MANUFACTURED ICE.

For the information of the public and to set erroneous ideas on the subject of artificial ice, we give the following facts in regard to the manufacture of ice: Our manner of making is to distill the water by condensing it, thus making it absolutely pure. Then send over charcoal to completely deodorize and arrest any remaining traces of impurities, after which cans filled with it are placed in brine chilled below the freezing point, there it remains until it is frozen as clear and almost as solid as glass. This is alone fit for human use. It lasts one longer than natural ice and has all the special virtues of the high priced table ice of commerce.

CONGRESSIONAL.

THE TARIFF BILL DRAGS IN THE HOUSE.

Heavy Failure in New York.—Gen'l. Sheridan's Condition.

By Telegraph to the Sun.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, presided over the House this morning as Speaker pro tem, and laid before the House a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury submitting an estimate of $35,000 to enable him to carry out provision of the act relating to the anchorage of vessels in New York harbor. Referred.

Blount, of Georgia, chairman of the committee on Post-offices and postal rates, submitted the Post-office Appropriation bill with the Senate amendments thereto, recommending concurrence in some and non-concurrence in others of those amendments. Among the amendments in which non-concurrence was recommended is that appropriating $800,000 to enable the Postmaster, General to provide more efficient mail service between the United States and South and Central America and West Indies, as is also that fixing the rate of postage on seeds and bulbs at 2 cents per pound. Recommendations were agreed to and the committee of conference ordered.

On motion of Mills, of Texas, it was ordered that when the House adjourned to-day, it be to meet on Thursday next. It was also agreed that the tariff bill would not be called up for consideration Thursday. The House then went into committee of the whole (Springer in the chair) on the tariff bill.

On motion of McMillin, of Tenn., the clause fixing the rate of duty on cast polished plate glass, unsilvered, was stricken out, thus leaving in force the existing law.

McKinley, of Ohio, moved to increase duty from $6 to $6.72 per ton duty on pig iron. He explained that the present rate of duty was $6.72 per ton and that the proposed reduction would have a very injurious effect upon the pig iron industry. The motion was lost.

McKinley moved to restore the present rate of duty on iron railway bars weighing more than 25 pounds to the yard. Lost.

McMillen, of Tenn., moved to strike out the clause imposing a duty of $11 per ton on slabs and billets of steel, and to restore the present rate of 45 per cent. advance.

Bayne, of Pa., opposed the motion. The present duty was equivalent to $8 per ton, which he thought was not sufficiently high when compared with other articles in the iron and steel schedule. The motion was agreed to.

Moffet, of N. Y., moved to increase from $20 to $22 per ton the duty on charcoal bloom iron. In support of his motion he spoke of the existing depression in iron industries of Lake Champlain district and the danger of an utter destruction of those industries should the proposed reduction of duty be agreed to. Motion was lost.

McKinley moved to restore existing rates on bar iron, and his motion was advocated by Burrows, of Mich.

Another political debate followed, interspersed with some personal rasping between Scott, of Pa., and Reed, of Maine.

After the debate had run on some time, Bland, of Mo., appealed in behalf of nine-tenths of the members of the House who wanted to proceed with their business and get through with this bill before dog days, who were tired of having these political discussions begun three months ago and repeated day in and day out until there was nothing new under the sun to say about it. It would be the middle of next week before the bill would come up again.

Bayne, of Pa., attempted to interrupt Bland who declined with the remark, that Pittsburg is notorious for coal gas and natural gas. But Bland's appeal proved ineffectual, and for an hour the old threadbare discussion ran on as to the respective position of the two parties on the tariff question and as to the question whether or not a protective tariff was a benefit to the farming community, but nothing new was said and no new facts elicited.

Finally McKinley's motion was voted down.

On motion of Breckenridge, of Ark., the duty of four-tenths of a cent per pound was imposed on iron or steel flat with longitudinal ribs for the manufacture of fencing.

