Tobacco Growers Meeting Friday

Just briefly I wish again to call your attention to the Tobacco Growers meeting at the Courthouse Friday at 11:00 o'clock. Mr. W. E. Green, representative of the Federal Farm Board, will be here to take up the matter of cooperative marketing, and the assistance you may expect from the Federal Board.

I hope that every farmer who possibly can will attend this meeting and hear what he has to say. You are not obligating yourself to anything by attending, but I would like to have all who come to express themselves after hearing the proposition explained so that I may know how to act. In other words, I am ready to assist with the organization, provided the farmers of the county want it, but on the other hand I do not care to insist in any way against your wishes. Come to the meeting with an open mind, and form your opinion based on the facts presented.

Work On Pastures Now

Many of you realize that you do not have enough pasture, or at least enough prepared pasture to carry your cattle as they should be. It is possible that the most of you have fences around enough acres provided there was anything inside there for cows to eat. The great pity, however, is that our cows cannot live and give milk on briars, shrubs and broom sedge. We must clear off some of the land that is now under fence and prepare it for seeding to improved pasture grasses or we must take in other cultivated land.

I mention this now because we are likely to have considerable bad weather, when we cannot be plowing or otherwise occupied when we could be sprouting, shrubbing, etc., on our pasture land. Get this fifth shrubbed off and burn, so as to be able to prepare a good seed bed later. After this is done it would be a very good plan to bull tongue the land thus cleared off this winter then in the spring it will be easy to get a good seed bed with the disc and drag harrows.

After this is done you can then run your drill over the land and put out the seed and give the land a good application of fertilizer. Fertilize a pasture, some one asks? Why certainly, fertilize your pasture. You would laugh at the fellow who advised you not to fertilize your tobacco, or your corn, then why not the pasture. There is no crop that will respond more readily to a good application of fertilizer than your pasture, or give greater returns in dollars and cents for the amount invested, provided you use good judgment in the selection of the animals you run on the pasture. In this connection let me give you a little poem if it can be so called.

When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,
That's the time to plan next summer's
Daily ration for the stock.

If the pasture needs improving
If it's grown to brush and fifth
Grub it now, then prepare
In the spring for better tilth.

And then about next August
When the weather's hot and dry
And the dairy cows drop off in milk
Less you feed them grain you buy;

Then's the time you will be happy
That you shrubbed a field this day
And sowed it to a pasture mixture
In the spring, about March if you may.

Sell Fat Turkeys For Holidays

It is now getting close to the holiday season, when we are thinking of getting out turkeys on the market. This year when prices are low on practically everything that we have to offer I believe that it is the time for us to pay more attention to getting our turkeys real fat before putting them on the market. Corn is the lowest that it has been for years, and makes a very fine ration for the turkeys. In addition to this however I would advise you to give them plenty of sour or skim milk along with the corn. There is a very great demand for milk fattened poultry and also turkeys. Last year several breeders in the county went to the trouble to milk fatten their turkeys and were well repaid for their efforts, receiving from five to ten cents per pound more for their birds.

Call Out Your Poultry

The time is here when we are going to have bad weather and our poultry will do much better to be housed. It is probable that you do not have enough room to properly house the number that you have. If so, have you called them as close as you should? At this season of the year when the pullets should all be in lay is a very good

Sore Throat? Don't Gargle

This Doctor's Prescription Gives Quicker, Better Relief.

Don't suffer the pain and discomfort of sore throat. Use a doctor's prescription called Thoxine guaranteed to relieve with the very first swallow. Not a gargle but a pleasant tasting medicine which relieves the soreness and goes direct to the internal cause.

Thoxine will relieve your sore throat by soothing and killing the bacteria that are causing you have ever tried to cure your sore throat with any other remedy? Thoxine is the only medicine for sore throat that is guaranteed to give you relief in 15 to 20 minutes.

time to cull. In other words get out all underzoned and off color pullets in the flock. Also get out all pullets that are behind and will lay before the first of the year, as they can never make profitable producers. You should also get out all old hens that have ceased laying and do not show signs of being good layers this winter. It rarely pays to keep a hen beyond the second year anyway, so cull real close on hens of this age and get all but the best of the second year hens also.

Watch For Lice And Mites

In my rounds the past two or three weeks I have run into lots of lice and mites on the poultry that I have examined. It will pay you to go over your flock and see if your birds are infested. Certainly you cannot hope to have a profitable flock this winter if you have to feed lice and mites. From now on you may not be bothered so bad with the mites due to the cold weather but the lice stay on the birds and will thrive throughout the winter. Two flocks that I examined last week are as badly infested as any that I have ever seen. Let's get them off. Dust them with sodium fluoride, or paint the perch poles with nicotine sulphate (Black-leaf 40). The latter method is the quickest done as you are able to use the flock treatment, but the material will cost more than the dust method.

Call Cockerels Close

Now is the time to cull your cockerels close and get rid of all that are not showing up as you expected. It is always necessary to grow out more than you intend using, due to the fact that it is impossible to tell what they will grow into later, but by this time you should be able to make your selections. Pick out what you will need and get rid of the others unless you are holding them for breeders.

REQUEST AN OFFERING FOR ORPHAN CHILDREN

For a number of years it has become the custom of remembering institutions and agencies caring for orphan children on Thanksgiving. A movement was started several years ago in an effort to get each person to on Thanksgiving give one day's income to the orphanage of his or her choice. The amount, of course, is not restricted to one day's earnings, this being set as a minimum. This same appeal is made this Thanksgiving by the North Carolina Orphan Association representing the 27 orphanages and children's homes in the State.

