WRANGLING

OVER THE TWO VIRGINIA DELEGATIONS.

Yesterday's Proceedings

OF THE NATIONAL REPUBLI-CAN CONVENTION.

Permanent Organization .--- Fred Douglass Presented With a Handsome Bouquet.

By Telegraph to the SUN.

CHICAGO, June 20.-Convention Hall-The great convention hall fills more rapidly this morning than yesterday. Uncompleted details in the arrangement of seats compelled the sergeant-at-arms to keep the crowd out yesterday until nearly noon. To-day there is nothing wanting, and eager, expectant, puzzled, but somewhat weary, the multitude flows into the building with great expectation visible upon every face. The Wise-Mahone opisode of yesterday's session has whetted the appetite of the galleries for further passage of arms, and everybody watches Virginian's seats to see the incoming of the expected combatants. The weather is much warmer than vesterday and in the great galleries and balconies there is a quick waving of fans, and some of the spectators have discarded their coats and are taking their ease in true democratic style, while crowds flow in with a great murmur, like the ocean. There is a slower gathering of the solans of the party, newspaper men and officers of the convention, on the platform and in the galleries in rear of the chairman's desk. The old walnut desk with its gilt letterings telling that -SPECTACLES, from it Blaine and Garfield were both nominated, in this city, excites a great deal of curiosity from people on the stage in its vicinity.

Mr. Estee, who is a broad shouldered and broad whiskered man, with a pleasant smile and agreeable manners, is an early arrival and walks upon the platform before all of the California delegates are in their seats. Few people on the stage greet him, for Estee is not an obstrusive man and has not circulated much among the delegates. He gracetully yielded to his defeat for temporary chairman and was surprised at the success of his friends who had him chosen for a higher place. He will hereafter be the most prominent figure in the convention, and in many ways the most important. As a few of his friends gather about him he looks over them with an air of some concern; hoping that his voice can be heard everywhere, but modestly expressed himself as to his ability the convention, the cheering broke forth to successfully master the situation. Mr. Estee's friends have no such doubt. He has managed large bodies before and has fine executive ability.

As the auditorium fills up the air begins to be oppressive, although the auditorium has been found to be the coolest place in Chicago. A flash, like the hot air of a furnace, has swept over the city and is gradually working its way throughout the auditorium building and giving the convention some approximation to the stifling experience of the democratic gathering at St. Louis.

As yesterday, the first delegate in the hall is an Ohioan, who comes in followed by three or four others, who take their seats in the centre of the, as yet, empty space in front of the platform. This van guard is followed by others, some of them in delegations, others alone, in pairs, and by half dozens, and the convention begins to look like business. The side galleries and organ loft begins to fill up, with a large sprinkling of ladies.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons, wife of the seargentat-arms of the convention, is scareely seated when a page goes up to her and presents her with a magnificent bouquet of la France roses. Fred Douglass, who also gets to his seat on the stage about this time, is presented with a bouquet of cut flowers also, and a similar courtesy, extended to chairman Jones, of the National Committee, is the signal for a ripple of applause.

A familiar figure circulating among the delegates arouses the interest of the spectators. This is the big jolly form and round, clean shaven and good natured face of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll.

About the hour for the meeting of the convention, the hall is full of rumors of the usual sort-and generally unreliable. It is reported among the Blaine men that Cailfornia has agreed to vote for Stanford on the preliminary ballots, in order to save their effectiveness for the Blaine movement at the time agreed upon. It is also reported that some New York men have abandoned Depew and are openly for Blaine, but this can be traced to no reliable source.

It was announced that the committee in which Blaine would be lauded to the committee has sent a sub-committee of who would be the nominee. the full committee will report on the currences of the day was the presentacontested cases at 8 p. m. The convention was called to order by Chairman Thurston at 12:30, and a hush fell upon the assemblage when Rev. Stephen Northorp, of Ft. Wayne, lifted up his voice in prayer. tion, then stepped upon the platform and read the unanimous report of the committee. He was given an enthusiastic reception by the audience, and as he stated that M. M. Estee, of California, was selected for permanent chairman of afresh. Gov. Foster proceeded to read the list of Vice Presidents as selected by the various State delegations. The report was adopted without dissent, and the chair appointed Gov. Foster, of Ohio; Senator Foly, of Nevada, and Mr George B. Sloan, of New York, a committee to escort Mr. Estee to the platform from his seat in the California delegation. When Mr. Estee appeared and was introduced by the chair, the convention applauded with enthusiasm.

The committee on credentials decided to admit to seats the Wise delegates, in all contested districts except the 9th, leaving Mahone the 1st 4th and 9th and the delegates-at-large, and making the delegation stand, wise 14, Mahone 10. Subsequently, on motion to reconsider, the committee ruled out the 9th Va. district and then took recess until

After a brief recess the committee re assembled and at once took up the case of District of Columbia. While this contest hinges upon charges and countercharges of irregularity at the district convention, it soon became very plain that the seating of these two delegates will involve a hard fight in the convention and will probably be the first trial of strength between Blaine and Sherman It is probable that whatever the committee's decision, a minority report will be presented in this case, without reaching a vote. At six o'clock, in order to be able to report to the convention this evening, the contests in Lousiana, Georgia, Maryland, Minnesota and Massachusetts, were refered to sub-committees with instructions to report without delay.

