Freight Rates Blamed Investors Contend Federal Board's Decision Cast Shadow Over Market

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The stock market swept into another broad decline today as offered shares swamped traders and forced prices down $1 to as much as $9 or more. Railroad and steel issues were the first to feel the selling wave, which, however, soon spread through all divisions of the market. United States Steel, common dropped to a new low level for the year and Union Pacific, Louisville and Nashville, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific suffered wide losses. Investors' disappointment with the freight rate increases granted the carriers yesterday by the Interstate Commerce commission, coupled with the fact the market already had discounted them in higher prices the last few days, was said by brokers to have been one of the primary causes of the slump.

Flooding Exchange With Orders

Here is an exclusive peek behind the scenes of Wall Street's biggest day since the 1929 stock crash, when sales of shares on the New York Stock Exchange reached a total of 7,287,990, twelfth largest turnover in a single trading day. Messengers scurry about the E. A. Pierce and Company brokerage offices in New York, delivering to phone clerks the slips of paper that swelled the flood of securities sales. The phone clerks, in direct communication with the floors of the exchanges, transmitted 19,000 orders for execution by the firm's trading members.

Methodist Annual Conference Meets Here November 4

More Than 1,000 Clergy And Lay Members of Carolina Expected to Attend. Will Elect Officers

Twenty-six M. P. Churches In Randolph to Send Groups; Meet in Local Church.

The one hundred and ninth session of the North Carolina annual conference of the Methodist Protestant church will convene in Asheboro November 4, 1937. All sessions will be held in the Central Methodist Protestant church. The conference will assemble in first session Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, with the president, Rev. R. M. Andrews, D.D., presiding. After the roll call and the usual organizational procedure, this session will be devoted to worship. The feature of this hour is the conference sermon and the communion service following the sermon. The minister to preach the conference sermon is always elected by the preceding conference. Rev. C. E. Ridge, pastor of Shiloh church, will preach the sermon this year. Dr. Andrews will have charge of the communion service, and he will be assisted by ministers whom he appoints for this purpose.

In the afternoon of the opening day the conference officers are elected. This is the chief item of interest in the afternoon session. The officers to be chosen are, president, secretary, treasurer, press representative, statistical secretary, conference historian, custodian of records, lay member of the stationing committee, committee on appeals, and standing district committee.

The night program of the opening day will be of a public nature, and will deal with phases of conference work other than matters of business.

The conference will bring to Asheboro about 200 ministers and delegates, and those who come as visitors through the different conference days will swell the attendance to a thousand or fifteen hundred folk.

Some of the denominational leaders will attend, and will address the conference. Among these will be Rev. J. H. Straughn, D.D., president of the general conference, Baltimore, Md.; Rev. G. W. Haddaway, executive secretary, board of missions, Baltimore, Md.; Rev. F. W. Stevenson, D.D., executive secretary, board of Christian education, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rev. F. L. Gibbs, executive secretary of the department of religious education of the board of Christian education, Pittsburgh, Pa.; and probably Rev. W. L. Shopley, D.D., editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder, Baltimore, Md.

A matter of importance that will claim the attention of the conference will be the fellowship crusade which has just been launched by the board of administration of the church. Plans will be made to put the conference in harmony with this denominational program. The three objectives of this crusade is 1. To increase the spirituality of the individual Christian; 2. To secure a more dominant spiritual life for the local church; and 3. To liquidate all church indebtedness.

The conference met in the Asheboro church ten years ago, in November, 1927. It will be noted that the conference for this year has been shortened one day. Heretofore for many years the first session has opened on Wednesday instead of Thursday, as this year. This is new, and its workings will be observed with much interest on the part of the conference.

Former pastors of the Asheboro church, who will attend this conference, are, Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D., Rev. W. M. Pike, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, Rev. J. D. Pritchard, D.D. C. E. Bulla will be a member of the conference as delegate of the local church.

