Some Tried Recipes

Garnishes
Bits of parsley add to appearance and flavor of all soups. Dots of butter, grated cheese on top, a dash of paprika, toasted round of bread in middle of each bowl, a spoonful of diced carrots or peas in shallow bowls of soup, one or two croutons, a bit of toasted cereal—these help the appearance of soup. Serve very hot. Do not overfill as soup at best can be very awkward.

Many other soups can be prepared by recipes above. Beef, veal, and lamb make agreeable soups. Broth is extracted from bones and lean of meat. Grinding meat in food chopper and cracking bones helps in getting all the sustenance from them. Always start meat to cook in cold water. Strain and remove fat to avoid greasy soups. "Quick" soups are made by grinding vegetables with a coarse plate on food chopper.

A cream soup, salad, a dessert and a drink make a balanced meal for any one. Cabbage, corn, green or dried peas, turnips, saffery, carrots, parsnips, celery, okra, all sorts of beans—all these blend with broth or cream sauce for the making of wholesome soups.

Recognizing Need For Safety, Organized Auto Industry Adopted Safety Platform

Safety Platform Will Include Vital Principles Of Manufacture And Traffic

Recognizing the need for sound guiding principles, the organized automobile industry some time ago crystallized its past policies by the adoption of a definite safety platform. "This is more than a statement of policies—it is a working guide," say officials. "Some phases of this platform were put into effect with the industry's $54,000 grant to Harvard University for carrying on research activities, training of traffic control personnel and other functions of the Bureau for Street Traffic Research."

Detailed plans of individual organizations will be announced as they complete their arrangements. They will initiate and carry out projects on their own responsibility, it is said. At the same time, they are expanding the scope of safety activities of the Automobile Manufacturers Association. Through dealers and related groups of the industry, it is hoped to deal constructively with this difficult problem.

Members of the Safety Traffic Committee of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, responsible for the industry's broadened activity include: Mr. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, as chairman; Lee J. Eastman, vice president, Packard Motor Car Company; R. P. Fohey, secretary, Chrysler Corporation; Paul W. Garrett, director of public relations, General Motors Corporation; R. P. Page, Jr., president, The Autocar Company; Alfred Reeves, vice president and general manager, Automobile Manufacturers Association, and Norman Damon, manager of the Safety Division of the association.

The safety platform, adopted a few months ago, which is given full force and effect by the latest action, follows:

- 1. We will continue to build vehicles with every safety factor which intensive research and engineering ingenuity makes available.
2. We will merchandise our product under circumstances which emphasize the importance of safe construction, safe maintenance and safe use.
3. We will assist our dealers in keeping a constructive safety message before their customers and their communities.
4. We will encourage our dealers and service organizations to deliver cars, new or old, in safe driving condition, and only to persons legally entitled to use the public highways.

- 5. We will continue to support a sound, scientific approach to a solution of the tragic problem, believing that the same methods which have given America safe cars will protect their safe use.
6. We will work for highways of the highest quality, consistent with tragic needs and best adjusted to the safe use of the modern vehicle.
7. We will aid in the development and application of sound traffic regulations designed to gain maximum safety from existing streets and highways.

- 8. We will aid the school system in protecting the young and in developing good citizens conscious of their highway duties.

- 9. We will assist sound educational efforts through our own channels and through cooperation with other recognized safety educational agencies working for greater safety, economy and happiness in the use of the public highways.

Getting a Job and Getting Ahead

By Floyd B. Foster, Vocational Counselor, International Correspondence Schools

Work Beyond Your Job

ONCE you have obtained a job, the attitude you take toward it right at the start is going to be vitally important. Many men are immediately content to begin drifting along with as little effort as possible, with little definite thinking about the present and less planning for the future.

Other men begin working themselves into a fever and think that just because they work hard and honestly they are certain to succeed. They fail utterly to realize that the only kind of work that produces real success is that which is directed by a soundly conceived and organized plan of action.

The wisest plan for a young man starting in on his career, is to work always a little beyond his present job. As soon as you have mastered the particular job you were hired to do, begin to pioneer into new territory. Find out what the men immediately ahead of you do and how they do it. Then, by study, by observation, and by taking every opportunity to gain experience in some phase of their work, equip yourself as far as possible so that you could handle their job.

We will cooperate with the police departments and other enforcement agencies in a vigorous selective program of traffic law enforcement, designed to remove the reckless from the highways, to curb the careless, and to protect the right of the good citizen to use the highways safely and free from molestation.
