The Greater Randolph Fair
Next week is Fair Week in Randolph. Will we all do our part. It should be a matter of pride with the farmers of the county to bring out their products and to fairly represent the county.

Several farmers have definitely promised to put on Farm Displays at the fair and I still hope that there will be others that will decide at the last minute to put on these displays yet. In case you do please let me hear from you as soon as possible.

If you cannot put on a complete farm display you can certainly help out with the main exhibit by putting in the things that you do have. We are moving this display out into the center aisle this year where it can be seen better and we hope that it will be well worth looking over. Let's all get together on this and resolve that the farming interests of the county will be all that they should be at the fair this year.

An added feature this year will be a special tobacco display. In addition to the premiums offered in the catalog, there will be premiums of $7.50 and $4.00 for the best display of three hands each of four different grades of tobacco. A special booth will be used for the tobacco display and we hope to be able to take care of the tobacco so that it will not be damaged. In the past this has been one of the main reasons that tobacco farmers have not shown their tobacco.

Another special feature in the farm crops division this year will be a judging contest of farm crops and seeds. Any farmer or his wife can enter this contest. The one making the highest score in this contest will be awarded $10.00 in Gold. This feature is being added this year with the hope of causing more interest in identifying the crops that are immediately around our very doors. There will be nothing in the contest that does not grow in the county. It will be well for all who intend trying this contest to be studying up on grasses and weeds around the farm.

There are more fine bred chickens in the county this year than ever before, but how are the people who want to buy them to find it out unless we show them. Don't just say, well there are better chickens than mine in the county and not bring yours. Many, many farmers have said that and then come to the fair and after looking over the poultry say that they had better than that at home. Bring them out and let the judge decide who has the best. In that case if you lose you will know where you can get breeding stock another year. If yours are the best the other fellow will want some of yours. Bring them along.

I have already said a lot about the cattle show, but really I think that it is up to the breeders of the county to show the rest of the farmers of the county what they have in the way of good cattle and especially Guernseys. It is a well known fact that Randolph county is rapidly coming to the front as a Guernsey stronghold and we should bring them out. There are some 80 odd Guernsey bulls in the county and we should have twenty or twenty-five of them at the fair. Don't wait on the other fellow to do what you should do yourself. We are hoping to have five or six complete herds at the fair but we also want as many individual entries as possible. I realize that you do not have any for sale at this time, but you may have some later so why not let the other fellow know that you are in the game and at the same time do a good piece of

Would you have missed them, a kind word or two
Is he better or worse for his meeting with you?
What matters his station, what matters his dress?
Did you lighten his care or increase his distress?
Did you wish him good luck as he went on his way?
Whenever he thinks of you what does he say?
What if he wasn't a man of your style,
Would it have hurt you to give him a smile?
What if he wasn't well-bred or refined,
Are you the better for being unkind?
How did you greet him that day at your gate?
Did you add to his courage or add to his hate?
He thinks the world selfish, he says it is cold,
He vows that men serve only idols of gold.
Well, now that he's seen you and stopped at your door,
Has he gone on his way still disgruntled and sore?
Can he back his queer notions of all that men do
By citing your meanness, and pointing to you?
Oh, man in your plenty, and man in your pride,
Don't add to the burdens of those who are tried.
Be gentle, be thoughtful, be kindly of heart,
Don't grow bitter and scornful because you are smart.
Be fair with your brothers in all that you do,
Send them on feeling better for having met you.

boosting for Old Randolph, the best County in the State.
There should also be several grade herds at the fair this year. While we hope to get as many people as possible interested in registered cattle we must recognize the importance of the grade cow and as much emphasis has been placed on her this year as on purebreds by making the premiums the same on both. We hope for an overflowing barn in the cattle department this year.

