

Brame Chemical Company To Start Operations Soon

Plant Is Completed And Machinery Being Moved From North Wilkesboro.

Start In Two Weeks

Company Has Testimonials Of Many People Attesting The Worth Of Brame's Salve.

Finishing touches have been put on the Brame Chemical Company building on Salisbury street and machinery is being installed. The building is a substantial brick structure, one story in height, and built along the most modern lines to accommodate the business which it will house.

A part of the machinery is being hauled by truck from the old Brame Drug Company plant at North Wilkesboro. This will be installed in the building together with other new machinery which will be purchased and installed upon arrival. It is planned to have the plant here in operation in about two weeks.

Arthur Ross is president of the concern, while William Armfield is the secretary. During the past several months, the Brame people have been distributing samples of the Brame's Vapo-mentha Salve, which the plant makes and have obtained some hearty responses from the samples so distributed. Testimonials are at hand from several hundred users of the salve, including those from Judge Johnson J. Hayes, Judge T. B. Finley and Rev. L. W. Geringer. When the plant is ready to produce the salve in large quantities, a good business is anticipated.

It will be recalled that Arthur Ross and associates several months ago bought the Brame formula and machinery for its manufacture from Dr. Brame, at North Wilkesboro. Brame's salve has been manufactured for years and is recognized as a household remedy in North Carolina and other states. It has been introduced also in foreign countries with decided success.

County Republican Executive Committee Recommends Wright

By Vote Of 15 To 5 Over Nolan Allen—Cephas Bowman In Charge Of Ceremonies.

The Republican county executive committee in session in Asheboro Saturday afternoon by a vote of 15 to 5 recommended the appointment of Frank M. Wright as postmaster at Asheboro to fill the place made vacant by the death of U. C. Richardson. The other candidate for the recommendation was Nolan Allen, assistant postmaster under Mr. Richardson.

Riding rough-shod, the Republican old guard, with Cephas Bowman engineer in charge, drove the steam roller over the meeting, outvoted the opposition at every turn and smothered every effort to give the patrons of the Asheboro office any hearing in the deliberations. Mr. Bowman was frank to state that an appointive postmaster is selected for political activity alone and that on this basis Mr. Wright deserved the recommendation of the committee. The patrons of the office, he thought and so did Chairman Cox, have nothing to say relative to the appointment of a postmaster, and the fact that Mr. Allen held in his hands a petition signed by 1100 patrons of the Asheboro office had no bearing on the matter whatever.

J. S. Lewis asked for a primary in Asheboro to ascertain the wishes of the patrons of the office in the matter, but this suggestion got little or no consideration from the twenty members of the Republican county executive committee attending the confab. Mr. Allen carried out this idea by stating that if he couldn't get the recommendation of 75 per cent of the patrons of the postoffice he would withdraw from the race.

Spokesmen for Mr. Wright countered with the statement that their candidate for the place had circulated no petition, and had he done so, he could probably come into the meeting with as many signers as Allen. Even before the actual voting in secret session, the observer could tell which way the cards were stacked and that Allen had not a ghost of a show for the committee's recommendation.

Mr. Wright recommended at the meeting Saturday afternoon, is a former Clerk Superior Court of Randolph county, having served from 1914 to 1922. He was defeated for the office in 1926 by the late W. A. Lovett, Democrat. Before coming to Asheboro in 1914 to assume duties of Clerk of Court, Mr. Wright was for many years principal of the school at Shiloh.

Death Claims Ira Freeman At Ether

Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock, Mr. Ira Freeman, aged 74 years, died at his home at Steeds, Montgomery county, eighteen miles south of Asheboro on Highway 70. ### Town To Employ Night Policeman

The Asheboro town board in recent meeting passed an order to put a night policeman on duty, and applications are being received for the job. Merchants of the town, aroused over the robberies of the past several months, have been insistent on this move on the part of the town board for several weeks past. Possibly the only reason the board had not taken this action previously lies in the fact that the budget of the year's expenditures made no provision for an extra policeman.

Fount, of near Hendrick's Grove, Davidson county, was smothered to death Thursday night, when the haystack from which the animal was feeding collapsed. ## A. M. Oglesby Dies From Heart Attack

Called Suddenly Monday Night When Condition Was Thought To Have Been Improving.

Veteran Conductor

Albert M. Oglesby, aged 43, for twenty years a conductor on the Norfolk Southern railway lines, died suddenly, at his home on Sunset avenue, in Asheboro, about 10 o'clock Monday night, from a heart attack. Mr. Oglesby had been in ill health for the past several weeks, but his health had apparently improved and he was able to come up street to greet his many friends.

Mr. Oglesby moved to Asheboro with his family about a year ago from Aberdeen. Prior to his residence at Aberdeen, he had for several years lived at West End. On coming to Asheboro, Mr. Oglesby and his family affiliated themselves with the First Methodist Church, South, and took an active interest in the civic, social and religious life of the town.

Captain Oglesby, as he was best known, was a son of the late Rev. G. A. Oglesby, who was killed by a train at Troy about 28 years ago. Rev. Mr. Oglesby was at that time pastor of churches at Troy, Biscoe and Star. Capt. Oglesby had been on the Norfolk Southern run out of Asheboro for several months. Prior to being transferred to this run, he was on the main lines from Charlotte to Raleigh.

