George A. Laughlin, Discovered Hanging Dead In Outhouse On Farm At Cedar Falls Thursday

Former Preacher Commits Suicide At Age Of 81; No Reason Is Assigned For His Act Except Ill Health For A Number Of Years

George A. Laughlin, 81 years old, was found hanging in an outhouse on his place at Cedar Falls dead at three o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Jackson who live on the Laughlin farm, were away from home working. Mr. Jackson returned at three o'clock and went to the outhouse for a hoe when he discovered the body.

Calling Sheriff King and the county coroner, Dr. W. L. Lambert, it was found that the man had been dead since before noon, possibly 10:00 or 11:00 o'clock. The body was stiff and cold when discovered.

Mr. Laughlin was seen going toward this shed shortly before 10:00 Thursday morning and nothing was thought of it, since garden tools and machinery were stored in the building. He had formed a slip noose with a hitch rein and had died from strangulation, according to Dr. Lambert who agreed with Sheriff King that the case was a clear one of suicide. Mr. Laughlin had been in somewhat bad health as was his son, Alfred Laughlin, who shot himself a year ago.

No cause could be assigned for the suicide although a pencil and paper were lying in sight in the room formerly occupied by the dead man. A mark or two on the paper indicated that he had started to write a note, but none was found. Palsy prevented letter writing at normal times, it was said by those who knew him well.

Mr. Laughlin was, in his earlier days, a preacher, but in recent years had lived quietly on his small farm, not in the best of health.

Several sons survive, most of whom live in this county. Funeral arrangements had not been completed as this newspaper goes to press.

Character Bonds Selling Steadily To Asheboro Folk

Committee In Charge Pleased With Response And Cooperation From Citizens Of Town

Work Is Progressing

Hope In Short Time To Have Two Playgrounds With Adequate Equipment

The sale of Character Bonds to finance playgrounds in Asheboro is progressing steadily, though somewhat less rapidly than was hoped. Incomplete returns to date show collections of $650, while the goal set by the committee was $1000. N. M. Harrison, who is in charge of the campaign, is confident that this sum will be reached, for as yet none of the clubs have been asked to buy the bonds, the canvassing squads having devoted their efforts to individuals so far.

The committee is proceeding with organization of the playgrounds, and expects to have playground equipment erected in a week or ten days. A short time afterwards the two playgrounds are to be in operation, with one man and one woman supervisor at each.

One of these recreational centers will be at the school ground. The site for the other has not been definitely settled, but it will be in the other section of Asheboro, and the Lewis field on Sunset avenue is under consideration.

Mr. Harrison wishes to remind all parents and others interested in child activities of the school for playground instruction to be conducted next week by William Bailey, superintendent of playgrounds at High Point. The supervisors will be present and open discussion of the proceedings and methods of operation of the new grounds will be encouraged.

Randolph Library Receives Two More Best-Sellers Thurs.

Among recent acquisitions of the rapidly-growing Randolph Public Library are two which are already best-sellers and should be read by everyone interested in modern literature.

"Beyond Sing The Woods" is the first novel of the Norwegian-American folk of his native country. Gulbrandsen has taken the simple people of 19th century Norway and invested them with the epic qualities of legendary heroes, yet preserving in them a warm, human, familiar feeling. "Beyond Sing The Woods" surpasses the limitations of the usual modern, sophisticated novel, for it combines the simplicity and noble wisdom of other days with all the knowing sharpness of today. An immediate favorite in Europe, this book has continued its popularity in America, having been the April choice of the Literary Guild.

"Roll River" is by an author familiar to all readers of American historical stories, James Boyd. Here he departs from tracing early American life to deal with the period from 1880 to the present. Boyd again increases his reputation as a delineator of rich human characterizations, for the steady flow of his narrative, and for his moving drama.

Rotarians Will Name Delegates To Institute At Picnic Tonight Held At The Asheboro City Pond

The regular Friday meeting of the Asheboro Rotary club will take the form of a picnic dinner at 6:30 tonight at the city pond. The Ladies Auxiliary of the Charlotte Methodist Protestant church will serve a chicken dinner. Though this is not to be a Ladies' Day meeting, a number of wives are expected to attend with their husbands. In case of rain the club will assemble at the Charlotte church.

Because of the informal nature of this gathering there will be no fixed program. One important piece of business to be transacted is the election of two delegates to Duke University's fourth annual Institute of International Relations, to be held June 8-19.

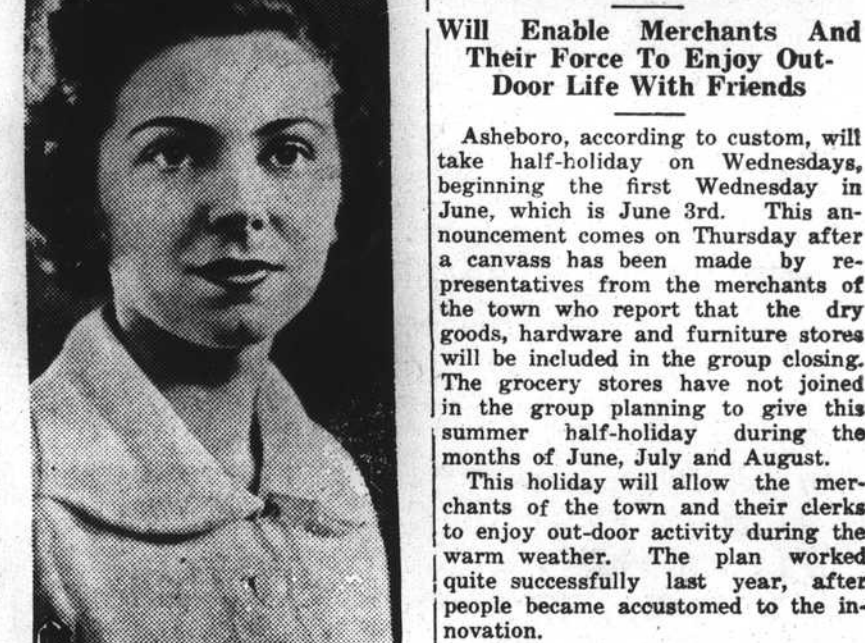

This institute is one of the major interests of Rotary International, since it works for the same purposes of world peace, friendly relations and good fellowship among all peoples as does Rotary. Although it is not a
