Field Day

The thirty-second annual farmers field day will be held at the Piedmont Experiment station, Statesville, N. C., Thursday, July 22, 1937. It should more than repay any farmer to take a day off and attend this meeting. On the program will be heard many prominent men in agricultural work in the state, such as Hon. W. Kerr Scott, commissioner of agriculture; D. S. Coltrane, assistant commissioner of agriculture; Dr. J. S. Dorton, manager N. C. state fair; Frank H. Jeter, agricultural editor N. C. State college; and many other forceful speakers. In addition to this, there will be contests and prizes awarded in livestock, crops, soils, hog calling, husband calling, horseshoe pitching, etc., which will add to the entertainment. Experimental plots will also be open for inspection and labeled as far as possible. Farmers are invited to look over experiments under way and will be given information by men in charge. Such experiments as crop fertilizing, livestock feeding, and a great number of other experiments will be viewed, which should be valuable information for any of us to bring home.

Let us again urge every farmer to make every effort to attend this field day, and don't forget the date—Thursday, July 22, beginning at 10 a. m., at the Statesville experiment station.

Farmers Convention

It is now time to make definite plans to attend the State Farmers convention, to be held at Raleigh August 2nd to 6th. This is the annual get together of farmers and farm women throughout the state, and is something that is very much worth while from all angles. Some of the greatest agricultural leaders of the country will be on the program there, and it will be a vacation week filled with fun, education, and wholesome recreation and pleasure. Let's all prepare now to attend.

Terrace News

The terracing unit is now operating in the eastern side of the county, near Brown's Cross roads. Farmers in this area interested in having terracing done should get in touch with us immediately, as that is the only way in which we can tell who is desirous of the work. All land that is to go in small grain this fall or that will lay out in lespedeza, should be terraced now if it is sloping enough to afford soil erosion.

Remember that our agricultural existence is no better than our soil, and the soil is exactly what we make it through improvement, such as terracing, proper cultivation, etc., and we cannot improve land unless we can keep it in field.

Winter Feed

Through the year of farming all barns with feed for winter and it is still not too late to make some preparation for the winter in regards to our grain for feeding livestock. Feedstuffs as a farm people will depend upon crops through grain to market, and we cannot have good cattle without good plentiful feed.

Cheese consumption by the State amounts to 15.4 pounds per person annually.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

HE SOUGHT THE SOUL OF MAN.

SON of a professor of law, Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibnitz only naturally directed his studies in that profession. He was born in Leipzig, Germany, in 1646, and qualified for his law degree a year before he could get it legally. Immediately he set out to reform the "Corpus Juris," or body of the law.

But his interest quickly veered toward a search for the source of man's soul, and an effort to explain God's trust in man. Out of this came Leibnitz's basic philosophy, that the soul, like all the senses of man, was born with a person, and that it is the consciousness of its presence that is acquired later by education and experience.

In mathematics, as in philosophy and law, Leibnitz became world famous. He improved and added to the study of calculus, or the mathematics of reasoning, and to analytical geometry. In 1700, he became chief organizer and first president of the Berlin Academy of Sciences. He died, in 1716, at the age of 70 years.

Germany, in 1926, included his portrait on one of a series of stamps honoring its famous sons. It is shown here.
