Awards Made For Exhibits At Fair

Farm Booths Are Center Of Interest; Excellent Cattle Show; Home-comers Day.

Judges held sway at the Randolph county fair yesterday and many people showed interest in Randolph's bests. This was also cattle judging day and E. S. Mill-saps, county agent, is justly proud of the exhibit which, he says, is the "best for six years." The grand champion cow award was carried off by Alton Kearns of Farmer with the grand champion bull award going to Clyde Coltrane of Trinity, for his fine animal. This show revealed the wonderful property of th gress of this county in the line of purebred cattle made in recent

Interest also centered around the farm exhibit booths yesterday, as has been the case all week. Awards in this department have been made. H. L. Skeen of Asheboro route 2 won first place with D. C. Poole, also of route 2, coming second. Third place was achieved by Mrs. R. J. Lawrence of Seagrove. These booths gave a true picture of Randolph county farm life with the display of fruits, vegetables, canned goods, hams of tempting size and juicy, sweet meat, dresses, fancy work—every-thing that is produced and used on Excess Reserves

The vocational exhibit has been a nice thing and widely interesting.
Farmer carried off the prize with Seagrove school winning second place which speaks well for their Banks Have More Funds vocational departments.

Today, Home-coming day, has possibly gone down as the most interesting of the week. While there have not been such large crowds part of the time during the week, many people from afar came for the event and the grounds will, in all possibility, be crowded tonight.

The midway is unusually good with William Glick's shows in full tilt offering varied and thrilling entertainment. The free acts are good and Harry Fisher will never grow old, either in spirit or to his