The conference church was organized in 1892, with 12 charter members, only one of whom is living now, this Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer of Asheboro. The membership is now 470. The church is in a most gratifying condition, and will make to the conference a splendid report of the work this year.

There are twenty-six Methodist Protestant churches in Randolph county, with 3,000 members. These churches constitute seven pastoral charges. The charge having the largest membership is Randolph, with 774 members. Rev. G. L. Reynolds is pastor of this charge. Randleman ranks next with 62

Second Garr Boy Freed Of Murder

Roy Found Not Guilty In Denhardt Case; Farmers Made Up Jury

Shelbyville, Ky., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Roy Garr was acquitted last night by a jury of 12 farmers of a charge of murdering Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt. The jury received the case shortly before 9 o'clock. Garr's acquittal followed several hours after his younger brother, Jack, was freed when Judge Charles C. Marshall dismissed the murder charge against him.

The third brother, Dr. E. S. Garr, was not tried, his case having been continued to the February term.

Despite admonition by Circuit Judge Charles C. Marshall, spectators in the crowded courtroom burst into wild applause when the verdict was announced. Word that a decision had been reached spread rapidly over Shelbyville and hundreds of persons started running toward the courthouse, joining hundreds of spectators who had remained in the courtroom after completion of the final arguments.

State Democratic Women Will Meet

A blanket invitation appeared in the press recently from Mrs. W. B. Murphy of Snow Hill, Democratic state chairman, urging them to attend the state-wide party conference on October 28th. The conference will be held in Raleigh and will be an all-day affair. Mrs. Murphy has given out no specific details, however, to date, but her invitation has been cordial.

It is understood that there will be business sessions with a luncheon meet. The place of the meeting was not stated in the press reports, but such meetings are usually held at the hotel. The Hoey's will give a tea in the afternoon for all who attend.

Mrs. Dorothy McAllister Hood and Mrs. May Thompson Evans from the women's division of the Democratic national committee will speak. Governor Hoey and members of the state's congressional delegation are slated to talk at a luncheon.

Russia Refuses To Yield; Further Aid From Rome Absurd

London Diplomats See End Of Plan To Keep Europe From General Conflict

Meeting Tuesday

Il Duce's Notice Called "Obituary" To Efforts For General Peace.

London, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A Fascist warning that Italy had made her last concession, coupled with unyielding Russian opposition to the Italian stand, today swept away Europe's hope of settlement of the problem of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war.

The 68th session of the non-intervention sub-committee has been called for Tuesday, but it promised nothing but continued disputes between representatives of Europe's great powers.

The statement, issued at Rome by the official newspaper, and believed to have been written by Il Duce himself, said that "to believe Italy can make further concession on plans of withdrawal of troops from Spain is absurd.

The statement was accepted in London diplomatic quarters as a virtual obituary notice for the plan by which Britain had hoped for withdrawal of volunteers and attendant lessening of the danger that the civil war would become a general conflict.

The efforts of the non-intervention nations were considered to have been set back to the point where they were before Italy's proposal of what Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called "a welcomed contribution" to the problem of getting foreign troops out of Spain.

Phony Telegram to Seagrope Brings Grief to The Boones

It was all a mistake, but mistakes like the one suffered by relatives of Wade Boone, of Richmond, Va., Thursday might well be described as sad.

Mrs. E. K. Boone, of Seagrope, received a telegram about 9:30 Thursday morning which carried the message that her son, Wade, who lives in Richmond, had died suddenly. Much grieved, Mrs. Boone notified relatives that Wade had died suddenly. Six brothers, three sisters-in-law and three sisters came to the home, and friends made arrangements with florists for wreaths. But, and the "But" is a big one—Wade was not dead, in fact, when Mrs. Boone was able to get him on the telephone. Wade informed his mother "No, I'm not dead, in fact, I'm very much alive."

After investigating around in Richmond, Mr. Boone was able to find that there was another "Wade Boone" in town and that he had just died. Its still a mystery, however, just who took it upon themselves to wire Mrs. Boone that her son was dead.