In speaking to the verbal amendment Dockery, of Mo., said that when Congress assembled in Dec. it was confronted by a surplus in the Treasury of $79,466,000; to-day notwithstanding the purchase of bonds by the Secretary of the Treasury that surplus amounted to the appalling sum of $129,272,000. Since the 23rd of GETTYSBURG.

THE BLUE AND GRAY MINGLE IN REUNION.

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, Entuses the Veterans in a Talk of Fraternity.

By Telegraph to the Sun.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 2.—There is a strange similarity between this day and that of just twenty-one years ago. Then the armies of Meade and Lee confronted each other in sullen silence. The first day had ended in the defeat of Reynolds' men and the conflict of the second had been indecisive.

True, Longstreet's assault on Little Round Top was unsuccessful and the Federals still held their original position, but they were weak and broken and the morning of the third day saw them in no way improved.

All through that sultry day which was to decide forever the great questions submitted to the arbitration of war, silence reigned over the armies.

At four o'clock, however, the signal gun of Lee opened the greatest artillery duel the world has ever seen, and until columns of Pickett's Virginians were hurled back from the bloody angle in rear of cannon and the rattle of musketry, was never equaled in the history of the world. So-to-day the morning was quiet; Federals and Confederates were once more on the field and again there was one on Seminary Ridge and the other on Cemeteryville. Nothing unusual occurred to break the great monotony until 4 o'clock, when Unions and Confederates met once more at almost the same hour at which they had joined in deadly combat twenty five years ago.

General J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, whose eloquent speech set the crowd fairly crazy yesterday afternoon had made him the most proper man in town. Afterward he was compelled by his official position as chief executive to leave for Atlanta this afternoon.

To an Associated Press representative in answer to a question as to what was his opinion of the Reunion, he said: "This meeting was a great success, and if these Reunions between soldiers could occur yearly it would serve to cement a friendly feeling of Blue and Gray more closely and to bind the North and South so firmly that there would be no North and no South, but one country, linked together by chains of indissoluble friendship."

Promptly at 3 o'clock, the procession, composed of the same military commands as yesterday, entered the National cemetery, Colonel Gibson ranking officer present leading. As Contermo's band filed past the rostrum it struck up popular airs from Erin. "Dowdy jail birds of a feather" rang out through the shady lawn, while smiles rippled over the faces of the crowd at the appropriateness of the selection.

After the 9th New York militia had trumped past and the cavalry had thrown dust over prominent people on the rostrum, the stately monument hid them from sight as they marched back to their camp on first day's field.

General Gibson, of New York, arose and leaning heavily on his crutches requested Rev. Twitchell, of Hartford, Conn., to open the second day's reunion exercises with prayer. The prayer was listened to with uncovered heads, and when in concluding he began the Lord's Prayer, the crowd joined in, and as it rolled across the vast lawn the sound was like the roar of a distant cannon, or beating of the surf on the rocky coast.

The poet of the occasion, Geo. Parsons Lathrop, was unable to be present, but part of his poem was read by General Horatio C. King, and was received by the audience with much applause.

When the orator, Geo. William Curtis was presented, cheers were called for by Gen. Sharpe, and he was greeted with hearty applause.

The number in attendance was not near as large as yesterday, nor was the enthusiasm so great.

Big Failure in New York.
 NEW YORK, July 3.—Sigmund J. Seligman, Philip Seligman and Abraham H. Hoiti, composing the firm of Seligman Bros & Co., dealers in cloaks at No. 375 Broadway, made an assignment to-day for the benefit of creditors, to Simon Herman giving $6,875 preference.

The failure of Seligman Bros. & Co. was caused by that of Seligman, May & Co. yesterday. The former had endorsed for the latter $50,000 of accommodation paper. It announced that other liabilities of the firm were about $160,000, making the total $240,000. The suddenness of the failure is shown by the fact that checks to the amount of $50,000 were ready to send out when failure was announced. Assets can not be approximately given as yet. An inventory and balancing of accounts are in progress. The principal creditors are banks. Most of the discounts were made by the Western, Shoe and Leather and Citizens' National banks. The Seligmans of the firm are brothers of Seligman of Seligman, May & Co.
