City Tax Ra Lowered As Refinancing Approved

Refinancing of Street and Side-walk Bonds Is Worked Out By City Fathers And Attorney

Board Appropriates Money For School

City Will Finance Dental Health Program Soon After School Opens In September

On July 19th, it was announced that the members of the city council had decided to refinance two issues of Asheboro bonds. These were the sidewalk and street improvement bonds, both amounting to a total of $192,000.0 This refunding process will lengthen the maturity dates of the bonds and enable the town to prevent raising the tax rate, which appeared inevitable until this plan was perfected. The tax rate, therefore, for the coming year was set at $1.48 while the former rate has been $1.53, a matter of five cents on the hundred dollars cheaper than formerly. Unless the bonds had been refunded, it would have been necessary to raise the city rate to at least $2.00. This, explained Mayor W. A. Bunch in discussing the proceedings of the meeting, would have worked a further hardship upon many people who are already finding it hard to pay their street assessments. So many people have not been able to pay up during the business depression to meet obligations.

The board then approved the resolutions presented by H. M. Robins, attorney for the town, concerning the details of refunding these sidewalk and street bonds.
