Mrs. R. R. Ross Is Claimed By Death

Died Sunday Morning Following Attack of Pneumonia Two Weeks Ago.

FINE CHRISTIAN WOMAN She Lived Most Beautifully and Loved Devotedly.

Mrs. Hannah Rebecca Ellen McCulloch, wife of Mr. R. R. Ross, died at her home in Asheboro Sunday morning following an attack of pneumonia and accompanying complications. Mrs. Ross was stricken suddenly and for two weeks she fought disease with the same courage and fortitude which was characteristic of her life, but she was unable to win the fight of life.

Mrs. Ross was the daughter of Joseph Dobson and Sarah Julian Mc-Culloch, of Guilford county. She was born March 5th, 1854. In her early girlhood she professed faith in Christ and joined Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church of which her forefathers were loval and staunch

At the age of twenty, she was married to Mr. R. R. Ross with whom she has lived happily for fifty-three years, the anniversary of their marriage being the day after she was stricken with her last and fatal illness. Mr. and Mrs. Ross lived for many years at Level Cross where they were active members of the Methodist Protestant church. They later moved to Randleman where they carried their church letters and aided in the upbuilding of the church of their faith. Thirty-seven years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Ross moved to Asheboro and having no church here cooperated in laying plans for the organization of a Methodist Protestant church and were enrolled as charter members. Mrs. Ross has been actively connected with the various organizations of the church. She was president of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society for many years, and was superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society in the was not only interested in the enganizations of her own church but lent her sympathetic co-operation to all activities of other churches and in civic and human betterment undertakings in the town. When the prohibition fight was on in the state she took a leading part and during the war her patriotism was demonstrated by her falling in time with plans tall by our

SUGGESTED RUTHERFORD BE MOVED TO TRINITY

In the event Rutherford College is moved, it has been suggested that it be located at Trinity in Randolph county, the site of old Trinity College, now Duke University, Durham, founded by Br. Braxton Craven. It is also suggested that the name be change to Trinity College and the old institution be thereby incarnated in the new. Rutherford College is a Methodist institution as was Trinity College and as is now Duke University. It is argued that old Trinity furnishes an ideal site for the college. The present Trinity high school has a large and commodious building situated on large tract of school property. If this site were not available, it said that there would be no trouble in getting grounds at Trinity for the college buildings. People in the Trinity community are said to be favorable to the moving of Rutherford College there. In fact, Randolph county people would probably be unanimous in their view of this location for the college should it be moved from its present location. Lexington and various other cities have been trying for Rutherford, and it would not be out of place for Randolph county, birthplace of Duke University, to make a bid for the col-

SATURDAY IS DATE FOR SHERIFF'S SETTLEMENT

Saturday afternoon is the time set by the county commissioners for final settlement with ex-sheriff J. Free Cranford. The defaulting sheriff, who owes the county something like $21,000, failed to settle with the commissioners February 12th, and representatives of his surety failed to make their appearance on that date. Therefore, the county board set the date up two weeks and this time is out Saturday. An attorney for the bonding company, surety for Mr. Cranford, is in town, and the presumption is that he will be present Saturday when the commissioners call for a show down. Sheriff Cranford resigned more than a month ago, and the final settlement which was due not later than May of last year, but was not called for by the old board, has been hanging fire since that time.
