Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company

Financial Statement — June 30, 1934

From the Report of President Price - - -

Progress has been made along all lines.

Insurance in force increased to more than $310,000,000.

Assets increased approximately $1,-000,000 during the first six month

Surplus and special reserve funds increased by $300,000. These funds, together with the capital, make a total of over $4,000,000, placing the Jefferson Standard in the strongest financial position in its history.

The Company realized a net profit on over $300,000 of real estate sold during the first six months. This is a most encouraging sign for a better real estate outlook.

New insurance bought during the first six months totals $22,562,400, a substantial increase over the same period last year.

The remarkable improvement in the renewal of life insurance policies is clear and convincing evidence that "the worst is over."

The Jefferson Standard paid policyholders and beneficiaries $3,821,-104 during the past six months, making total payments since organization, $78,111,790.

The mortality experience is good, showing considerable improvement over the first half of last year.

FRANK M. WRIGHT

Twenty-Seven Years Old On August Seventh!

Organized on August 7, 1907, the Jefferson Standard is today the largest company in the South doing a regular ordinary life insurance business.

It occupies a leading position among financial institutions in the South, having assets of more than $56,000,000.

Company officials point with pride to the fact that the Company bears the name of the principal author of the Declaration of Independence. The scene of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the work itself inspired the present trademark and slogan.

The amount of insurance in force is $310,000,000. This life insurance is owned by more than 125,000 people, banded together for mutual protection against the economic loss caused by old age, disability and Life Insurance is truly a Declara-tion of Independence. The Jefferson Standard is successfully developing this principle through its hundreds of agents who tell the story of financial independence through life insurance.

Jeffersonians point with pride to those charged with the responsibility of handling Company affairs. Ably managed, the Jefferson Standard has reached the place among other life insurance companies where it is highly respected for its efficiency and progressiveness.

Celebrating the twenty-seventh birthday, the members of the Jef-ferson Standard field force will conduct a special drive for new business during August.

This Loyalty Campaign will be an enthusiastic, conscientious effort to produce a volume of business that worthily honors the Company which has created so greatly, and contributed so generously to the upbuilding of the territory which it
