

County Welfare Work Will Require Full Time

Robert Lloyd, County Superintendent of Welfare, No Time For Federal Work.

Unemployables Now County's Problem

Randolph Will Be Grouped Into Federal District With Guilford and Rockingham.

The report of the recent meeting of the Randolph county board of commissioners made several changes that directly affect the tax payers of Randolph county.

The reverting of the outside poor and unemployables back to the county will necessitate considerable additional load upon the commissioners to cope with and to be met from the tax money collected from the citizens of Randolph.

It was the opinion of the commissioners at the recent meeting that, because of this added work in the county welfare department and for additional reasons, the whole time of Mr. Lloyd would be required by his county work.

Randolph county, therefore, will be under a district director, according to the set-up throughout the state.

Among the duties assigned to Mr. Lloyd are: the handling of juvenile cases; chief school attendance officer; probation officer; outside poor cases; unemployables; county inspector of labor conditions for the state department of labor; mothers aid, and many other similar duties.

Dr. A. D. Gregg Is Now Forming Plans County Sanitation

Not Too Early To Begin Preventive Sanitary Measures For Randolph.

J. H. Wylie Named

Sanitary Inspector Wylie Soon To Be Available For Consultation.

An interview with Dr. A. D. Gregg, director of public health in Randolph county, this week reveals that his plans for preventive measures for his spring health work in Randolph are already taking concrete form.

The most dangerous disease of the spring and summer—typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases are directly traced to the drinking of impure water.

Nature has blessed Randolph county with an abundance of pure water, which is an asset to start with.

Dr. Gregg is certain that "man's worst enemy is man himself"—the waste material that comes from his body and he insists upon this precautionary method which will be further discussed in open letters from Dr. Gregg appearing from time to time in this newspaper.

In accordance with this plan for sanitation, Dr. Gregg has appointed J. H. Wylie, of Liberty, as sanitary inspector for the county.

Highway Plans & Busses Discussed

Would Protect Lives Of School Children By Modern Steel School Busses.

Bills to provide stronger beer, fewer electrocutions, better elections and safer highways have been introduced into the general assembly, now in session in Raleigh, in addition to administration revenue and appropriation matter.

Representative Palmer, of Cabarrus, put forth his beer bill which would increase the alcoholic content of beer to 4.5% by weight.

Representative Thomas, of Harnett, Thompson, of Robeson, and Erwin, of Mecklenburg, sponsored a bill to abolish slot machines in this state.

Following a state wide bill to abolish absentee ballot laws, came a similar bill for Polk county introduced by Representative Cloud.

Highway bills galore were introduced by the senate. Senators, White, of Robeson, and Hill, of Durham, each introduced bills which would provide the financing of all operations of motor vehicles on the highways.

It would cut the penalty for violation in half, providing a fine of $250, or a sentence of 90 days or both. It would also charge a fee of $2.00 for license, with no further fee for renewal unless the license is cancelled or revoked.

Senator Folger, of Surry, introduced a bill "for the protection of the lives of school children." It would require all school bus operators to be at least 25 years of age and to pass an examination given by an official designated by the State Highway Patrol.

If the bill should pass with this last clause unchanged, North Carolina body manufacturers of bodies would be unable to compete in the local field as none are equipped to manufacture all-steel bodies.

Extensive Expansion Now In Process Of Erection For Stowe, The Florist

Last summer they grew 60,000 gladioli and 750 dahlias.

According to Mr. Stowe, a cyclamen requires more care to raise than any other pot flower but their rare beauty more than offsets the effort.

This business, grown to such a handsome size now, was not primarily designed as a real business, rather is an outgrowth of a hobby.

Gradually this interest broadened from plain garden flowers to hot house varieties until the business turned into a lucrative proposition.

Stowe, The Florist, is an approval member of the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association, an international organization, and can have flowers delivered anywhere.

The King Constidine Co., of Tonawanda, is the builder of the greenhouse. C. H. Wood, of this city, has the construction contract.
