Gideon T. Macon Claimed By Death

End Came Tuesday Following Long Illness—Lived In Asheboro 9 Years.

Buried At Farmer

Gideon Thomas Macon, aged 69 ears, died at his home on Cox street, in Asheboro, Tuesday late after an illness lasting for some time. Mr. Macon was born in Randolph cou January 10, 1858. He was reared in the fellowship of the Friends church, but later in life affiliated with the M. E. church, of which he was a faithful member. He had been unable, however, the last few years of his life to attend church services and to take his usual active part in church work. During the three years of his illness he bore his suffering with patience, never complaining.

Mr. Macon was married to Miss Louisa Lewis in 1889 and to this union was born one son, Arthur B. Macon, of Mt. Airy, who survives, together with his mother. He leaves also four grandchildren. Mr. Macon for many years was postmaster at Farmer and operated a general store at that place and also the telepho exchange. He was ever active in the affairs of his community. In 1918 he and Mrs. Macon moved to Asheboro to make their home. He opened a store in the old J. S. Ridge stand on South Fayetteville street which he operated for about two years. He closed out this store and save for a little light work at times retired from business.

The funeral service was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home on Cox street by Rev. B. C. Reavis, pastor of the Asheboro M. E. church, and the body later taken to Concord church cemetery, Farmer, for

Seems That New Interest Is Taken In Rush Mine

Lee Sullivan, of Thomasville, veteran miner and prospector, the Dispatch tells us, brought to Lexington one day last week two phials of gold flakes, worth about $1.35, which he had taken from the Rush mine in Union township, Randolph county. Sullivan claimed to have panned for several weeks at the mine and found no dirt which did not contain gold. Two forty-foot shafts have been sunk at the mine, according to Sullivan, and some samples taken from these shafts highway from Asheboro to beyond the Maple Grove Dairy, and the topsoillaid to rest in the Pisgah cemetery.
