Milton Silver, made a fourth man at the time the robbery.

Once inside the door, the three pulled pistols while one commanded those in the hank to "stick 'am up!" The hank officials and Mr. Silver were lined up against the wall while two of the bandits scooped the change and currency from the cashier's cage and them entered the vault where they added to their foot. They empited a tin cap full of change at the cashier's cage, leaving only one penny on the counter.

Despite the fact they spent nearly 16 minutes in the hank, they were apparently in too much of a hurry to give the vault at thorough search, for they overlooked $1,100 in gold and $3,000 in currency in the safe in the vault and also $600 placed in a pigeon hole by bank officials Tuesday night.

One of the robbers picked up a heavy case in the vault but dropped it when Mr. Beasley informed him it contained only notes.

Chief S. A. Rodgers immediately got on the job and called for sid from Sheriff King and his deputies. A chase and search for the men who fled toward Greensboro has proved futile so far.
