For President Coolidge to talk about economy is all bunk. He saves $12.86 on lead pencils in the government departments in a year but when he went to Black Hills he took nine railroad cars elegantly furnished and he was accompanied by a party of eighty people on the train. Advance preparation at the summer capitol in South Dakota, telegraph and telephone wires were variously estimated to cost from forty to two hundred thousand dollars.

BUY AT HOME
Ever a pertinent subject is the question of patronizing of home merchants or the buying of goods elsewhere. The merchants in small towns usually complain that their trade is being lured to the larger towns and cities. These larger towns and cities, in turn, complain that the cream of the business in their town is going to still larger trade centers.

If purchase is made by mail it is by catalogue description, not selection; it is for cash, not credit; time is lost and added expense involved in correspondence and carrying charges. If the article proves not altogether what was expected, it never affords a feeling of satisfaction. It is kept because it was "cheap." Count in the many factors involved in out-of-town buying, and the home merchant can meet them, article for article.

But there is a broader side to buying at home, a selfish, community consideration that can't be ignored by the citizen. The community is no better than its business makes it and if its business is sent to some other community it is that community which prospers, while the home town suffers. If you don't trade with your own merchants they cannot trade with you. Thus even could economies be made by out-of-town buying the ultimate ill effect would far offset any possible individual saving.

Sow Wheat This Fall Following Soybean Crop
Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 10.—The best field on the farm to plant some wheat this fall is the one where soybeans were grown this summer.

Growers Protest Low Price Of Weed
Tobacco growers in Stokes, Surry, Rockingham, Forsyth, Yadkin, Davie and Davidson counties voiced their disapproval of the low price being paid for the weed on the market at Winston-Salem in a mass meeting at Danbury Monday. Tobacco farmers in Randolph and in other counties, as for that matter, are dissatisfied with the prices on the Winston-Salem market. But the farmers in the counties named above, those who produce the larger amount of the tobacco that is sold on the Twin City market, gave vent to their disapproval Monday by drawing up a set of resolutions condemning the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and several of the other big tobacco manufacturing corporations for the low prices which they are paying for the farmers' tobacco and pledging themselves to sell no more tobacco on the Winston-Salem market until after Saturday.

Hold Meeting At Danbury And Agree To Cut Acreage In Half Next Year.
Wheat after corn, cotton or tobacco means that the grower will have trouble in disposing of the old stalks. This is not true where wheat is planted after soybeans. Usually, also, the yield of wheat is comparatively low after corn or cotton because it is necessary to wait too late for seeding the crop. If the corn is cut and shocked, to permit earlier planting, the land where the shocks stand will be left out and the yield consequently lowered.

Card Of Thanks
We wish to thank the people of this community for the many deeds of kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our husband and father and for the many beautiful floral offerings.—Mrs. J. T. Gardner and children.

Field Takes Sixth Place
Asheboro, N. C., Oct. 10.—The field of the county, was winner of sixth place in the "Better Stock" campaign at the county fair held in North Carolina at Raleigh last week. The field was raised on the farm of Mr. J. T. Gardner.

Decision On Teapot Dome Oil Leases Severely Criticizes Cabinet Official.

The United States Supreme Court handed down a decision Monday ordering the return to the government the naval oil reserve fields in Wyoming, involved in the Teapot Dome lease made by Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in President Harding's cabinet, to Harry F. Sinclair. The court held that all the facts in the case showed that the lease of the government reserves was made by Fall to Sinclair fraudulently and in conspiracy against the government of the United States. The opinion handed down by the highest court in the land was severe in its criticism of Albert B. Fall. Referring to the payment of $35,000 in Liberty Bonds to Fall by Sinclair and later $70,000 of $200,000 in bonds which were handed to Fall's son-in-law, the court said that this "strengthens and confirms the inference that Fall had been willing to conspire to defraud the United States; and, taken in connection with other circumstances, it is persuasive evidence of such conspiracy between him and Sinclair."

It will be recalled that six years ago the Elk Hills naval oil reserves in California were leased by Secretary Fall to Edward L. Doheny and the Teapot Dome reserves in Wyoming by the same government official were handed over to Harry F. Sinclair. The circumstances under which these leases were made aroused the country and led the Senate to investigate the matter. Three years ago the Senate investigating committee uncovered a scandal with reference to the leases which rocked the country to its foundations and drove from public office under a cloud government officials high and low. Since the investigation one after another court actions have been taken until finally the Supreme Court has declared that both leases, Elk Hills and Teapot Dome, were fraudulent. Both oil reserves will revert to the government, opinion in behalf of the government regarding the Doheny lease of Elk Hills having some time ago been reached by the court.

