

Juvenile Quarrel Leads To Suicide Thurman Foster

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Of Gray's Chapel Community Kills Himself After Quarrel.

Used A Shot Gun

To Blow Top Of Head Off—Father Absent At Time Of Tragedy In His Residence.

A quarrel abed, over who should build the morning fire culminated Saturday morning at 7 o'clock in Thurman Foster, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Foster, of the Gray's Chapel community, blowing off the top of his head with a shot gun. Death was instantaneous.

Thurman and his older brother, Delbert, Jr., occupied the same bed Friday morning argued over which should get up first and build the fires. Their mother, hearing them from another room, went in and rebuked them for their quarrel and threatened to report them to their father unless they ceased immediately.

Sheriff Carl King was immediately notified of the shooting and accompanied by County Coroner W. L. Lambert proceeded to the scene of the tragedy, eight miles west of Liberty.

When hearing the facts, the coroner decided no inquest was necessary and permission was given for the removal of the body for burial.

Funeral was held from Gray's Chapel church Sunday afternoon.

The child's mother was Miss Maude Mills, formerly of Asheboro, and the father, Delbert Foster, was a member of Company K, 120th Infantry, Randolph's own, in the world war.

Another tragic angle of the suicide was that the father of the boy was away from home at the time, having been off in an effort to obtain work.

He returned home by way of Asheboro on Saturday and, having heard of the suicide, made inquiry and found that it was his own son who had taken his life.

Fatally Wounded In Affray At Home Of Edgar Foust Sunday Night At Dance.

Ten negroes are in jail here awaiting preliminary hearing in connection with the killing of Charlie Waddell, well-known colored man of Asheboro, who died in the High Point hospital Monday night following an injury Sunday night at the home of Edgar Foust who was having an Easter dance. Police were called to the negro house early Sunday evening and night policeman Dewey Bulla answered the call but no arrests were made until later, when Chief R. A. Gaddis was called and Edgar Foust was arrested and held in jail without bond upon the verdict of the doctor concerning the injured man's condition. Developments further came about that led to the arrest of Leonard Foust, son of Edgar, and both are held charged with the killing. About the time the man died eight other negroes were arrested and are being held until the hearing which is set for Friday. The eight are Al Strickland, Mary Ann Ewing and John Brown, of Asheboro; Charm Black, Henry Johnson, John and Paul Siler, and Herbert Wilson, all of Liberty. Report is that there was a drunken fight and as the dead man started to walk away he was injured fatally with a brick. He was hit on the head and never regained consciousness. The Waddell family are among the older negro families of Asheboro and have many friends both white and black. Charlie was known as one of the most accommodating colored men of the town and bears to his credit years of faithful service to his white friends.

Bid Garner Shot Without Warning By John Maness

Brower Township Man Shot Near Heart Saturday Night At A Neighbor's Home.

Chance To Recover

Wound Near Heart, But Garner Has Splendid Chance To Recover—Maness In Jail.

John Maness, Brower township man, was shot and seriously wounded Saturday night by a pistol in the hands of John Maness, a neighbor. The shooting occurred in the home of W. H. Hussey, a neighbor of the two principals, where Garner was at the time. Maness is said to have walked in the room where Garner was at the time and to have fired the shot with little warning in the presence of members of the Hussey family.

Garner was brought to Memorial hospital, Asheboro, for treatment. It was found that the bullet had penetrated the body about an inch above the heart, and the wound, while serious, probably would not prove fatal. He was removed to his home yesterday.

Maness was placed in jail in Asheboro and has not as yet been given a preliminary hearing. Just what led to the affray is not definitely known. Maness is said to have stated that he bore no malice toward Garner. It is reported that he was under the influence of liquor at the time of the shooting.

Both men are married and have families.

National Guard Unit Inspected Tuesday Night

Annual Federal Inspection Of The 3rd Bn. Hq. Co. Made Here By Captain Page.

Good Showing Made

Inspector Declares That Company Had Made Marked Improvement Past Year.

