost a good citizen, the community a good, conscientious physician and the daughter an ideal, sympathetic father. An unusual tribute paid by Dr. Gregg to his father-in-law is that "All that I am that is worth while is due to Dr. Foster and his influence." He was at all times interested in civic and educational affairs and upon numerous occasions has assisted worthy young people in securing an education.

He was a Mason and also a member of the J. O. U. A. M. He represented this county in the Legislature from 1912 to 1916. He was president of the Bank of Liberty and was prominently connected in other business affairs.

The funeral was conducted from the Baptist church at 2 o'clock Friday by Rev. T. L. Ellington. The many beautiful floral offerings and the large assemblage of relatives and friends attested the high esteem in which Dr. Foster was held. The Junior Order had charge of the funeral service.
