Engineer Joe Stedman Sets Up A Remarkable Record

Engineer Joe Stedman, who was for many years a resident of Asheboro while he piloted an engine on the line between Asheboro and High Point, and who now has a run on the main line of the Southern, set up a new record one day last week. Stedman covered the 159 miles from Monroe, Va., Spencer, N. C., without having to take on water for his engine, which is number 1896, and one of those splendid new green locomotives used to pull fast train No. 37. It was a fine day and a great run, the first ever made on this distance by any engineer without taking on water. When Stedman reached Spencer he calmly measured the water in the engine's tank and declared he still had enough to continue the run to Charlotte.

Asheboro School To Open Sept. 8

Preparations Being Made For Opening—Colored School To Open Week Later.

The Asheboro high school will open Wednesday, September 8th, according to the town school board. Every preparation possible is being made for the opening of the fall term. The entire faculty has been chosen and in the opinion of school people is one of the strongest the local school has ever had. The superintendent, Prof. Ralph Hillier, and his wife have been in Asheboro for some time and Mr. Hillier has entered actively into the preparations for the school opening. The outlook is for a very successful school this term.

The colored school is to open one week later, the contract with the builders calling for the completion of the new school building in east Asheboro by that time. Probably few people in Asheboro know that this new, modern brick school building for the colored race is not costing the people of Asheboro one penny, the money for the work being furnished by the State and the Rosenwald Fund. The only expense incident to its construction which the town will have to incur is the extension of the water lines to the new structure.

This expense, it is presumed, the town will assume in order to assist in making the building modern in every respect since no other outlay from the town treasury is called for in the erection of the building.

The barn near the house was set on fire, but was extinguished by neighbors who had gone to the scene of the fire upon seeing the house in flames. An empty oil can was found near the fire at the barn and the timbers showed evidence of having been soaked in kerosene. There was nobody living in the house at the time of the fire.

Spent On Graveling Highways In County.

Three members, G. Elwood Stanton, H. S. Ragan and S. C. Frazier, were present last Friday at a meeting of the county board of commissioners, which considered chiefly road matters. T. E. White, W. R. Neece and O. T. ## Death Claims Mrs. S. J. Smitherman

End Came Following Stroke of Paralysis Friday Night At Her Home In Troy.

FUNERAL HELD SUNDAY

Mrs. S. J. Smitherman died at her home in Troy Saturday following a stroke of paralysis Friday night. She had been in her usual health during the day Friday. She was found unconscious sitting in a chair late in the evening by her granddaughter. She died about noon Saturday without having regained consciousness.

Mrs. Smitherman had recently been to Baltimore to consult specialist concerning a former ailment but was assured her condition was much improved. She was before her marriage Miss Monroe. She and her husband have been actively interested in every phase of activity and progress in the community in which they lived. They joined the M. E. church in Troy together soon after their marriage and until the death of Mr. Smitherman a few years ago, they stood side by side in the upbuilding of the church and community.

Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. Smitherman was elected president of the Smitherman cotton mill and it is a singular coincidence that the death of D. M. Nordan, who had for many years been superintendent of the factory, died Saturday night following Mrs. Smitherman's death at noon.

Mrs. Smitherman truly went about doing good. That her kindness extended not only to the white people of the community but also to the colored as well was demonstrated at the funeral Sunday afternoon when the throng of colored people surrounded the church during the service and sorrowed with the host of white friends assembled.

Mr. and Mrs. Smitherman were the parents of twelve children, nine of whom survive, and are as follows: Mrs. Sam Ewing, Candor; Mrs. W. R. Royal, Washington, N. C.; Mrs. Frank Hurley, Troy; Mrs. J. C. Hurley, Troy; Mrs. W. L. Trotter, Greensboro; Misses Mary and Grace Smitherman, Troy; and Guy and S. J. Smitherman, Jr., of Troy.