J. E. Allen Makes Good Record Selling Insurance

J. E. Allen, of Liberty, was in Asheboro on business Saturday. Mr. Allen, who was for five years head of the Liberty high school, and later principal at Chase City, Va., is now located in Liberty engaged in the life insurance business. Mr. Allen is a representative of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, of Greensboro, working under the supervision of the Home Office Agency. During the past two months Mr. Allen has had the distinction of leading his 52 brother agents in nine counties both in the number of applications taken and total amount of life insurance placed. Mr. Allen has been in Liberty for the past six weeks and expects to make it his home. He bought a house and lot there when he was principal of the high school expecting at some time to return there permanently.

Growers Protest Low Price Of Weed

Hold Meeting At Danbury And Agree To Cut Acreage In Half Next Year.

Tobacco growers in Stokes, Surry, Rockingham, Forsyth, Yadkin, Davie and Davidson counties voiced their disapproval of the low price being paid for the weed on the market at Winston-Salem in a mass meeting at Danbury Monday. Tobacco farmers in Randolph and in other counties, as for that matter, are dissatisfied with the prices on the Winston-Salem market. But the farmers in the counties named above, those who produce the larger amount of the tobacco that is sold on the Twin City market, gave vent to their disapproval Monday by drawing up a set of resolutions condemning the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and several of the other big tobacco manufacturing corporations for the low prices which they are paying for the farmers' tobacco and pledging themselves to sell no more tobacco on the Winston-Salem market until after Saturday.

The farmers at the Danbury meeting agreed that they produced this year the best tobacco in fourteen years, that they had grown the kind the manufacturers had advised them they wanted in their business, but that the price was far below the average. They pledged themselves to cut their tobacco acreage next year in half. It came out at the meeting that a share in the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company had since 1919 earned $428 in cash dividends and $3,000 in stock dividends. This was a little excessive, thought the farmers, and showed that the tobacco growers were being fleeced for the benefit of the manufacturers.

Five different kinds of $10 bills are in circulation in the United States.

Health for Females in Open-Air Exercise

There seems to be no reason why a woman or girl should not get as much enjoyment out of life as any man or boy. Too many of our sex consider themselves hothouse flowers. If the weather is cold or stormy they will not venture outdoors. The sun must be shining and the weather warm before they will spend any time outside. Whether it is cold or warm, calm or stormy, every woman and girl should spend at least three hours daily in the open air. Not merely resting, but walking, washing or playing some game. Being in the fresh air is all right in a way, but to get 100 per cent value out of the good air, one should exercise in it. Even if the exercise consists only of deep breathing, this, at least, exercises the lungs. I find that too many women neglect their breathing. They very seldom take a deep breath. It is easy to get into the habit of taking the deep breathing; expanding the lungs to the limit if only two or three times a day. Doing this indoors is of little value. The fresh air should be taken advantage of. By this means, alone, one can obtain assurance against lung troubles. And there is no cost whatever for this treatment.—Psychology Magazine.

Embryo Lawyer Puts Up Successful Plea

Apparently lawyers are born and not made, if a delightful yarn published in the Manchester Guardian correctly illustrates the development of the legal mentality from a start in the cradle, writes the London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. There had been a certain liveliness in the nursery just before bedtime, with the result that some of the furniture was broken. There was a fog of highly conflicting evidence in the nursery, and father decided that, failing a full and accurate account of what had happened, an anticipated holiday at Scarborough shoddy of deep thought his young son, who will probably some day be lord chancellor, snuffed up the position in a sentence: "I have said I didn't do it, but if I can't go to Scarborough unless I say I did do it, I think I had better say I did it; but, if I did do it, I don't know I did it." Father is reported to have retired from the discussion at this stage, without risking further disfigurement by cross-examination.

Error Led to Travel

How an Englishman made a mistake, then saw America on a dead man's ticket, has recently been told in London. According to his story he joined a party of Scandinavian emigrants crossing the landing stage at Liverpool in the belief that he was on the way to the Isle of Man, and went up the gangway of an Atlantic liner. A few hours later he began to suspect he was going astray, and mentioned the matter to a member of the party of emigrants who could, he had discovered, speak English. "Next stop Queenstown," the man said, "and after that New York. But never mind. When we were crossing the North Sea one of our party died, so we have a spare ticket, to which you are welcome. Come with us to America." After some reflection the vacationist accepted, and saw America.

