Asheboro C. Of C. Working To Bring Forest Office Here

Ask Cooperation Of Citizens In Finding Adequate Living Quarters For Group.

60 People Included
Office Space Available But Housing Will Be Problem Unless People Open Homes.

The Asheboro Chamber of Commerce is putting forth an active and concerted effort to bring into Asheboro the entire department of the Randolph Hills project. At present a part of this force is located at Troy, a part in Asheboro and at other places in the state. The idea of the Chamber of Commerce is to bring the group of sixty, now located at Troy, to Asheboro, for the remainder of the working time which will probably be about a year.

In order to do this, the Chamber of Commerce is asking the cooperation of the people of Asheboro. Adequate office space is available and offered and the only problem would be housing the sixty people comfortably. There are ten married people and forty unmarried men who must be housed. As has been remarked for some time, there are no vacant houses in Asheboro, and the Chamber of Commerce feels that with proper cooperation from the citizens, the town could secure this outfit and house them in comfortable quarters.

Arrangements have been made for a list of rooms, apartments and houses available to be filed from telephone number 45. People who are willing to cooperate to the extent of renting apartments and rooms are asked to call this number at once in order that the Chamber of Commerce may go on with the plans.

As is easily obvious, bringing an office force of sixty people into a town is a desirable thing from the standpoint of business and the group of business people in charge of the proposal are anxious to offer them adequate and comfortable living quarters if they decide to move the office here.

Some time ago a committee composed of M. H. Birkhead, Cleveland Thayer and Jess P. Garner was named to attempt to include Randolph in the area of the National Forest Plan for this section of the state. This is the committee that is working actively with the president of the organization, Dr. O. L. Pressnell, to bring the group to Asheboro in the near future.

County Commissioners Meet Monday And Act On County's Business

Sheriff Reports Unpaid Taxes; Welfare Officer Will Place Child In Institution

Again at the October meeting of the Randolph county commissioners the business was chiefly financial. The matter of poll tax relief for several citizens was acted upon by the decision to release Frank Jarrell from payment on the grounds of disability. Mrs. Ella Jarrell was removed from the outside poor list and Mrs. Ella Whitesell's allowance was reduced to $5.00 per month. This recommendation was made by the county welfare officer.

It was decided by the board that the county welfare officer be instructed to place in the Home for Feeble Minded Children the son of Fred Hadley as a charity patient if possible, otherwise the county will pay $10.00 per month for a period of one year.

Welcome E. V. Hobbs Back To Activity In Local Kiwanis Club

Mr. Hobbs Speaks At Meeting Addressing Talk To New Members Of Club

Scout Work Reported
David Cashwell Presents Murray E. Byrd, Raleigh, As Guest At This Meeting

E. V. Hobbs made the principal talk at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club in the social rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church Thursday evening. His talk was directed mainly to two new members, H. L. Pierce and J. A. Baity, but was interesting and instructive to the other members of the club as well. Mr. Hobbs' talk was built around the objects of community service which actuated the formation of the organization showing how the movement had justified itself by becoming the important civic club it is. The Kiwanis club is strictly an American organization but is international because it includes Canada in its territory.

H. L. Pierce, scout master, made an encouraging report to the club on the progress made by the local Boy Scouts. He stated that the attendance is around thirty every Friday night and that the boys are making special efforts to get ready for another court of honor which they hope to hold soon.

E. V. Hobbs, who has been ill for sometime and absent from several meetings, was welcomed back and expressed delight at being back and practically well again. J. A. Baity was introduced and welcomed into the club and he responded by telling the club members that he wanted to become a Kiwanian because of the great service he had observed and the boy scout work the club has undertaken reached a tender spot with him.

David Cashwell had as his guest at the meeting, Murray R. Byrd, of Raleigh. Mr. Byrd made a short talk congratulating the club on the work it is doing here.

With both major parties opening headquarters in Asheboro last week and planning for the coming campaign in a big way, Randolph folks increase their ever-present interest in things political. E. H. Cranford, chairman of Randolph county board of elections, announces this week that the registration books will open on October 13th and remain open for three Saturdays thereafter at the regular polling places for registration. The fourth

Farmer's Day To Be Celebrated Saturday At N. C. State Fair

The coronation will take place following the running of the "Mule Derby," a comedy feature arranged for the "Farmers' Day" program at the State fair on Saturday afternoon, only, October 13.

Negro bareback riders will pilot the contenders in their laugh provoking spin around the half mile State Fair oval, one of a dozen novelty events scheduled for the matinee.

Manager Norman Y. Chambliss is now awaiting entries in the contest and he anticipates no dearth of competitors, for $25 has been hung up for the winning mule. Two other prizes of $15 and $10 will be awarded the second and third place mules.

Other features of the "Farmers' Day" program include a gala race-track review of all livestock winners, a Hoover cart race with catch-as-catch can rules and regulations, a hog-calling contest limited to bonafide farmers, a husband calling contest and similar contests and events.

To the largest family entering the fair grounds on a single horse or mule drawn vehicle will go a cash prize of $75.00, and similar prizes will be given to the largest family entering the grounds and the family traveling the greatest distance on a horse or mule drawn vehicle to reach the fair.

Young People's Play
Fernando Cox, Progressive Farmer Who Can Prove His Theories By Practice

Ramseur, Oct. 3.—Ramseur people are too industrious to bother much about politics and matters outside of their own line. When the industrial plants are going, everybody is ready to put in the time at work. Little has been heard about the coming political campaign to date, however, I suppose things will get warmed up some before long.

