Sales Tax Scored At Public Meeting

J. Paul Leonard And Willard L. Dowell Tell Of Unfairness Of Sales Tax.

Hurts Retail Trade

They Deny That Sales Tax Levy Has Saved Schools; Is Not An Equitable Tax.

A crowd which almost filled the tax meeting sponsored by local merchants Tuesday night, and heard speakers assail the State's 3 per cent levy on retail sales. E. V. Hobbs, local merchant, who is a member of the advisory committee of the North Carolina Fair Tax Association, presided at the meeting, and presented the two guest speakers of the occasion, namely: J. Paul Leonard of Statesville, executive secretary of the Tax Association, and Williard L. Dowell of Raleigh, executive secretary of the State Merchants Association.

In his opening remarks Mr. Hobbs explained that the meeting was nonpartisan, just as the Tax Association is a non-partisan organization, and the purpose was to arouse sentiment against the sales tax, rather than further the interests of any particular candidate. He denounced the tactics of organized real estate dealers favoring the sales tax who are said to be advocating boycott of merchants who oppose the sales tax, and declared that the merchants had not yet reached the point where they were telling people not to give business to real estate dealers.

In his opening remarks Mr. Leonard discussed taxation in general, pointing out that taxation is as old as civilization, and due to changing night before a large audience. conditions there has necessarily been as its first objective the abolishment cil 307. of this form of taxation in the State. "We are fighting" he said, "for economy in government and fair system of taxation which eliminates sales taxes and dives the average citizen a square deal." The Tax Association, he said, has so aroused the people of the State that "candidates who a few months ago did not have the nerve to take a definite stand on the sales tax issue are now climbing on the anti-sales-tax band wagon because they realize that to openly advocate retention of the sales tax would mean political suicide."

Although he pointed out many objections to the sales tax, Mr. Leonard said the one true indictment against it which cannot be refuted is that "it is contrary to the one essential element of fair taxation dent, in the chair, ability to pay—it is a tax on con—The devotional but the Legislature refused to follow the advice of its own commission.