Annual federal inspection of the local National Guard unit, Headquarters Company, Third Battalion, 120th Infantry, was made Tuesday night in the Armory on Sunset Avenue by Capt. Page of the regular army. Capt. Page is native of Eagle Springs, Moore county, and is relative of Fred Page, of Asheboro. The inspection began at 8 o'clock and continued for an hour and a half, during which time the inspecting officer went over very thoroughly points in military training which members of the company should know and inspected the equipment of the outfit.

The unit was put through close order drill, physical drill, manual of arms and other drills and movements laid down in the infantry drill regulations. In addition, the various sections of the company were put through their specialty work, such as communication, writing and sending messages, wire laying and testing, radio and panel and visual signaling and the like. All this was done before the inspecting officer pronounced the company very satisfactory.

The inspecting officer complimented the company on many phases of its instruction and training and made constructive criticism of those points in which he found the company deficient. This was the third year that Capt. Page had inspected the local company, and Tuesday night, though the outfit made the highest grade of "Very Satisfactory" a year ago, he declared that the unit this year was a hundred per cent better than it was at that time. He especially complimented the personnel of the company.

Col. H. G. Davids, of Raleigh, senior instructor of the North Carolina National Guard, and Staff Sergeant B. M. Harrison, also of Raleigh, were present on the occasion. Col. Davids spoke briefly to the company following the inspection, complimenting it on its splendid showing.

The company is composed of 25 enlisted men and two officers and is under command of Lt. C. J. Lovett. One member of the outfit is attending college at State College, Raleigh, and is a member of the R. O. T. C. regiment there, while another is attending a specialists school at Fort Benning, Ga.

Annual encampment will be held again this year at Camp Glenn some time in July, as last year.

Magistrates Warned To Make Reports Of Their Official Work

Grand Jury Presents Forty-Four Justices Of Peace For Their Neglect Of Law.

The grand jury last week at completion of its work for the Superior Court term made presentations against 44 justices of the peace in the county who had not made their reports to Clerk Superior Court. The law requires that justices of the peace make reports on or before noon Monday at each term of Superior Court in the county in which they practice their profession. Convenient blanks for making such returns may be had upon application to the Clerk's office. No action will be taken against these 44 justices of the peace, provided they make their reports by next term of criminal court, according to Clerk Rufus F. Routh. However, those who fail to make these reports by that time will be subject to indictment. It is not believed that any of these justices of the peace have wilfully failed to make returns, but have merely neglected the matter. Many of them, perhaps, have transacted no business since the next preceding term of court and have not deemed it necessary to report. Attention is called, however, to law requiring report whether any business has been transacted or not.

CO-OP MOVEMENT IS LIKELY TO BE FAILURE

News comes from Raleigh that the proposed tobacco growers co-operative association, which has been in process of organization for some time, will end in failure. With tobacco sold and plans going ahead for the new crop, Dr. Joseph G. Knapp, secretary of the organizing committee, states that the growers seem not to be interested. Similar organizations in South Carolina and Georgia apparently will fail to materialize on account of lack of interest. In the meantime those who know something about tobacco believe that this fall will find tobacco prices the lowest in history.

Dr. W. J. Moore Is Called By Death At His Home Here

Prominent Randolph County Physician And Civic Leader Succumbs To Illness.

Leading Physician

For Many Years In County—Leader In Professional, Civic And Church Affairs.

Dr. W. J. Moore died at his home on Sunset Avenue, Asheboro, Friday afternoon following an illness of around twelve years. Until the past few weeks he had been able to practice his profession, giving it up gradually from year to year. He was educated at Oak Ridge and old Trinity College in Randolph county, graduating there in the late eighties. The following year Dr. Moore went to Baltimore where he took his medical course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, after which he returned to his home county, Stokes, where he began practicing. He married Miss Mamie Frazier, daughter of the late Dr. F. C. Frazier, of Trinity township, who for many years was the only dentist in the county.