UNION COUNTY ADOPTS ONE COTTON VARIETY

By adopting the Mexican big balled variety of cotton for the county, Union County farmers are making a reputation for themselves for growing cotton of uniform grade and staple.

"Union County now has the enviable reputation for growing cotton that suits the textile spinners," says Jerry H. Moore, champion corn grower of the South and agronomist at the North Carolina Experiment Station. "This reputation did not come by accident but by the adoption of one single variety and keeping it improved through the use of pure seed. The Mexican Boll variety, which is the one adopted by the leading growers of that county, produces a desirable quality of cotton with about one inch staple that grows well on Union county soils."

SELL FAT TURKEYS TO HOLIDAY TRADE

With prospects in view for all citizens of North Carolina to have plenty of turkey available for the holidays this winter, growers should keep in mind that fat turkeys in good condition sell best. This is the opinion of C. F. Parrish, extension poultryman at State College, who urges growers to get their holiday birds in condition before attempting to sell in the face of more than usual competition this season. The hot, dry weather this year was exceptionally favorable for raising young turkeys and the proportion of the birds raised to poulters hatched was larger than usual. This had the effect of offsetting the decrease in hatching due to poor prices last fall.

In getting the turkeys ready for the market, Mr. Parrish suggests fattening those which are mature. Select them one month before they are to be marketed and feed liberally with old corn. If new corn must be used, feed it lightly at first and gradually increase the ration as the corn dries.

Mr. Parrish says also that since all the turkeys in a flock do not mature at the same time, it is best to select first the largest and best-matured ones and devote attention to these. They will fatten rapidly if fed heavily and are under good range conditions. The smaller birds may be kept on the growing feeds and marketed later in the cooperative carlot shipments.

It is an excellent plan to begin feeding the birds to be fattened both night and morning, starting one month before they are to be sold and gradually increasing the quality of old corn and wheat until the birds are receiving all they will clean up. The percentage of corn should be increased as the weather gets colder. A wet mash of noon, mixed with milk will also hasten fattening, says Mr. Parrish.

Republicans Repent Of Prosperity Claims

Old Prosperity Bunk Didn't Go During Past Campaign And Won't Go The Next Time.

Washington, Nov. 17.—One result of the late election, upon which there is wide agreement in the press, and which has a bearing upon 1932, is the elimination of the issue of "prosperity," which it is pointed out has been the chief reliance of the Republican Party in campaigns since 1896.

Following Governor Smith's declaration in a New England speech that "the full dinner pail is dead as an issue," the Baltimore Sun points out that Mr. Coolidge dug a "deep hole in which to bury that once beautiful issue," when he also stated to a New England audience that "no government worthy of confidence undertakes to guarantee prosperity."

"What a contrast," says the Baltimore Sun, "to the Coolidge who six years ago was advocating his own election for the sake of prosperity! Recall his acceptance speech: '... those who toll have always profited under Republican control of government.' What a contrast with the Coolidge of 1928 who, 'with his every ready partner in Republican prosperity ballyhoo, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, projected the White House into the market place and pitted his untutored judgment that brokers' loans were not too high against that of many of the leading bankers and industrialists of the land. What a contrast to the Coolidge who, with nary a murmur of protest, indorsed the Hoover campaign proposition that a Republican vote was a vote for prosperity, and who intimated no lack of confidence when Mr. Hoover (in his Madison Square Garden campaign speech) said: 'Only through keen vision and helpful cooperation by the Government has stability in business and stability in employment been maintained during the last seven and one-half years.'"

"None the less, it is a fine thing to have Mr. Coolidge repent. And it is a fine thing to have Mr. Mellon repent, and all the other Republican politicians who shamelessly took upon themselves credit for prosperity when the tide was running their way. Even if their repentance is not wholly sincere, it is a fine thing. For, while the memory of the electorate in the United States is notoriously short, it will at least assure a brief period during which it will be difficult to make a fake political issue of general prosperity. Even if things are rolling along beautifully in 1932, as is fervently hoped by all, it will be hard for the Coolidges and Mellons to submerge their 1930 pronouncements beneath a flood of the old Republican prosperity bunk."

Drop Two Colleges

The Baptist state convention in Raleigh last week definitely dropped two junior colleges, these being Wingate and Boiling Springs. The convention agreed to assume a part of the indebtedness of each institution, but to contribute no longer toward their support. The only colleges left which the convention is supporting and will continue to support are Wake Forest, Meredith, Chowan, Mar's Hill and Campbell Colleges.

Increases Corn Yield

Nitrate of soda applied at the rate of 100 pounds an acre increased his corn yield by 14.27 bushels an acre, and at 200 pounds an acre increased the corn yield by another 14.42 bushels, making 28.69 bushels over where none of the nitrate was used, reports J. O. Ellis of Elizabethtown to county agent J. R. Powell.

WINNING IN FIGHT WITH DEPRESSION

Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., told the academy of political sciences in New York Friday night that the United States is winning its fight with depression. "Let us have no misgivings," he said, "as to the ability of our country to win through its difficulties, our economic, our financial, our banking world are far better ordered—even though for the moment in fact—than they have been in the past. The process is already underway—that process of working and saving, the exercise of patience and courage."

IN MEMORY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hunt was saddened October 8, 1930, when death took from them their loving mother and grandmother. While it is our loss, we know it is her eternal gain. During her illness she was always cheerful, remarking that the Lord's will be done. She spoke of death as a wonderful, glorious adventure, which for her was to be the beginning of life. For though her body was wracked with pain, her spirit failed not.—A Granddaughter.
