MUSBY AND HIS CAVALRY.

Military Value of a Partisan Co. er's Work-A Fascinating Life. My purpose was to weaken the armies invading Virginia by harassing their rear. As a line is only as strong as its weakest point, it was necessary for it to be stronger than I was at every point in order to resist my attacks. It is easy, therefore, to see the great results that may be accomplished by a small body of cavalry moving rapidly from point to point on the commuications of an army. To destroy supply trains, to break up the means of conveying intelligence, and thus isolating an army from its base, as well as its different corps from each other, to confuse their plans by capturing dispatches, are the objects of partisan to prevent all these things from being done, heavy detachments must be made to guard against them. The military value of a partisan's work is not measured by the amount of property de stroyed, or the number of men killed or captured, but by the number he keeps from the front to guard the rear of an army is so much taken from its fighting strength.

I endeavored, as far as I was able, to diminish this aggressive power of the army of the Potomac by compelling it to keep a large force on the defensive. I assailed its rear, for there was its most vulnerable point. My men had no camps. If they had gone into camp they would soon have all been captured. gather at my call, like the children of the Mist. A blow would be struck at a weak or unguarded point and then a quick retreat. The alarm would spread through the sleeping camp, the long roll would be beaten or the bugles would their prey. There pursuers were strik-ing at an invisible foe. I often sent small squads at night to attack and rua in the pickets along a line of several OF THE JOHNSTON MEN THAT HE IS miles. Of course these alarms were very annoying, for no human being knows how sweet sleep is but a soldier. LET US SEE HOW THAT IS! Before the speaking began I had a private conversation with Genl Johnstone Jones, in which be stated to me that he was opposed to any change in the stock law as it then existed. I told him I would not vote for him, unless he would assure me that in case of his election, he would not do anything to change the law. He assured me that in his opinion the law would stand as it then was. After the conversation with me, Gen'l Jones stated publicly to the people that his position on the stock law was the same as Mr. Pearson and Mr. Freman, which was opposition to any change in the then