Infant Confederate

Probably the youngest soldier on either side in the Civil war was George H. Jacobs, a native of North Carolina. When he was nine years old he enlisted as a drummer boy in the Confederate army with his father in the company of Camden Grays. He was made a full-fledged soldier when he was twelve and he served throughout the war, both he and his father being with General Lee at the surrender, at Appomattox. Jacobs was born August 20, 1854, at Nag's Head, where his father kept a hotel before the war. He died November 25, 1908. Most of his war days were spent in Virginia. He had a pony and marched with the regular army. At one battle he had to lie in a ditch during the heaviest part of the firing.

Social Study Important

Social study has become one of the most important subjects in the modern school curriculum of today. The story of the invention of the steam shovel by Charles B. King—the story of how he one day as a boy refused to "go fishin'" with the other boys because he was lying flat on his stomach thinking out an idea about an old mill wheel that wouldn't run and how he might and did make it work—these are far more interesting and vitalizing things to the schoolboy of twelve or fourteen of today than the old lists of dates and names, and the mere memorizing or locating of them without any connecting link to make them interesting.—Exchange.

The Thinker

Beware when the great God lets loose a thinker on this planet. Then all things are at risk. It is as when a conflagration has broken out in a great city, and no man knows what is safe or where it will end. There is not a piece of science but its flank may be turned tomorrow; there is not any literary reputation, not the so-called eternal names of fame, that may not be revised and condemned. The very hopes of man, the thoughts of his heart, the religion of nations, the manner and morals of mankind, are all at the mercy of a new generalization.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Tragic Death Of Dr. T. Carl Walker

His attention, consideration and care of his parents have been beautiful and there was at all times joy on his part, that he was able to be with them in their declining years. He was as tender as a woman, patient and kind to those with whom he came in contact. Dr. Walker was of a highly literary type, a real scholar and writer. Only those who knew him well were able to estimate his real worth as a friend and neighbor. He was fifty-six years of age.

Dr. Walker was the last of five brothers. His father, now 84 years of age, has lived to see all of his sons die. In addition to his aged father, Dr. Walker is survived by two sisters, Mrs. D. B. McCrary and Mrs. T. H. Redding, both of Asheboro; and a number of nieces, nephews and cousins of whom he was especially fond. On the day of his tragic death he was host to little Misses Mariana Redding and Dee Armfield, of Asheboro, who were spending the day with him.

The body was brought to the home of his sister, Mrs. T. H. Redding, Sunday and the funeral was conducted from the residence at 2 p. m. Monday by Rev. B. C. Reavis, pastor of the M. E. church in Asheboro and Rev. J. H. Brendall, pastor of the M. E. church in Randleman. Burial followed in the family plot at Randleman.

Among the relatives and friends from out of town attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Broadfoot, Fayetteville; Mrs. J. W. Long and son, W. W. Long, Mrs. Sam Bostick, Misses Sallie and Jessie Bostick, Percy A. and Tom Bostick, J. S. McAllister, Wm. H. Worth and son, Hiram, Mrs. Daisy P. Walker, Mrs. J. M. Dr. Frank Crane Says Study These Four Modest Men

Modesty is one of the chief characteristics of true greatness. A great man can have no further commendation or no greater bid for popularity than to have it said that he is modest.

This has been a characteristic of President Coolidge. He has avoided the spotlight and attended to the serious duties of his office with becoming humility. His recent word that he did not wish to run for President again should be taken at its face value. It is the solemn dictum of a man who, having achieved the acme of his popularity, desires to step aside.

Another man who is winning all kinds of plaudits and reaping all sorts of popularity from his beaming modesty is the Prince of Wales. Of course he deserves no credit for being born the son of a king, but he does deserve credit for not slopping over. He has managed to say the right thing at the right time and to conduct himself with becoming decorum in whatever limelight he may be placed. While he is not to be credited with the distinction of being born to royalty, he is entitled to the distinction of caring for the duties of this superior place as he should. He is well liked not only throughout the British Dominions, but in the United States and elsewhere throughout the world. To those who have met Jack Dempsey they expected the Manassa mauler to look like a brute. They were surprised to find him gentle, well liked by everybody and courteous. His form is slim and his manner is that of a gentleman. He is affectionate in his family relations and altogether those who know him are not envious of his fame.

The fourth modest man that has recently loomed in the horizon has been Lindbergh. After achieving a feat that brought him the plaudits of kings and nations everywhere, he apparently was not possessed of the idea that he was a super-man, but modestly restrained his claims to those of a flying man. He had crossed the ocean alone in a flying plane, but did not suppose that because he had done a stunt with his machine in the air he could do every other kind of thing. It is with a feeling of pride that the people of the country read of the way he demeaned himself in France and in Great Britain and in connection with the officials of this country. As far as we know, he has made no enemies, for the one thing that makes an enemy is over wearing egotism.

America is justly proud of these four men and principally because they are not proud of themselves especially.