He moved to Asheboro in 1893, purchasing the drug store, office and residence of Dr. J. M. Boyette, who resided where Mr. E. H. Morris now lives. He became associated with the late Dr. S. A. Henley with whom he practiced a number of years. A few years after the death of his wife he was married to Miss Mattie Porter, who with the following daughters and sons survive: Harold Moore, Charlotte; Wallace Moore, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Clarence Lovett, Miss Evelyn Coleman Moore and David Moore, all of Asheboro.

Soon after moving to Asheboro Dr. Moore united with the M. E. church during the pastorate of the Rev. A. W. Plyler, now editor of the Christian Advocate. In addition to serving as a member of the board of stewards for twenty years, he has been connected with various activities of the church all of which he gave unstinted and loyal support. As a practitioner Dr. Moore was held in high esteem, being the type of man to find opportunities to serve rich and poor alike.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. P. Brantley in the First Methodist church, after which burial followed in the local cemetery.

Babies born in Randolph county in 1929 had a better chance to live than those born in 75 other counties in North Carolina; and in 24 other counties babies had a safer journey. This is shown by figures compiled by the University News Letter from report of the Bureau of Vital Statistics. State Board of Health. Terms Two Members County School Board Expired On April 1

County Superintendent Bulla of the Randolph county public schools and J. A. Martin, of Liberty, a member of the board, faced a peculiar predicament Monday at the monthly meeting of the county board of education.

It all came about because the general assembly in session in Raleigh has so far failed to pass the omnibus bill which contains appointments of members of boards of education for the several counties in the state. The two-year terms of L. F. Ross, chairman of the Randolph board, and Luther Smith, a member, expired on the first Monday in April. The omnibus bill, before the general assembly, contains their names for reappointment for another term, but the bill has not been made law of the land. It probably will be during the week or the next ten days.

Complaints, petitions and the like were heard by the board as usual Monday, but no definite action could be taken on any matters that day, due to the fact that there was no board.

Judge Orders A Non-Suit In Case Against Cranford

Sustained Defense Motion That State Had Not Proven Charge Of Embezzlement.

An Abrupt End

To A Case Which Had Been Hanging Fire Some Time—Many Cases Tried In Court

Randolph Superior Court for the trial of cases on the criminal docket closed Saturday morning with a memorial service for the late Congressman William C. Hammer, of Asheboro. A number of cases was disposed of at the term one way or another. Submissions were many, enabling the court to make great headway in clearing the docket.

The case against J. Free Cranford, former sheriff of the county, came to an abrupt end Thursday after the state's evidence had been presented. Counsel for the defense made motion that the case be dismissed for lack of evidence. Judge Moore concurred and the order for non-suit entered on the records. The judge holding that the state had not shown in its evidence that there was any intent to defraud in any of the alleged shortages charged in the bill of indictment.

Other cases disposed of during the term include the following: State vs. O. M. Kirby, defendant entered plea of guilty of driving a car while intoxicated and was fined $50 and costs.

Mrs. Monroe Hoover Traps A Bald Eagle On Asheboro Rt. 2

Mrs. Monroe Hoover, of Asheboro, Route 2, has for some time been persecuted by the disappearance of her chickens and ducks. On Tuesday of this week she found a duck had been killed and partly devoured. Thinking a hawk was the guilty offender, Mrs. Hoover set a steel trap and was surprised to find the victim was a large bald eagle, which measured 7 feet from tip to tip, and tipped the scales at ten pounds. Indications are that the bird had considerable age and his weight was also indicative of the fact that he had been fattening on the Hoover fowls.

Two Lose Lives In Fire Which Destroys Home In Davidson

Albert Hunt, 77-year-old farmer, and his bachelor son, Willis, 54, who live just across the Randolph line in Davidson county, were burned to death Friday night, when their home was destroyed by fire of mysterious origin. Miss Hunt, daughter of the aged man who slept in an upstairs room, awakened by dense smoke, escaped by jumping from a porch roof. She was unable to awake the others due to inability to reach them through flames and smoke. After the fire had burned out and ashes cooled, charred bones of Hunt and his son were found by neighbors who came to the scene of the tragedy.