The play entitled "Bound to Mary" to be given by the young people of the Baptist church Saturday night, October 6th, promises to be one worth your time and money. There are some characters in it that always furnish plenty of fun.

The voting place will remain unchanged for east Cedar Grove, but the west polling place will be moved to the Garner place. This is the house adjoining the Micajah Bingham house.

The first ten days of work in both parties has been chiefly that of organization but for the present general attention will be turned toward registration. Especially important is this point in a county as close as Randolph where "getting out the vote" will away the result on the "morning after."

Farm Debt Group Will Meet Friday For Adjustments

Harry F. Watkins, State Representative, In Asheboro Working Over Plans

Harry F. Watkins, representative for the Farm Debt Adjustment Committee in the central district, of which Randolph county is a part, was in Asheboro a few days past and, after a conference with C. L. Cranford, secretary of the Randolph county Farm Debt Adjustment Committee, announced that there would be a most important meeting of the committee held at the county court house on Friday, October 5th. The meeting will be called at 3:00 P. M. It is further announced that the regular time for the meeting of the committee will be the first Friday after the first Monday in each month.

Other meetings will be called at any time deemed necessary for the hearing and action upon distress cases. There will be a large number of cases coming before the committee at the meeting on Friday. There has been considerable interest displayed by farmers in this county who are anxious to get their affairs in hand so the committee may advise with them and help them work out their problems. It was for this purpose that the committee was formed and all farmers who need adjustments are urged to come before the committee with their problems. The members of the local group will endeavor to work out plans with such adjustments as will enable the farmers to meet them from their farms. Any member of the committee will be glad to render aid to those needing help.

Judge Johnson J. Hayes, of Greensboro, has recently been named conciliation commissioner to assist farmers in filing their petitions when it becomes necessary that a farmer seeks relief through the Frazier-Lemke Amendment. By taking this action, a farmer can stay his creditors five or six years by making small payments.

Farmers who are in need of any sort of adjustment are urged to come before the committee at the meeting or confer with any member of the committee concerning the adjustment of their problems. The committee is composed of B. M. Brower, of Liberty; A. C. Lowdermilk, of Seagrave; J. M. Shaw, of New Hope; Bruce Craven, of Trinity; C. L. Cranford, of Asheboro, secretary.

Application blanks may be secured through the local committee also from Robert T. Lloyd, director of relief for Randolph, and from E. S. Millsaps, Jr.

Caldwell county farmers say they will have an abundance of feed this winter. Nearly every farmer in the county planted lespedeza last spring.

14th Randolph Fair Draws Large Crowd For Annual Event

Attractive Booths, Interesting Displays, Diversification Make Good Fair.

Cattle Show Fine
Huge Midway Of Gruberg's Shows Offer Real Carnival For Pleasure Seekers.

With two crowd packed days behind it, the current Randolph County Fair is passing today the official halfway mark of its five day showing. If the jammed fairgrounds are indicative of the success of the venture, then Randolph county is having one of the best fairs in its history. But the real criterion of the success of the fair is in the interest manifested by Randolph county farmers, manufacturers, and students in the presentation of their exhibits, and judging accordingly from the attractive booths that fill the exhibit halls, more interest and pride has never been shown heretofore.

The cattle show this year is one of the salient features of the fair. The cattle building is filled with registered cattle from all parts of the county. A cursory survey of the cattle reveals Holstein, Jersey, Guernsey, and Hereford breeds that represent in their entirety one of the finest collections of milkers and breeders to be found in North Carolina.

Randolph county has always been considered a leader in agriculture and that leadership has been accentuated by the variety of its products. Mild climate, adequate precipitation, and a wide variety of soils are a gift of Nature to Randolph. Those natural assets, coupled with the industrious spirit of her farmers, as shown by the exhibits at the fair, reflect creditably on the producers in Randolph county.

Nor is the productiveness of Randolphers farmwives without representation. Needlecraft and handiwork, veritable paragon of efficiency in the art of designing and sewing, along with row on row of canned fruits, pickles, and varied vegetables, stand in attestation to accomplishment and pride in accomplishment.

Impressive among the individual booths are the display of D. C. Poole, route 2, Asheboro, and H. L. Skeen, of Asheboro. These two booths, containing a great variety of exhibits, are attractively arranged.

Farmer high school, with a unique thought provoking display, calls to the attention of farmers the profits which can be derived from live-stock

Hemp Soon To Have A New Tabernacle For Holiness Group

Rev. F. R. Cooper In Charge Of Building; A Cooperative Plan Observed In Erection.

For the past five weeks Reverend F. R. Cooper, of Asheboro, and Carl Kivett, of Troy, have been conducting a Holiness tent meeting at Hemp. The manifestation of interest in the meeting, which has seen the conversion of 140 people, promises the fulfillment of a longtime dream of the people of Hemp for a Holiness Tabernacle in the Hemp community.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mabry have donated a lot on which to build the tabernacle. Others have offered materials and labor. Two thousand feet of lumber, a gift from one supporter, is being mill free of charge at the saw mill of another. A prominent carpenter in the community has offered his services gratuitously in the supervision of the construction.

Rev. F. R. Cooper, 537 Hoover street, Asheboro, in charge of the building of the tabernacle, has already pledged, and that the foundation of the tabernacle has been laid. He urges all people interested in making contributions to the tabernacle to communicate with him.