Estee, the new anti-monopoly chairman, was given a reception on taking the gavel, that for unaniminity and heartiness has not been exceeded since the convention opened. Depew was not on the floor at the time, loosing thereby a great opportunity to note the greeting to anti-monopolies. The chair asked for a report of the committee on credentials, that being regular order of business.

Gen. Henderson, of Iowa, announced that chairman Hepburn, of that committee was not present, and the secre? tary of the convention proceeded to kill 9th district as the banner district of time by announcing telegrams received Virginia republicanism, and loving its for delegates; after which a band in the gallery proceeded to put in time until the credentials committee would be ready to report. While the band was playing, Col. Fred Grant and his wife, accompanied by Mrs. Potter Palmer, entered the conventon, and walking through the lane of delegation aisles, stepped upon the platform and took seats in rear of the stand assigned to them. The convention at once recognized Grant and cheered the distinguished visitors.

The chairman again called upon the committee on credentials and again received no response. He then called upon the committee on resolutions, but Harris, of North Carolina, stated that that committee was not ready to report and would not be before to-morrow.

Bayne then suggested that the roll of States should be called, for the purpose of selecting members of the National committee; but his motion to this effect was defeated. Then, the convention An evidence that California's boom for having nothing else to do, commenced to the call, the chairman presented W. O. Bradley, of Kentucky.

The report, among other recommendations favors the adlarge and the Wise delegates from the 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 10th districts. Russell, of N. C., presented a dissenting minority report, favoring the admission ted, except so much thereof as relates to majority report seats the Wise delegates the Virginia contests.

Riddleberger, of Va., took the floor to question.

The chair sustained the point of order and Riddleberger left the platform.

That part of the credentials commitdelegates-at-large was adopted. The question then was upon the adoption of mission of district delegates from Va. Wood, of Va., spoke in favor of the minority report with special reference to 9th district delegates. He said that he and his colleagues were properly and legally elected by the convention which was regularly called by the State committee, and the contestants were elected but a protest came from Harris, of North any stampede and adds very decidedly by three men who held a pretended convention in a private office of one of the delegates, who was their chairman. the motion as being dangerous in its effect. Stevenson, of Minn., moved that the minority report, so far as it referred to the admission of Wood and his colleagues, be adopted. The chair explained that the minority report did not ask for the admission of any delegation from the 9th district, but merely dissented from the majority re-

Stevenson then said that he would move that Wood and his colleagues be admitted to the convention, as properly elected delegates from the 9th district. Weber, of New York, objected to this and Russell, of N. C., callled attention to the fact that the majority report die not recommend the seating of the anti Mahone delegates from 9th district as it had done in the case of the other distric delegates. This was because two anti Mahone delegates from that district represented the constituency of three men-ore besides themselves-who as sembled in the same highly respectable grog-shop in Va. After a great deal of discussion John S Wise took the floor and was greeted with applause. He said that when the gentleman from N. C. (Russell,) spoke of the gentleman who made the contest as one who probably went to a grog-shop, he did not confine himself to the facts in the case. Pendleton, who made the rival contest, was the peer of any gentleman from N. C. or any other gentleman here, and this meeting was not held at a grog-shop, but in a reputable place where every convention had been held for years. He did not come here to be called a trickster and habitue of a grog-shop. (Wise) had seconded the motion to admit both delegations, because, as a true republican from Virginia, recognizing the people, whether they came here under the banner of Mahone or Wise, it grieved him to see her unrepresented in the convention, [Applause.]

Moore, of West Virginia, addressed the convention upon the 9th district dispute. He thought that the convention was in danger if it admitted any of the 9th district delegates. It would be setting a dangerous precedent. Dean, of Virginia, followed, in favor of the minority report. He declared that if the majority report was adopted his place as a delegate-at-large from Virginia would be valueless to him, because that there was a tone of irregularity about his convention. He went into details of the entire Virginia contest and said that there could be no possible doubt of the regular election of all Mahone delegates.

A motion for previous question was then recognized and under the call the convention adopted the motion to seat the Wood delegates, by an overwhelming adoption of the remainder of the majority When Bradley concluded, Fuller, of N. report of the credentials committee. C., moved that Ingersoll be asked to Reason, of Pennsylvania, demanded a decision on the question, and that each credentials being ready to report, regular separate case in dispute should be voted upon by itself. This was agreed to.

> Fessender, of Connecticut, moved to reconsider the vote by which the convention had admitted the Wood delegation from the 9th district of Virginia.

Butterworth, of Ohio, moved to lay this motion upon the table, and after a long parliamentary harangue, the question was put and Butterworth's motion prevailed, 242 to 174. The question then recurred upon the admission of delegates from the 2nd district of Virginia. The and the minority report, which seats the Mahone delegates, was offered as a substitute, and a call of States was had upon the substitute.
