

Local Ford Dealer Now Displaying All New 1935 Products

Many Improvements By This Company Make For Safer, Better Looking Fords.

Representative body types in the new line of Ford V-8 trucks for 1935 on display at the H. A. Page, Jr., Motor Company reveal sweeping changes to cab and chassis, reflect a new trend in appearance and introduce many new mechanical features.

In the new trucks, the engine has been moved forward more than eight inches giving more room in the cab and improved distribution of weight. Other important changes include: redesigned brakes and clutch, new springs and extended springbase, new cooling system, greater capacity gas tank, heavier front axle, larger and longer drive shaft and longer torque tube and new emergency brake level with dual ratchets.

The heavier front end that gives increased security and greater stability on slippery roads; better braking qualities because of the newly designed brakes, and new cabs trimmed in the manner of the business coupe are outstanding features of the 1935 lines.

The cab is distinguished in appearance and roomier. It has adjustable windshield, cowl ventilator and clear vision ventilation, the latter heretofore found only in the passenger car.

Under severe and continuous operation with a full load, the effectiveness of the brakes is nearly double that in former trucks. The brakes are considerably more powerful. Changes in construction have provided a more uniform bearing surface on the drums and at the same time "fading away" of the brakes in long, continuous application has been eliminated. The driver has been provided with a much quicker stop and with it less pedal pressure required. Better control of the truck with added safety, under all driving conditions, has been assured by the many changes in construction. The brakes are simpler, too, more than 20 parts having been eliminated in the new design.

The clutch has been greatly simplified and increased in size for more efficient operation. The new clutch provides a smoother start for the driver and easier, more positive disengagement for rapid and silent gearshifting. Pedal pressure has been materially decreased. In addition, the engagement of the clutch at highway speed has been made so positive, slipping and consequent clutch wear have been virtually eliminated.

A longer front spring has been provided and the front spring assembly moved further forward, insuring load distribution to a great extent.

The more ideal cooling of the engine under all operating conditions, the cooling system has been vastly improved. The capacity of the radiator has been enlarged and large pump impellers provided. Cooling efficiency has been increased materially by these changes.

The new 20-gallon gas tank under the driver's seat now has the filler opening much more conveniently located inside the door.

The new axle, designed to carry much heavier load, is mounted with heavier radius rods.

With full-floating rear axle, dual down-draft carburetor and perfected torque tube drive, the powerful 80-horsepower engine of the 1934 models, with several important changes, is retained in the 1935 line.

What a Big Mouth You Have, Daddy!

"WHAT a big mouth you have, Daddy!" is what young Michael is saying to his father who is none other than the distinguished baritone, Lawrence Tibbett. Michael is finding out where the "big noise" comes from that thrills millions in opera, concert, on the screen and over the radio. The baritone has just celebrated his tenth year as the outstanding star of the Metropolitan Opera Company and during 1935 is expected to add new honors to those which already rank him as America's Foremost Singer. He will be featured in no less than twenty-four operatic productions during the current season, in addition to broadcasting his regular Tuesday night programs over the coast-to-coast NBC-WJZ-Blue network. A spring concert tour will follow and this will terminate on the Pacific Coast where he will spend most of the summer making a new motion-picture.

CONDENSED NEWS OF STATE AND NATION

Important Happenings of the Current Week Written Exclusively for Readers of This Paper.

The bar examination of the State began Monday, at Raleigh, with two-day tests being given to 85 applicants, 42 of whom have tried before and failed. Since the new system went into effect, the number of applicants standing the bar examinations has been well below the number which used to take it from the Supreme Court. The last court examinations have been well below the number which used to take it from the Supreme Court. The last court examination was given to 200 applicants, while 112, who appeared last summer, are the most that ever tried the new system at one time.

William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, was reported to be well and fit on his 76th birthday, which was passed in Doorn, Holland. With him was his children, grandchildren, and a few selected guests. The Kaiser, in excellent health and looking younger and fresher than many of his company, drank his usual one glass of wine after dinner and spent the evening in a lively conversation. The birthday gift which seemed to please the ex-Kaiser most was a vacuum flask regulated according to temperature. This was given to him by the former Crown Prince and Crown Princess.

Columbia University announced Saturday that they had discovered the chemical formula for vitamin B, an epochal step toward preservation of health. B is the nerve vitamin, without which the nerves go to pieces. The discovery gives hope of more effective treatment for the most common cases of insanity. Until now, vitamin B has been available only from foodstuffs such as tomatoes, spinach, legumes, eggs, yeast, liver, kidney, and other glandular tissue. The importance of the Columbia discovery lies in the fact that vitamin B can soon be synthesized in pure form; that is, artificially produced from the chemicals which compose it. These chemicals consist of: carbon, nitrogen, hydrogen, oxygen, and sulphur.

Miss Winnie Bradshaw, 32, was found at her home in Wilmington Sunday frozen to unconsciousness due to exposure. She was immediately taken to the hospital, where her condition was reported as critical, although, it is said, she has an even chance to recover. Miss Bradshaw has been missing from her home since Tuesday and when asked by her uncle, J. R. Baines where she had been and what had caused her disappearance, she would give no answer. Both the chief of police Wallace and other officers are at work on the case, and hope to have it cleared up very soon.

WITH SLEEVES ROLLED UP

The Dairymen's League News, published by the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association of New York, points out that the dairyman has behind him a strongly-supported, aggressive organization which is tackling dairy problems with its sleeves rolled up.

The League affords a splendid example of what cooperative action can do. It has fought battles after battles in the great New York Milk Shed. It has fought for a fairer share of the final selling price of the milk products for the farmer. It has fought for a better adjustment between demand and supply. It has fought for higher standards of production and distribution. And, when alien radical elements attempted to disrupt the milk shed a year or two ago, destroying trucks and intimidating farmers, the League fought successfully for moderation, as opposed to the extremists of either side.

Other cooperatives can show similar records of achievement. Organized agriculture, its sleeves rolled up, is going places.

Peace and quiet once more reign in the state of Louisiana, where Huey Long's government was nearly overthrown last week by a group of "Square Dealers" led by the youthful Ernest J. Bourgeois, the president. The purpose of this "Square Deal" organization is to overthrow "dictator" Huey Long and to repeal his laws which gave him the power to do almost anything he wanted. It is predicted that more of these uprisings will break out in the near future. At the present, Long is on his way to the national capitol at Washington.