Surviving are his widow and six children, who are Albert, Carolyn, Nicholas, Ada Reeves, John and Elizabeth. He leaves also one brother, Judge John M. Oglesby, of Concord; and one sister, Mrs. M. P. Burke, of Roanoke, Va.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from the Methodist Episcopal church at West End by Rev. E. C. Reavis, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Asheboro, assisted by the pastor of the West End church. The body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. A great throng of friends of Mr. Oglesby and the family from many parts of the State gathered to pay last tribute to the deceased. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. In the cemetery in which Mr. Oglesby was laid to rest, was first buried Mrs. Oglesby's mother. Native long leaf pines form the background of the cemetery and many of the graves may be found in the ground above which tower the magnificent pines.

California Dam Bursts And Takes Heavy Toll Of Life

75-Foot Wall Of Water Sweeps Down Valley, Washing Away Everything In Sight.

A big dam, 185 feet in length, and backing up 38,000 acre feet of water, in the San Francisco canyon, in California, burst without warning late Monday night, turning a 75-foot wall of water loose down the valley, inundating and sweeping away homes and everything else in its path. The dam impounded water for the city of Los Angeles. The death toll has reached 300 persons, with 700 others reported missing. Many of the missing are thought to have perished in the flood and their bodies buried beneath the many feet of sand which now covers the valley for miles.

Experts can give no reason for the bursting of the dam unless it was caused by earthquake disturbances. They claim that the only way the dam could have broken was from this cause or from being dynamited. There is no evidence that the dam was dynamited. In fact, it would have taken several hours of work and thousands of pounds of dynamite to have broken the dam.

Chinchilla Rabbits Among New Arrivals At State Game Farm

Among the game which has been received at the State Game Farm, two miles south of Asheboro, are several Chinchilla rabbits. It is the intention of the game farm to experiment with the raising of this species of rabbit in North Carolina for its fur. Chinchilla fur is becoming more valuable, according to Mr. Grimes, manager of the farm, and good Chinchilla rabbit skins sell for from $3 to $3.50 each. He is of the opinion that the fur of these rabbits raised in North Carolina will be as valuable as that of animals raised in the North. Chinchilla rabbits are fast breeders and are grown at about six months of age. These rabbits are attracting much attention from those who have been visiting the game farm, south of town, which is rapidly shaping into completion.

Allred was struck down and fatally injured Saturday afternoon while he was walking along the highway near Randleman by a Hudson sedan driven by Henry E. Sullivan, a tinner of Greensboro. The car, after striking Mr. Allred, is said to have sped on its way toward Greensboro, where, near the city limits, the driver was stopped by motorcycle policemen, who had been notified of his coming by Randleman officers. According to the report in the daily press, the odor of whiskey was on Mr. Sullivan's breath when he was arrested and a pint of the forbidden fluid was found in the car. He was placed in jail in Greensboro and held for Randolph authorities. Mr. Sullivan was brought to Asheboro and placed in jail on charge of assault with deadly weapon. He was released Tuesday under bond of $3000 for appearance at trial. ## Sandhills Expecting Big Peach Crop This Season

News comes from the Sandhills that a bumper peach crop is in prospect this year in that section. Peach growers are thankful for the cool, frosty nights which have held back the peach buds and blooms. And, unless there is a cold snap later in the season to kill the crop, peach growers expect to harvest one of the largest crops in the history of the Sandhills. The growers are optimistic over the outlook this season on account of the recent lowering of freight rate on peaches shipped from the Sandhills to northern markets. This lower rate will mean, in many instances, the difference between a profit and loss.

New Jersey Pair Fail To "Beat The Law" This Instance

Arrested In Guilford County And Taken To New Jersey To Answer Charges There.

Mrs. Ethel Hink and Claud Wilkins "beat the law" several days ago when they were released under habeas corpus proceedings and set free from the Randolph county jail, where they were being held to await the arrival of New Jersey officers to take them to the "akester state" to answer to charges of abandonment. But when they became entangled with the law again last Friday night out at Guilford Battleground where they were staging a drinking bee, it was a different story. They were turned over to New Jersey officers Monday afternoon and are now back in their native State to answer to the courts.

Mrs. Hink and Wilkins were arrested several weeks ago and placed in jail at Asheboro where they stayed for some time awaiting the arrival of New Jersey officers. The officers came and armed themselves with requisition papers from Governor McLean, but when they reached Asheboro, the pair had been taken to Greensboro by their attorney and were released by order of Judge McRae, who was convinced that North Carolina had no right to detain Mrs. Hink and her partner. They were not as lucky the last time and when they were lodged in Guilford county jail, New Jersey officers soon took possession of them.

Herbert Jackson Buys A Home Site In Sandhills

Herbert Jackson, Richmond, Va., banker, son of Mrs. E. E. Moffitt, native Randolph woman, but resident of Richmond for several years, has purchased a site for a home at Knollwood, in the Sandhills. Commenting on this action, the Vass Pilot says in part: "A name well known in all of the Carolinas is that of Herbert W. Jackson, of Richmond, the head of one of the big banks of the South, a man formerly from this State, and one who has done much to advance the entire South to the progressive plane it now occupies. When a man of this caliber joins in the aggressive work of this community it is because he can read in the future a story of creation and expansion. Mr. Jackson has been in the class with Walter Page, whose name is synonymous with interest in this State, and Mr. Page, while both these men went elsewhere to carry on, both held in remembrance the old State and both were always ready to lend a hand to keep up the motion."

Mayor Gets First New Model Ford Delivered Here

The first new model Ford car to be delivered in this county was bought last Saturday from Randolph Motor Company by C. C. Cranford, Mayor of Asheboro and head of the extensive Cranford manufacturing industries. It was a sport model coupe in one of the late shades of finish. The delivery of a car by a dealer to a customer is not news any more, as it was 25 years ago. But delivery of the first new Ford is a little out of the ordinary.

Both dealer and customer have long awaited the arrival of the new Fords and the delivery of the first certainly ranks among the new items of the day.
