THURSDAY, JAN. 21, 1937. CONFIDENCE AND OPTIMISM HOSTS of people stood shivering in Washington Wednesday as President Roosevelt was inaugurated for the second term as leader of the United States.

But, President Roosevelt, realizing the responsibility of his office repeated in a most impressive voice—full of meaning—the oath to serve the people of the United States.

played runny-cat up and down stairs getting their wooden characters. The Charlotte Observer carried an editorial Wednesday on the subject that was of interest. It ran thus: A five city survey made by the Northwestern Life Insurance company designed to discover what the public reads in the daily newspapers reveals some interesting trends.

The comic page is followed by 84 per cent of the men in the survey and by 75 per cent of the women. Fifty-seven per cent of the women questioned at least glance over the sports page and 16 per cent read it thoroughly.

Newspaper advertisements are read by 61 per cent of all the men and women in the survey, among whom 20 per cent declare they read the ads thoroughly and 41 per cent hastily, while an additional 14 per cent habitually glance at the headlines.

Raising babies, cooking and cleaning have little effect on woman's eager study of the fashion page, even though her means to buy the latest dodes may be temporarily reduced.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON. — Mr. Roosevelt, as he moves toward some action to curb the power he feels have been usurped by the U. S. Supreme Court, will undertake to show that his attitude toward the Constitution is similar to that of the founding fathers who wrote it, and that members of the court are the ones who have misinterpreted that document.

In his first message to Congress, the president urged all hands to read the constitutional debates. You can do that with surprising results, because the history of the Constitution's origins is still unknown to the great bulk of Americans.

IF it could be proved that the framers of the Constitution intended to give Congress the power to establish mercantile monopolies, Brant argued in a speech to the People's Lobby, it would follow that the government had constitutional power to go far beyond anything found in the New Deal and could even take over the economic life of the nation.

Five Point Program Of North Carolina Educational Ass'n.

(The fourth point in the NCEA legislative program is the strengthening of the certification regulations).

Teachers are certified to teach for the same reason that lawyers are licensed to practice law, doctors are licensed to practice medicine, and other groups are licensed by the state to practice their profession or art or craft. The purpose, of course, of the certification or licensing any of these groups to practice their profession is twofold. The first and most important reason is the protection of the public against quackery in the practice of the profession.

(Point 5 calls for a unification of the administrative control of the schools into one constitutionally authorized board.)

At the present time responsibility for the administration of the school system of North Carolina is divided into five boards. These are: 1. The state board of education, composed of the constitutional officers of the states.

In advocating the abolition of the five boards mentioned above and the setting up of one constitutionally authorized board for the administration of the schools, the North Carolina Education Association wants to make it clear that the teachers have no personal grudge against any of the boards or the personnel of any of the boards. As a matter of fact, the men and women who have served on these boards through the years

IN WASHINGTON WHAT IS TAKING PLACE BY

It is too early to anticipate the course of the new seventy-fifth congress in reshaping federal programs and federal activities in the light of the brighter economic skies that have followed in the wake of depression storms. However, there is every indication that the congress will give more than usual study to each recommendation that may call for larger expenditures, increased activity and new functions of government.

Evidence of this is already available in the form of the unprecedented interest in the estimates of income and expenditures—the federal budget—submitted to the congress by the president. Thus it is obvious that expenditures must be justified on the basis of the contribution they will make to the public welfare.

The budget—the federal budget for the fiscal year 1937, as submitted by the president, calls for expenditures of roughly $65 for each man, woman and child in the United States. It also calls for taxes in amount of $45, on the average, for every individual, adults and youngsters. The difference of $20 represents the deficit.

Let's look at the budget another way. John Jones can maintain his family budget and keep income and expenditures balanced so long as the latter adhere rigidly to the budget. But if some mishaps befall the Jones family, requiring unusual expenses, the head of the household has to borrow. From then on, income must be increased or expenditures slashed, else the budget loses caste.

That is what happened to the federal budget. In the absence of adequate income to cover the emergency outlay and in the face of maintenance of regular expenditures, there has been a deficit. In other words, multiply the Jones problem about three million times and you have a picture of the federal situation, which, however, is getting better as regards increasing revenues.

The $8,000,000,000 budget for the fiscal year 1937, is around $3,000,000,000 above the 1932 level, due to relief expenditures, farm-aid, adjusted compensation for veterans, social security, recovery programs and so on. The 1937 total may be raised or lowered by the congress as hearings are held on various appropriation bills. Have these increased expenditures been justified? Congress will decide.

President's views — President Roosevelt's thoughts on the subject can best be expressed in his own words as follows: "The programs inaugurated during the last four years to combat the depression and to initiate many needed reforms have cost large sums of money, but the benefits obtained from them are far outweighing all their costs. We shall soon be reaping the full benefits of those programs and shall have at the same time a balanced budget that will also include provision for reduction of the public debt."

"The fiscal plans of the federal government for these four years have been formulated with two objectives in mind. Our first was to restore a successful economic life to the country, by providing greater employment and purchasing power for the people, by stimulating a more balanced use of our productive capacity, and by increasing the national income and distributing it on a wider base of prosperity. Our second was to gain new advantages of permanent value for the American people. Both of these objectives can be accomplished under a sound financial policy."

"Business conditions have shown each year since 1933 a marked improvement over the preceding year. Employment in private industry is increasing. Industrial production, factory pay rolls, and farm prices have steadily risen."

Speaking of budgets—While there is tremendous interest in budget-balancing, few people realize that the federal government operated for more than a century without a budget. The bureau of the budget was not created until 1921. Prior to that time federal agencies submitted estimates of expenditures and congress raised or cut these estimates. However, since the creation of

as well. The outlook is favorable for some government reorganization, but there is a question whether the congress will permit the executive branch to absorb some agencies that were created by and are responsible to congress. The general accounting office and the federal trade commission are cases in point.

Beware The Cough From a common cold That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as, Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results. Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membrane and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened (Adv.)

"It's pretty hard to beat NATURE"

HERE is an action picture of the famous Sulu, the pointer who swept everything before her at National Field Trials of 1936 at Grand Junction, Tenn. Sulu, the queen of them all! Thousands of bird dogs range the fields... but there's only one Sulu. To this glorious creature Nature gave her greatest gift, a perfect balance of the vital elements; speed, scent, endurance, instinct and intelligence. Another pointer may be just as good to look at, but Sulu has that vital spark—everything in perfect balance. So Sulu is the queen; the other is just a dog. Just as Nature favored Sulu, she favored Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. Just as Sulu has many elements in Nature's balance, so has this nitrogen fertilizer. Nature-aged and blended into Natural Chilean, more than thirty "impurities", or vital elements that your crops need to grow and to produce their best. These vital elements are in addition to Natural Chilean's quick-acting nitrogen. That's why Natural Chilean is so good for your land and your crops.