Swine Department
There is very little use for me to waste words in saying that we have sadly neglected this department in the past. Outsiders who visited our fair last year said it was good, but that we did not have the livestock on exhibit that we should have. Let's bring out our hogs as well as our cattle this year and fairly represent our county. When we fail to show our livestock we are giving out to the general public the wrong impression of the industry of the county. It may not seem to us at the time that we received enough premiums to pay us for our time and trouble, but we must remember that when we are helping the county as a whole that we are also helping ourselves.

It should be a matter of personal pride with each and every farmer in the county to make the County Fair just as good as he or she can possibly do. If each of you will do that this year there is no doubt of the kind of fair that we will have. In other words we will have the best fair in the state this year and I see no reason why we cannot do so. Let's try.

William E. Beck was born Aug. 10, 1848, died Aug. 8, 1927, at the home of his son, Ben. He was 78 years, 11 mo. and 28 days old. On July 30, 1874 he was married to Alice F. Williams, who preceded him to the grave in 1895. To this union were born seven boys and one girl, of which six are living and two dead. The living are: Eli and Robert Beck, of Asheboro; Ben and Earl Beck, of Errett; Rufus Beck, of Carthage; and Minnie Suggs, of Ether.

In 1896 he was married the second time to Francis Craven who preceded him to the grave in 1924. To this union were born one girl and two boys, Ada Beck, of Ether; Charlie Beck, of High Point; and Ernest Beck, of Siler City. He had three sisters, all of whom are dead; and one brother, John Beck, who is still living. He had thirty-five grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

He was a member of Riverside Baptist church. His health had been declining for a long time and he had been sick for two months but not confined until on Sunday morning, Aug. 7, he was taken seriously ill and the death angel came and took him home on Monday morning, Aug. 8, where sickness, sorrow, and death can never come. He told his brother a short time before his death that he was ready and willing to go, and had told his children to not grieve, after he was gone for he would be better off. His request the evening before his death to his children was to have engraved on his tombstone the following words: "Saved by Grace." Six of his granddaughters were the flower girls, six of his grandsons were the pall bearers.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. C. Kidd, of Bennett, and his remains were laid to rest in Christian Union cemetery. How sad it is to give up father, how, how we will miss him, just to know we can never see him on earth no more. But the great consolation is of the blessed hope of meeting him again where death can come no more.—His children.

A son of J. T. Coggins in Randolph county has invented a small machine to hull green cowpeas. The boy can shell a bushel of the peas in 45 minutes with his machine. Formerly, this would take one-half a day with the whole family at work.

Longer Lives—And Better

There is a more widespread interest in the fundamental principles of health than ever before. And there is less interest in faddism. Instead of remaining purely a sewing-circle topic for those who have lost their health and are attempting to regain it, health is taking the forefront in schools, in magazines, in homes. The medical profession, long enjoying its cloak of mystery, has of late years come to life and is taking the lead in fostering sane views of how to live happily. It is only as the medical profession thus serves that it will survive and prosper.

Having, by brilliant work in research, in practice, and in education, succeeded in greatly lowering the rate of infant mortality, therapeutics turned its attention to the other major problem of lengthening the work-life of man kind. And here too, success is well on the way. Gradually, the years are being added. They are not being added because of their heroic remedies applied at the deathbed, but because of sensible measures applied in youth and in middle age.

By slow degrees, we are learning that the cleaner lives we live, the longer is our expectation. We are beginning to see that bodily abuses and excesses constitute their own form of punishment. The more exemplary our lives, the more composed our consciences and the greater the likelihood of attaining a ripe old age. Furthermore, the sleep we give our selves today, the rational diet we follow now, will bless us through myriad to-morrows. Health is the natural concomitant

Circus lovers of this vicinity will have an opportunity to witness Philip Eddy, originator of the somersault on the tight wire, when John Robinson's Circus comes in the near future. Eddy was the first man to ever turn a somersault on the wire and has appeared in practically every county on the face of the globe. Several imitators have attempted the same feat with varying success the past few years.
Karoline Eddy is a sensational dancer on the wire, doing all the stunts from the Valencia to the Black Bottom. The Edrys are just one of the many acts of international reputation with John Robinson's Circus.
